PRESIDENT ISSUES STRONG STATEMENT ON MINERS' STRIKE

Holds That Calling Out of Men From Coal Mines Is Unjustifiable and Unlawful—Threatens Nation With Severe Disaster—No Vote of Workers Taken on Question.

STATES THAT U. S. GOVERNMENT WILL USE ITS PREVENTIVE POWER

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—Holding the impending coal strike to be not only unjustifiable but also unlawful, President Wilson, in a statement issued tonight with the support of his entire Cabinet, called on the coal miners of the nation, both union officers and members, to rescind the strike order for November 1.

The President declined to enter into the merits of the controversy between the miners and operators, but emphatically declared that the strike, which he characterized as the most far-reaching proposal in the nation's history to restrict production and distribution of all necessaries of life, had apparently been ordered without a vote of the individual members. For this reason the President served definite notice "That the law will be enforced and the means will be found to protect the interests of the nation in any emergency that may arise out of this unhappy business."

The President's statement was issued tonight after his Cabinet had gone over the entire situation with Secretary Wilson of the Labor Department, whose efforts to bring miners and operators together in negotiations had failed.

There was no direct intimation of what steps the Cabinet had discussed to prevent stoppage of work should the President's solemn warning to rescind the strike order fail of result. It was regarded as significant that attention was drawn in White House circles to the statements made by Secretary Baker in a recent address in Cleveland, when Mr. Baker announced that department commanders had been directed to furnish troops at the request of governors without referring to Washington.

Incidents Reviewed

"On September 23, 1919, the convention of the United Mine Workers of America, at Cleveland, Ohio, adopted a proposal declaring that all contracts in the bituminous field shall be declared as having automatically expired November 1, 1919, and making various demands, including a 60 per cent. increase in wages and the adoption of a six-hour work day and a five-day week; and providing that, in the event a satisfactory wage agreement should not be secured for the central competitive field before November 1, 1919, the national officials should be authorized and instructed to call a general strike of all bituminous miners and mine workers throughout the United States, effective November 1, 1919.

"Pursuant to these instructions, the officers of the organization have issued a call to make the strike effective November 1. This is one of the gravest steps ever proposed in this country, affecting the economic welfare and the domestic comfort and health of the people. It is proposed to abrogate an agreement as to wages which was made with the sanction of United States fuel administration, and which was to run during the continuance of the war, but not beyond April 1, 1920. This strike is proposed at a time when the Government is making the most earnest efforts to reduce the cost of living, and has appealed with success to other classes of workers to postpone similar disputes until a reasonable opportunity has been offered for dealing with the cost of living. It is recognized that the strike would practically shut off the country's supply of its principal fuel at a time when interference with that supply is calculated to create a disastrous fuel famine. All interests would be affected alike by a strike of this character, and its victims would be not the rich only but the poor and needy as well—those least able to provide in advance a fuel supply for domestic use. It would involve the shutting down of countless industries and the throwing out of employment of a large number of the workers of the country. It would involve stopping the operation of railroads, electric light and gas plants, street railway lines and other public utilities, and the steamship transportation to and from this country, thus preventing our giving aid to the Allied countries with supplies which they so seriously need. The country is confronted with this prospect at a time when the war itself is still a fact, when the world is still in suspense as to negotiations for peace, when our troops are still being transported and when their means of transport is in urgent need of fuel.

Unjustifiable and Unlawful

"From whatever angle the subject may be viewed it is apparent that such a strike in such circumstances would be the most far-reaching plan ever presented in this country to limit the facilities of production and distribution of a necessity of life, and thus indirectly to restrict the production and distribution of all the necessaries of life. A strike under these circumstances is not only unjustifiable, it is unlawful.

"The action proposed has apparently been taken without any vote upon the specific proposition by the individual members of the United Mine Workers of America throughout the United States, an almost unprecedented proceeding. I cannot believe that any right of any American worker needs for its protection the taking of this extraordinary step, and I am convinced that when the time and money are considered it constitutes a fundamental attack, which is wrong both morally and legally, upon the rights of society and upon the welfare of our country. I feel convinced that individual members of the United Mine Workers would not vote, upon full consideration, in favor of such a strike under these conditions.

"When a movement reaches a point where it appears to involve practically the entire productive capacity of the country with respect to one of the most vital necessities of domestic and industrial life, and when the movement is started in the circumstances I have stated, and at a time and in a manner calculated to involve the maximum of dangers in the public welfare in this critical hour of our country's life, the public interest becomes the paramount consideration.

Labor Organizations Arrange Conference

Offer Decided Objection to Railway Legislation Proposed in Congress With Purpose of Preventing Strikes—Representatives of Brotherhoods and Federation Unions to Meet Dec. 13

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—Organized labor intends to preserve the right to strike, officials of the American Federation of Labor said today in a warning that passage in Congress of the anti-strike legislation proposed in the pending railroad bill would result in an immediate general walk-out all over the country.

William H. Johnston, president of the International Association of Machinists, second largest union affiliated with the Federation, said:

"Direct action might be resorted to if all other means of advancing the interests of the unions failed."

He referred particularly to what he termed the efforts of employers to shut out unions by binding their workers with individual contracts. He announced that with the passage of the anti-strike legislation he would order immediately a vote on a strike of the 250,000 members of his association, and predicted that the heads of the other 112 international unions in the American Federation of Labor would take similar action. It was said today that this legislation was one of the principal reasons the heads of unions in the Federation were to be summoned here for a conference soon.

Labor Officials Confer

Officials of the four railroad brotherhoods conferred today with Samuel Gompers, president, and other officers of the federation.

Present at the conference also were representatives of the following farmers' organizations:

The National Board of Farmers' Organizations, the Federation of Milk Producers, the American Society of Equity and the National Farmers' Union.

Mr. Gompers issued the following statement after the meeting:

"General discussion ensued regarding the legislation pending in Congress inimical to the rights and interests of industrial and agricultural workers.

"Further discussion ensued regarding legislation which had been urged at the hands of Congress in the interests of the above.

"It was decided that the call of the conference determined upon by the executive of the American Federation of Labor should be jointly issued by the executive councils of the American Federation of Labor and the railroad brotherhoods.

"It was decided that the conference should take place in Washington, Saturday, December 13.

"The representatives of the farmers' organizations, although in entire sympathy with the discussion and purposes, stated that they had no authority from their organizations to join in the call for the conference, but that their conventions, which would be held within a month from now, would be glad to receive invitations upon which to act and select delegates.

"Some close observers of the industrial situation said today an alliance between the federation and the brotherhoods appeared more than probable."

Farmers' Attitude

Charles S. Barrett, president of the National Farmers' Union, and one of the farmers' representatives in the National Industrial Conference here, issued an appeal today to the farmers to "be prepared to aid our beloved country in her present hour of need."

Menaced by entrenched privilege on the one hand and a perilous "red" propaganda on the other, said Mr. Barrett, "the nation is facing the most dangerous situation since the Civil War. Although revelling in plenty, though business was never more plentiful, though employment was never more general, the country is sitting on a powder magazine which threatens at any moment to explode, bringing devastation and untold suffering in its train.

"The failure of the industrial conference to accomplish any concrete thing makes necessary an offensive and defensive alliance between all constructive forces of the country against the common enemy of extremism.

"In this crisis in the nation's history, the farmer must get to the helm, and he must stay at the helm until the ship of state is brought safely into the haven of rest."

A plea for "real sanity," also was made today by Secretary Lane

SINN FEINERS BREAK FROM JAIL

LONDON, Oct. 25.—Six Sinn Feiners, including Commoners Stack and Beasley, have escaped from the Strangeway jail at Manchester. Being political prisoners, they were allowed to congregate during the tea hour. One of them sprang at the warden and felled him. The others bound his hands and feet. He was gagged and thrown into a cell.

In the meantime a rope ladder was thrown over the prison wall by someone standing in the street. The men climbed the wall, descending to the street by means of a wooden ladder on the other side.

PRESIDENT HOLDS GAIN IN STRENGTH LATELY REPORTED

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—President Wilson spent a quiet day and his physicians said he continued to hold the gains he has made recently.

No routine executive business was laid before him. Several minor bills reached the White House from the Capitol, and the Department of Justice sent over a number of pardon cases to await the President's action.

The one exception to the "no work today" ruling applied by Dr. Grayson, was a report from the Cabinet which held morning and late afternoon sessions to discuss the impending coal strike.

The bulletin on the President's condition was omitted tonight.

SEEK ADVANTAGE IN PLEBISCITES

Germans Accused of Undue Activity in Regions Where Votes Are to Be Taken—Supreme Council's Measures

PARIS, Oct. 25.—In the Supreme Council today the subdivisions of the Bulgarian reply to the draft peace treaty were assigned to various committees, which will prepare the reports upon which the Supreme Council will base its answer to the Bulgarian Government. These reports are to be ready within a week.

The council further adopted instructions to the commission which is to conduct the plebiscite in the district of Teschen which will determine whether this region is to go to Poland or Czecho-Slovakia.

The council considered complaints against German activities in the plebiscite regions in Schleswig and Upper Silesia, and instructs a committee to investigate the Polish complaint that the Germans are holding municipal elections in Upper Silesia, although these elections were to take place only after the arrival of the mission to organize the plebiscite.

It was reported that German troops had been dispatched to a place in Schleswig within the zone to be occupied by the Allied troops.

ENTERTAIN FEAR FOR ARMENIANS

Premier and American Missionaries Apprehensive of Massacres — Col. Haskell Does Not Share in Alarm

ERIVAN, Armenia, Friday, Oct. 17.—Fears that the Armenians within the boundaries of Old Russia may be wiped out before the conference settles the fate of the new-born republic were expressed today by Premier Khastisian, and the same apprehension is felt by American missionary workers here.

Such a view, however, is not entertained by Col. William Haskell, representing American relief organizations, and also high commissioner for the four great powers in Armenia.

Unless the partition of Turkey should be announced, which would stir up political elements now relatively quiet, it is not believed there will be any action against Armenians in Turkey proper, or any attempt to dispatch troops into Russian-Armenia.

Since the British withdrew to Batum, robber bands have grown bolder and have made daring daylight holdups of American and British travelers.

British War Office States That Don Army Has Advanced From 40 to 55 Miles on Front of 120 Miles—Copenhagen Dispatch Reports Capture of Trotsky's Staff

LONDON, Oct. 25.—Heavy fighting is going on along General Denikine's entire front. The fighting extends for 700 miles from Tsaritsyn to Kiev.

The chief of the British Military Mission with Gen. Denikine reports under today's date that the battle so far is going successfully for the anti-Bolsheviki forces.

"Between Tsaritsyn and Voronezh, the Don army has advanced from 40 to 55 miles on a front of 120 miles during the past few days, taking many prisoners and much material," a War Office communication says.

"Yelies, 230 miles southeast of Moscow, was captured Thursday. Volunteers attacking Orel have reached the southern outskirts of the town, where fighting is going on.

"Further west, volunteers are concentrating for an attack."

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 25.—The Bolsheviki forces are making a strong stand at Tsarskoe-Selo, which, according to advices received here, the "White" troops outflanked.

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 25.—The entire staff of Leon Trotzky, Bolshevik Minister of War and Marine of Russia, has been captured at Tsarskoe-Selo, according to a Reval dispatch to the National Tidende. Trotzky himself escaped by clinging to a railroad car and later fleeing from the scene in an automobile.

Troops of the Northwestern Russian army pursued the minister and fired upon his car, but Trotzky succeeded in reaching Petrograd.

The left flank of General Yudenitch's army is reported to be under fire from the Bolshevik dreadnought Poltava, which is lying in the Neva River, inside the limits of Petrograd and shooting over the housetops.

LONDON, Oct. 25.—Leon Trotzky, the Bolshevik Minister of War of Russia, in describing the soviet counter-offensive and capture of Pavlovsk, south of Petrograd, and the repulse of anti-Bolsheviki forces in the Pskov sector, says:

"The danger hanging over Petrograd has been driven back, but not yet definitely removed," according to a wireless dispatch received here from Moscow.

ARCHANGEL, Friday, Oct. 24.—The North Russian Government, in a communique issued today, claims the repulse of a Bolsheviki attempt to capture Povienetz, on Lake Onega, with great losses, including a Bolshevik vessel. The Bolsheviki were driven 33 miles from the town of Onega and several villages were captured.

ONTARIO HAS SET HIGH OBJECTIVE IN VICTORY LOAN

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 25.—The official objective for the 1919 Victory Loan campaign in the Province of Ontario amounts to $225,825,000. Last year it was $220,425,000. The convassers' objective comprises $141,100,000 and the special subscriptions objective is $84,725,000.

An objective of $5,000,000 has been set by Canadian National Railways for subscriptions by workers on the national lines in the Victory Loan campaign. D. B. Hanna is confidently calling upon ever yemployee in the service to invest to the limit and is impressing upon all the fact that the general prosperity of the country, including the railways, depends upon the success of this appeal to Canadians for funds.

STREET CAR MEN TO GET INCREASE

Award of Conciliation Board Allows for Higher Daily and Monthly Wages—Meetings of Men This Week

VANCOUVER, Oct. 25.—The award of the conciliation board ,consisting of representatives of the B.C.E.R. and the Amalgamated Association of Street Railway Employees, which was appointed by the Minister of Labor on September 29 last, was made public this evening. It shows a general increase in wages of from five to eight cents per hour, and ten to fifteen dollars per month for those paid on a monthly scale. The rates include time and a-half for motormen and conductors for Sundays and holidays, with an allowance of 25 cents per hour on all spread overtime beyond ten hours. Other working conditions remain practically as at present. The claim for extra pay for the night men was not allowed.

"In this endeavor to arrive at a fair and just decision," the report says, "one must give consideration to the difference between wages paid out of taxes by cities or governments and those paid by enterprises privately owned, which can only pay expenses out of profits on the sale of the commodity they produce with the assistance of labor. The street railway is peculiar to itself and unlike any other industry. It is reasonable, however, to fully recognize the shown tendency to pay higher wages for the improvement of the conditions of labor, therefore the board consider the following as fair and just wages to be paid, giving the men a higher wage and better working conditions than are enjoyed by any other street railway in Canada."

Meetings of the men affected in the three divisions of Vancouver, New Westminster and Victoria will be held during the coming week to consider the terms of the award.

Sir Joseph Lawrence Dead

LONDON, October 25.—Sir Joseph Lawrence, chairman of the International Linotype Company, and a director of the Mergenthaler Linotype Company of New York, died suddenly here yesterday. He was born September 23, 1848. Sir Joseph was one of the principle earliest pioneers in the project for the Manchester Ship Canal, and took an active part in the passage of the British patent laws, from 1902 to 1907.

Troops Held Ready To Suppress Riots

Serious Disorders Break Out at Steel Works in Canton, Ohio—Foreigners Attack Americans Who Remain at Work—Local Authorities Unable to Control

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 25.—Five hundred Ohio National Guard troops tonight are mobilized at Akron, where they will be held in readiness for strike duty at Canton.

The order for mobilization was issued by Governor Cox after receiving word from Colonel J. M. Bingham, of the arjutant-general's office, and other sources, that severe rioting at steel plants had not been curbed by the local authorities.

The troops mobilizing are machine-gun and infantry companies.

If rioting continues, it is expected the troops will be rushed to Canton.

Gov. Cox sent a teleghram to Mayor Charles E. Poorman, of Canton, notifying him he would be expected to bring the disorder to an immediate end or appear before him Monday to show cause why he should not be removed from office. A similar telegram was sent to the sheriff of Stark County.

CANTON, O., Oct. 25.—With state troops mobilizing at Akron, only 20 miles distant, to take charge of the steel strike situation here, which has resulted in recent riots in which many persons were injured, Mayor Poorman issued a statement tonight declaring the situation beyond control.

With such a declaration from the mayor, the general belief is that Gov. Cox will forthwith order the troops from Akron into Canton.

Strike disorders continued tonight. Three American workmen were waylaid while on their way to work at the plant of the United Alloy Steel Corporation by a crowd of foreigners. When attacked one of the Americans drew a revolver and fired. His assailants then drew weapons and fired a fusilade of shots. The Americans fled, but one man, 70 years old, was overtaken and slashed with a knife and beaten.

Local authorities are anticipating serious trouble tomorrow morning when the shifts change at the United Alloy Steel Corporation plants, and they fear the humor of the strikers may have been aggravated by the mobilization of state troops.

Mayor Poorman tonight declined to comment on the threat of Gov. Cox to remove him from office unless order is maintained.

Fourteen bricklayers at the plant of the United Alloy Corporation, while leaving their plant tonight were attacked by about seventy-five striking foreigners with stones and clubs. A riot call was sent in, but before the city police arrived, plant police had rescued them. Several were said to have been injured.

VOTERS TO GIVE VERDICT TOMORROW

Large Vote Expected to Turn Out, and Both Sides Are Confident of Victory—Decision Now Rests With Electors

Tomorrow at the polls Victoria electors will render their verdict on the question of which candidate for their suffrages shall represent them in the Federal Parliament, whether Hon. Dr. Tolmie, a life-long resident of the section, and a member of the Cabinet, or Mr. Thomas A. Barnard, of New Westminster, candidate of the Federated Labor Party, whose actions, should he be elected, will be under the complete control and domination of twenty-nine individuals to whom he has given his undated resignation.

The by-election contest, so far as the vocal element thereof is concerned, came to a close last night. Today, being the Sabbath, will give the workers for both candidates a breathing space preparatory to the task of getting out the voters today.

Throughout the campaign both candidates and their committees have worked hard to secure victory. Both profess to be confident of the result, but both are taking nothing for granted, and every effort will be made tomorrow to get out the last possible vote. There has been little betting on the outcome, but what there was has favored the Minister's chances.

The polls will open tomorrow at [illegible] a.m. and close at 5 p.m., and voters are advised to note these hours and not go on the impression that the Provincial regulations governing elections whereunder the closing is 7 p.m. will be operative tomorrow.

In this connection word was received yesterday by Mr. Christian Siverts, secretary of the Trades and Labor Council, from Ottawa to the effect that the request that the polling hours be extended to 7 p.m. cannot be complied with because of the fact that the Elections Act of 1915 fixed the 5 p.m. closing hour, and that statute cannot be changed except by legislation passed by the House of Commons. But by that act all employers are required to allow employees one hour during the day in which to vote without deduction of pay.

BULGARIA OFFERS SOME OBJECTIONS

Clauses in Treaty Relating to Reparation, Abolition of Conscription and Territorial Changes Are Not Welcome

PARIS, Oct. 25.—Bulgaria's answer to the terms of peace presented here by the Allied and Associated powers is moderate in tone and adheres unreservedly to the clauses concerning the League of Nations and Labor. It accepts the principle of the protection of minorities in Bulgaria on condition that the same measures are applied to other Balkan states.

On the other hand, the reply makes reservations regarding reparations, and protests especially against the total sum demanded of Bulgaria. It asks for the suppression of interest charges, and requests an extension of the time limit for payment.

Regarding the military clauses Bulgaria objects to the voluntary enlistment system, maintaining that conscription alone can produce sufficient forces to maintain order.

The longest part of the reply concerns territorial clauses, and protests against modifications of frontiers on ethnical grounds, and quoting masses of statistics, proposes notably a plebiscite in Thrace and its formation into an autonomous state.

The impression prevails in conference circles that the Allies are not likely to consent to any extensive modification of the original terms.

Capt. H. W. R. Moore, returning officer, has all arrangements made for tomorrow's polling. Yesterday instructions to deputy returning officers and other poll officials were issued covering their duties. The returning officer made it clear that no Orientals, Chinese or otherwise, shall be permitted to vote whether any of them may have got on the list at the recent registration proceedings. By its recent amendment to the Elections Act the Government has removed the ambiguity which prevailed and made it definite that Orientals are not entitled to the franchise.

Capt. Moore also made it clear that in addition to those returned men whose names are on the voters' lists, all veterans who have been back in Victoria for one month, or prior to September 27 last, may vote. It will not be necessary, he states, for them to bring their discharge papers to the polls.

Committee rooms have been opened by the Tolmie committee in convenient juxtaposition to the various polling booths for the convenience of voters. These rooms are located at the following points:

Ward One—414 Skinner Street, telephone 6403; Scott Block, corner of Hillside Avenue and Douglas Street, telephone 2784.

Ward Four—Cartier's garage, Gordon and Courtney Streets, telephone 293; Shank's Five-Point Barber Shop, telephone 6190.

Ward Five—507 Niagara Street, telephone 6346; Cook and Sutlej Streets, telephone 6813.

Dr. Tolmie's campaign headquarters at 1317 Government Street can be got by telephone 6699. All transportation inquiries should be telephoned to 6316.

During the past few days scores of friends of the Minister of Agriculture have placed their motors at the disposal of his committee, and the arrangements for getting out the vote are complete, but there will be plenty of work to do, and those friendly to his candidature who have motors and are willing to lend them for the day will be welcomed.

It is expected that the result of the election should be known shortly after 6 p.m. The Colonist will, as usual, bulletin the returns for the benefit of the public.

COL. ROOSEVELT'S ESTATE VALUED

Executors in Affidavits Place Amount at $810,607—Left With Widow in Trust for Children

MINEOLA, N. Y., Oct. 25.—Col. Theodore Roosevelt left an estate valued at $810,607, according to affidavits filed here today with Transfert Tax Appraiser Gehring, by executors of the will. After approximately $34,000 had been deducted for funeral expenses, counsel fees and debts, the entire estate will go to the widow of the former president in trust to be distributed among their children in any portion she may determine.

A trust fund of $60,000 given to Colonel Roosevelt by his father to be used by Mrs. Roosevelt during her life, will revert to her children after her death.

Sagamore Hill, the Roosevelt estate at Oyster Bay, where the Colonel died last January, is appraised at $180,600. The estate also includes corporate bonds valued at approximately $394,000, the largest of which is $30,000 worth of the first Liberty loan bonds. The bonds also include a $1,000 subscription to the Canadian Victory loan and a $3,000 Republic of Mexico bond, which is listed as worthless. Stocks owned by the former president are valued at approximately $184,000.

Royalties to be derived from publication of the Colonel's books were estimated at $7,000, while a value of $21,537 was placed on his libraries. One of the smallest items is one of $285, which represents the value of jewelry.

Included in the list of appraisals are gifts from various foreign dignitaries, trophies of the Colonel's hunting expeditions and various paintings, including one given him by the late Pope, Leo XIII.

PRESIDENT ISSUES STRONG STATEMENT

"In these circumstances I solemnly request both the national and the local officers and also the individual members of the United Mine Workers to recall all orders looking to a strike on November 1, and to take whatever steps may be necessary to prevent any stoppage of work.

Government Must Interpose

"It is time for plain speaking. These matters with which we now deal touch not only the welfare of a class, but vitally concern the well-being, the comfort and the very life of all the people. I feel it is my duty in the public interest to declare that any attempt to carry out the purpose of this strike and thus to paralyze the industry of the country, with the consequent suffering and distress of our people, must be considered a grave moral and legal wrong against the Government and the people of the United States. I can do nothing else than to say that the law will be enforced and the means will be found to protect the interests of the nation in any emergency that may arise out of this unhappy business.

"I express no opinion on the merits of the controversy. I have already suggested a plan by which a settlement may be reached, and I hold myself in readiness at the request of either or both sides to appoint at once a tribunal to investigate all the facts with a view to aiding in the earliest possible orderly settlement of the questions at issue between the coal operators and the miners, to the end that the just rights, not only of those interests but also of the general public, may be fully protected."

Chilean Mission to Britain

LONDON, Oct. 25.—King George will receive a complimentary Chilean mission headed by Senator Tocurnal, upon its arrival here November 4, and the Government already is making preparations for the entertainment of the guests. Everything will be done to make the visit memorable and a return of the great courtesy extended the British special mission which visited Chile last year.

Frost in Yakima District

YAKIMA, Wash.—Oct. 25.—Though the temperature last night dropped to 13.5, the lowest October temperature recorded since the establishment of a weather station here in 1910, fruit shippers are of the opinion that practically no damage was done to the apples. Fred Eberts, of of the Horticultural Union, says that practically all the fruit has been picked and that most of it is sufficiently protected, so that there is no danger from frost

DEBATE STATUS OF DELEGATIONS

British and French Representatives at Washington Labor Conference Dissent From Opinion of Secretary Wilson

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—All Allied and neutral countries listed in the covenant of the League of Nations will be allowed to vote at the initial meeting of the International Labor Conference which opens here next Wednesday, if the views of Arthur Fontaine, of France, chairman, and other members of the organizing committee now here, are followed. This is in keeping, it is said, with the decision of the Supreme Council at Paris that the conference shall be "master of its own destiny," according to Mr. H. B. Butler, of England, committee secretary, but contrary to the recent announcement by Secretary of Labor Wilson.

Secretary Wilson announced in a recent letter to Secretary Lansing that under the authority granted the United States as organizer of the conference, he would call the first meeting to order and receive the credentials of the delegates, accepting as qualified members only representatives of those nations which are members of the League of Nations, as a consequence of ratification of the treaty.

Mr. Fontaine said today that every nation invited by the United States is legally entitled to seat its representatives. He held the treaty provision that "the original members of the League of Nations shall be the original members of the conference" to mean that members of the League of Nations are necessarily members of the conference, but not vice versa.

Secretary Wilson has suggested a preliminary informal conference of all delegations to solve this and other problems, but French, English and other delegations, who arrived here, do not look with favor upon this plan, contending that the proceedings would be legal with all states participating in any case.

The United States cannot be officially represented at the conference unless the Senate approves the treaty, regardless of the action of the conference itself. Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, however, today was present at a meeting of the organizing committee.

RUSSIAN COMMANDER GIVES NO APOLOGY

VLADIVOSTOK, Saturday, Oct. 18.—General Roseanoff, the Russian commander in the Far East, has not apologized for the arrest and flogging of an American soldier at Iman on September 4, according to the American army authorities here. The American command declares it knows nothing of the apology, which, according to press reports from the United States, Ambassador Bakhmeteff in Washington said that General Roseanoff has submitted to Major-General Graves, commanding the American forces in Siberia.

Answering Gen. Graves' demand for an explanation of the actions of a Japanese officer at Iman in connection with the incident, Japanese headquarters replied that the Japanese major involved stated that the American major had misrepresented the facts.

DEPENDENTS PAID HIGHER ALLOWANCES

VANCOUVER, Oct. 25.—Increased allowances to dependents residing here of workmen who lost their lives during the course of their employment are now being made by the Workmen's Compensation Board, checks amounting to $44,000 having been forwarded from the offices of the board this week to one hundred and seventy widows whose husbands were killed in this province, and whose claims were adjusted between January 1, 1917, and July 1, 1919.

The payments were authorised by an amendment to the Workmen's Compensation Act, passed by the Provincial Government last session.

ACCREDITS DEATHS TO CANNED FOODS

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 25.—Following investigation of the death of five persons believed to have been poisoned at a dinner party a week ago, Dr. Francis M. Duffield, president of the Department of Health, announced tonight he would on Monday order all grocers here to discontinue temporarily the sale of certain canned foodstuffs.

The victims are believed by Department of Health officials to have been poisoned by eating ripe olives.

Twenty-eight lives have been lost in the past two months in various parts of the country, Dr. Duffield stated, through "botulis muo" poisoning, which is prevalent, he said, chiefly in asparagus, olives and corn.

Make Up Your Mind

In all things in this life, the making up of your mind with honesty of purpose forms the keystone of success; without it you just drift, and are kept jumping to avoid disaster, instead of making headway in life's battles.

If you would be content for a year to make up your mind to put your shoulder to the wheel, you would find the worst part of your troubles over, and each succeeding year greater contentment being nearer to that goal of independence which everyone looks forward to—that of owning property—your own home.

Let us talk the matter over with you and tell you how you can obtain acreage in a good location for raising chickens, fruit and small fruits in a settled community, with good roads, close to school, church, stores, etc. (located on property) and a daily train service, for $40 per acre; payments spread over five years, without interest.

MR. BARNARD GIVES ANOTHER SPEECH

Audience at Princess Theatre Tendered Labor Candidate Good Hearing at Last Night's Meeting

Mr. Barnard's final meeting in the Princess Theatre last night was a crowded one. The candidate was well received and went over the ground covered generally by him during his campaign, and asked for the support of those present.

Rev. W. Stevenson again defended his appearance on the platform, and alleged that "Dr. Tolmie's henchmen are conducting a campaign of slander and misrepresentation."

Major MacFarlane, M.C., told the audience that he had come onto Mr. Barnard's platform "because of the unfair play of the press and the mud-slinging of Dr. Tolmie's workers." Dealing with the inequalities of the soldiers' pensions, the speaker stated that he considered his life just as valuable when he was a private as he does today.

Major Dick Burde also spoke.

Both Major Burde and Major MacFarlane objected to the statement from Dr. Tolmie's speakers that Mr. Barnard had around him only alien agitation. Both of the speakers assured the audience that they were Canadians for several generations back.

There was a good sprinkling of ladies present, and during the evening a series of cleverly gotten up cards of election propaganda was shown to the audience.

VICTORY LOAN MASS MEETING TONIGHT

Plans Are Completed for Campaign—Will Likely Include Two Public Street Dances and Parades

Everything is in fine shape for the Victory Loan campaign which starts tonight with a big mass meeting in the Royal Victoria Theatre. General Clarke issued the following message yesterday:

"Zero Hour is 9 a.m. Monday, October 27th, 1919.

"The preliminary barrage of posters, newspaper articles, stunts, many and various, have we known from actual observation, been effective. Our organization is as complete as we can make it. The front line troops—our salesmen trained to the minute—go 'Over the Top' at Zero Hour, intent on reaching our final objective.

"On the eve of many battles the thoughts of our objectives have been paramount ones, but quietly confident that, in spite of all the bombardment, machine gun, gas or wire, we shall attain it. Fully as confident we feel today, for we have never failed. But success has always been obtained at a price and that price every one of us must be prepared to pay.

"My staff, the great majority of whom are giving their services entirely voluntarily, feel fully as confident as myself.

"The Torch of Victory has been lighted. Be yours to hold it high."

Reference to the Loan will be made from all the city pulpits today. It is expected that on Thursday next when Gipsy Smith arrives in the city, he will speak on the Victory Loan at a luncheon of the Rotary Club.

Street Dances

An effort is being made to hold two public street dances in connection with the campaign. The first of these is proposed for Saturday evening next, and the other on the night of the big ball to be given in honor of the Admiral of the Fleet, Lord Jellicoe.

Tonight's Programme

The first gun will be fired tonight at the Royal Victoria Theatre, at 8:45 p.m.

The Hon. J. D. McLean, Provincial Secretary, will be chairman of the meeting, the speakers of the evening being Lt.-Col. C. Peck, V.C., D.S.O., M.P.; Mr. Geo. G. Bushby, vice-chairman of the Greater Victoria Victory Loan Committee, and the Rev. W. L. Clay, D.D.

There will be band selections by the Foundation Company Band, under the leadership of Mr. Lou Turner, the members of the Band giving their services entirely free on account of the patriotic nature of the meeting.

The soloists will be Mr. James Hunter, well known to Victorians, and Miss Olive De Vesey Detlor, a graduate of Toronto College of Music. Miss Detlor has been contralto soloist at several large churches in the East, and has always made it a point of honor to sing at concerts and entertainments given for the amusement of our soldier boys.

LABOR CANDIDATE WINDS UP CAMPAIGN

Mr. Barnard, Charged as an O.B.U. Advocate, Says He Is Against the One Big Union at Ottawa

Mr. Thomas A. Barnard, the New Westminster choice of the Federated Labor Party to oppose Hon. Dr. S. F. Tolmie, Minister of Agriculture, in tomorrow's by-election, gave his final campaign speech last night at the Crystal Theatre.

The theatre was only partly filled at the commencement and while a few more people wandered in after the store-closing hour, "just to see what Bernard looks like," the audience was restless, and before the Labor candidate made his speech he was forced to witness many of the benches become empty.

Besides Mr. Barnard those who spoke were Mr. Tom Richardson, ex-member of the British Parliament; Rev. W. D. Spence, Major R. J. Burde, M. C., M.P.P., of Port Alberni, and Sgt.-Maj. James Robinson, D.C.M., of Vancouver, who was was chairman.

Mr. Barnard referred to the statement of Mr. V. E. Andrew, a returned soldier, to the effect that a vote for Barnard would be a vote for the One Big Union. While not refuting the assertion, Mr. Barnard said a vote for him was a vote against the one big union atOttawa.

Major Burde felt impelled to again point out that his opposition to the Union Government was not based on the desire to land a Government job. The nearest explanation of his attitude that he had heard, he said, was that he liked to hear himself talk and that he spoke for Barnard simply for his own amusement.

Major Burde said most of his friends were supporting Dr. Tolmie, so he was regarded among them as a curiosity. He was assailed with arguments for Tolmie at the rate of thirty to one, he said, but was enjoying himself.

Sgt.-Maj. Robinson devoted most of his time to an argument that he was not "an outsider," but an "outrider." He again challenged Sir Robert Borden, Hon. Arthur Mieghen and Hon. J. A. Calder to get on the same platform with him and he charged that they had broken faith with the country. He felt that a woman who had lost her breadwinner in the war should be enabled to live in the same affluence as the Premier of Canada or the Queen of England.

Mr. Tom Richardson was introduced as a man of the John Bull type, but he claimed to be an internationalist, too. He spoke in a somewhat pessimistic strain about the by-election. He said he was relatively young, but he had figured in many elections and he cautioned his hearers not to be intoxicated or hypnotized into believing that Mr. Barnard would achieve an easy victory. The task would require statesmanship and cohesion, he said.

Rev. W. D. Spence said that he had recruited 3,500 men for the Dominion's army, and he wanted to dissociate himself with the Government's betrayal of the soldier, widow and orphan. He charged that the Government worked hand in glove with the octopus represented by the profiteers, and that machine that had no souls or hearts could not be expected to break away from the grasp of this creature. He held that Ottawa was under the thumb of Mackenzie and Mann and the C.P.R. directorate.

HOME PRODUCTS FAIR BUYS VICTORY BOND

Handsome Balance Enables Directors to Invest $1,000 in New Loan

At a meeting of the Home Products Fair executive, held Friday afternoon in the office of the secretary, Mr. George I. Warren, a resolution was passed setting aside $900 to be used during the next 12 months for advertising propaganda to further the use by the public of home products. Mr. Carl Pendray, the chairman, was asked to appoint a committee from the executive to act in conjunction with a committee of the exhibitors to handle the money. The total attendance during the week of the 1919 Fair exceeded that of 1917 by 10,000.

The total receipts from exhibitors for floor space this year amounted to $552.25. Gate receipts were $2,876.70, making a total in receipts of $3,428.95. The total expenditure was $2,182.18, leaving a profit of $1,246.77. A balance of $660.20 was reported still on hand from previous years.

It was decided to invest $1,000 in Victory bonds and hold same as a sinking fund for future fairs.

TOMORROW'S BY-ELECTION

During the past fortnight this newspaper has recapitulated the reasons why Dr. S. F. Tolmie should be endorsed by the voters as Minister of Agriculture. His appointment to that portfolio met with an unanimous chorus of praise from the agricultural interests throughout the length and breadth of the Dominion. He was appointed because he was the best man in Parliament for the post, and Victorians are asked tomorrow to ratify the choice. Dr. Tolmie's personal popularity in this city is undoubted. His claims to re-election by this constituency long antedate his appointment to Cabinet position, and are due to the whole-hearted, hard-working, capable and enthusiastic manner in which, during close to two years, he has carried out his duties as member.

Dr. Tolmie can lay claim to a very large share of the success which terminated the bitter political struggle fought with Mainland interests, and as a result of which the Government pledged itself to the work of building a new dry dock at Esquimalt. The platform speakers of the Federated Labor Party have sneered and jeered at this facility and at what Dr. Tolmie has done to insure its construction. If we do not wholly misinterpret the attitude of the people of Victoria, they will attest by their ballots tomorrow their estimate of how much Dr. Tolmie was responsible for having made it possible for the great shipping facility at Esquimalt to be begun during this Winter.

As far as this constituency is concerned, Dr. Tolmie has done everything that lay within his power to see that the returned soldiers, their dependents, and the dependents of those who have never returned, have got a square deal. High tribute to his actions in these particulars has been paid by Mr. Frank Giolma, the soldier-member in the Provincial Legislature, and there is no one in the community who has had the opportunity of learning more of any grievances that exist. Dr. Tolmie at all times has been ready and anxious to give assistance, and he is pledged to continue his work on behalf of the returned men and their dependents, as he fully realizes the problem of re-establishment is not yet solved. He will return to Ottawa far better equipped than in the past for the task, inasmuch as he is now a Cabinet Minister and can make his voice felt in the executive councils of the nation. That he will do so to the utmost extent of his ability is assured, for even his bitterest political opponents cannot impugn his honesty of purpose, his determination, and the keen and continuous interest he takes in the returned men's problems.

Dr. Tolmie has every claim to re-election. Not only has he proven himself the best member Victoria ever had at Ottawa, but all who are qualified to judge believe he will be the most efficient Minister of Agriculture ever in a Dominion Government. It is a high compliment to our citizens that in this time of reconstruction we should have a Cabinet Minister to cope with the needs of this constituency at the capital. Dr. Tolmie has been engaged for a long time past in endeavoring to secure further shipbuilding contracts for Victoria. He is anxious to make the industry permanent here, and we do not doubt that his efforts will meet with success, especially if the Victory Loan is subscribed. The question of the extension of the Federal shipbuilding programme is purely one of the money being available. In the meantime we have a strong advocate within the Cabinet who is determined to put the shipbuilding claims of this community before the Government on every possible occasion.

The people of Victoria are asked to elect Dr. Tolmie because he knows their needs, because he is one of themselves, and because no man has worked harder for the betterment of conditions in this community. They are asked to vote for him because of his ability, experience and knowledge, which fully qualify him as Minister of Agriculture. Their support is sought for the reason that he has worked, is still working, and will continue to give his best efforts towards the solution of local problems and the advancement of those projects which spell progress and prosperity. Those qualified to judge realize how important it is for the future that Dr. Tolmie should be returned at tomorrow's by-election. His opponent knows nothing of local needs, and, by his own admissions, does not appear to have troubled to inform himself. Mr. Barnard's main platform support has come from those who are not Victorians and who are as ignorant of conditions here as he is himself. Whereas, Dr. Tolmie at Ottawa and in the Cabinet must prove a power for the good of this community, Mr. Barnard has not even taken the trouble to say what his aims will be for Victoria's advancement, if he is elected.

Thus, the people tomorrow have to choose between candidates, one of whom is equipped with full knowledge of local conditions and a remarkably wide experience in the agricultural life of the nation, and a gentleman who looks upon Victoria as a mere stepping-stone for political honors for the Federated Labor Party. Because of the issues involved we are of emphatic opinion that Dr. Tolmie is the logical choice of the electors. When Mr. Crerar resigned as Minister of Agriculture, our people asked that Dr. Tolmie should be appointed to Cabinet rank. Their wishes were met. Tomorrow they have the duty of endorsing him as the member for Victoria. This we believe they will do by a large majority, for the appeal is one to the reason and judgment of the electorate, who are asked to endorse as Minister a representative who has proved himself the most active and efficient among all those who have served this constituency at Ottawa.

UNDER WHICH FLAG?

When Dr. W. J. Curry, of Vancouver, the chief figure in the British Columbia Federated Labor Party, appeared on Mr. T. A. Barnard's platform in the by-election campaign, he enunciated very clearly one of the issues upon which the electors will give their opinion tomorrow. Other platform supporters of the candidate of the Federated Labor Party, who followed Dr. Curry at subsequent meetings, have never taken occasion to disassociate themselves from his views, in the expression of which he made it clearly understood that he preferred conditions which prevail under the Red Flag to those under the Union Jack. Dr. Curry has not been the only speaker of the Federated Labor Party who has enunciated revolutionary ideals. There were others who evinced their sympathy with the policy of Direct Action. What Dr. Curry said has made an issue which is a direct challenge to all who love and reverence the British commonweal.

Among the supporters of Mr. T. A. Barnard, and chiefly among those directly responsible for his nomination as a candidate, there are men who would not hesitate to trample the Union Jack in the dust if they only held the reins of Government or saw a reasonable opportunity of seizing them. We say this with full knowledge, for in the past some of these men have expressed to The Colonist, in a perfectly outspoken manner, sentiments upon which no possible interpretation can be placed save the one that they have no use for King or Country. That, too, was evidenced in an emphatic way by these men to whom we allude during the Federal election of December, 1917, when those who now are among the chief supporters of Mr. Barnard said that a vote for the Military Service Act was a vote to send the sons of Canada to death. That was their conception of the fight for freedom upon which the world was engaged during the bitterest years of history.

Mr. Barnard has some supporters who have the respect of the community, but they are not the people dictating his policy. He is running at the behest of a party which denies the doctrine that the elected representatives of the people must be supreme or else there is an end to democratic freedom and all constitutional government. He has given to a minority the right to govern his actions in Parliament, if he is returned, and thus, in a tangible way, he has subscribed to a Soviet doctrine. By his action he has flaunted the principle that majority rule is the foundation of democracy. He has leagued himself with those who, like Dr. Curry of Vancouver, would prefer the Red Flag to the Union Jack. Mr. W. R. Trotter, one of the main speakers on his platform, was the ringleader in the movement among the Vancouver printers to censor the news in the press of that city during the recent Winnipeg strike. Mr. Barnard himself is on record as advocating "other means" if constitutional methods fail to bring about legislation decreed by the British Columbia Federated Labor Party.

Under these circumstances, and in view of the utterances made from Mr. Barnard's platform, there is a clear and unmistakable issue before the people in this by-election. The candidate of the Federated Labor Party has been wild in many of his statements, but, while he may have legitimate intentions, he is, by his own admission, prone to be driven to exasperation if these fail. His supporters, however, within the inner circle of the Federated Labor Party number those who are revolutionists at heart. The issue before the people of Victoria is, therefore, under which flag they desire to serve their country. Mr. Barnard, by his abdication of his right to exercise his own reason and judgment and opinion, has given into the hands of a Committee of 29 his resignation as member, so that the challenge of this by-election is to all those who are in favor of ordered government and its responsibility to Parliament. Under these circumstances there can be no doubt what the verdict at the polls will be.

TO VICTORIANS

Those who have a stake in Victoria and who regard this as their home city, and all who have its true interests at heart, cannot hesitate regarding their duty at the polls tomorrow. Dr. S. F. Tolmie is worthy of the greatest support the citizens can give him. Up to a month ago Mr. Barnard was a total stranger to this community, as in the past he only paid desultory visits here. Most of the platform support he has received has been from those who are not residents of Victoria. Of his Committee of 29, to whom he has consigned his political life as a representative of Victoria at Ottawa, sixteen, or over 50 per cent, have not had enough interest in Victoria to get their names on the 1919 Municipal Voters' List.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Mr. Barnard's Advisory Board

Sir,—I am one of the thousands of soldiers who went overseas to serve my country when the necessity arose, and I feel with my comrades, that those who made the sacrifices in responding to the call are entitled to the best that the Dominion can give, and more than that, I am certain that the Government will go the limit.

That soldier members of Parliament will be of inestimable value (not only through suggestions and advice, but through their close connection with all the phases of a soldier's life) is beyond dispute, but the soldier that goes to Parliament, and who will have to seek the aid of those who are not soldiers, will have to be a real soldier, with real soldier support, and not the representative of a self-seeking body of men, such as Mr. Barnard has allowed himself to be made a tool of.

The men who comprise Mr. Barnard's Advisory Board, and who he has tied himself to hand, body and soul, are mostly men who opposed the creating of support for us when we were in the trenches. Mr. Peirce, whose paper was suppressed and who was imprisoned for offences against the Military Act, is the chief supporter of Mr. Barnard. Pacifists, Socialists and men who have preached Bloshevism through the papers and on the platform are the men who have got absolute control of Mr. Barnard, and they will do the string pulling, whilst he will use the prestige of the returned soldier to fight the fight of the Socialist extremists, cranks, pacifists, evaders and anti-conscriptionists. How my fellow comrades can allow themselves to be fooled into allying themselves with such a body is beyond, not only myself, but thousands of others. If Victoria has been dissatisfied with Dr. Tolmie, the soldier organizations could have got together a convention of three thousand returned, sane, intelligent men, and they could have selected from their number a thousand more intelligent men who could have carried the returned soldiers' standard better than any soldier who might come from New Westminster. It is an insult to the returned men in Victoria to push down our throats such a man as Barnard. The soldiers can and are able to do their own selecting. We don't know anything to the discredit of Mr. Barnard, but we do know that the owners of buildings here refused to allow him to hold meetings owing to the reputation he was bringing with him from the Mainland. It is an old adage that a man is known by the company he keeps, and it is to be regretted that Mr. Barnard has fallen in such doubtful company. This self-appointed body of Socialists, etc., never selected Mr. Barnard because they liked him, but merely because they thought he could fool the intelligent returned soldier into supporting him, so that the Federated Labor Party could claim for themselves the strength the comrades of Barnard would give him. There is no doubt that quite a number of returned men are being fooled, but not sufficient to elect the artful dodgers' candidate.

I am, with thousands of others, satisfied that Dr. Tolmie can obtain for the returned man justice and fair consideration of his claims, that he will have the ear of the Government, and will give to the returned man full consideration of any claim he may have. Dr. Tolmie has a reputation that has not yet been disputed for honesty, frankness and big heartedness. He is sympathetic to all claims, and his record as a member for Victoria stands out so big that it will never be dwarfed by the mud slinging of this famous committee comprising amongst its body two soldiers, one of whom at least never saw France.

The Federated Labor Party

Sir,—I read your article, "The Genesis of It," with particular interest. I was one present at the birth of this Federated Labor (so-called) Party, and would like if you will allow me to state my views regarding this trick of a certain clique, to use their unscrupulous ends to fool the workers. We hear a great deal from these men about the corrupt press, and how it is cooked. Mr. Editor, your article certainly is not "cooked" I well know. As a supporter of the organized labor movement I have fought many of their battles and after some years of experience in it I wish to state that I believe there is no movement that has done more in the interests of the people than the organized labor movement. It would have done more had it not been for the element that hangs like a leech upon its skirts, retarding its good work, bringing it into ridicule by statements, tricky methods and specious promises, and, Mr. Editor, there is no better place to sow the seed than amongst dissatisfied men, or disappointed men and women. God knows the world requires improvements, and one wonders how in the 20th Century there can be such misery and want.

To hear these men talk it is all the fault of the capitalist, the exacting Governments, the subsidized press, even the church, and they follow it up with the claim, like the quack doctor, they and only they have the panacea for all. Give them the power and they can arrange to so hold the world in check, all will be satisfied. They forget, sir, that there are other men who think, who read, and study mankind, men kind of heart, full of sympathy and prepared for sacrifice, even amongst the Liberals and Conservatives. Who are these men. I have been mixed amongst them day in and day out. I have listened to their speeches and arguments and, Mr. Editor, I have watched their actions in private life. I wish it to be understood I am not writing this letter with any feeling or heat, but simply that I consider it my duty as a British subject. It is unusual for me to use such words as I am using against those who oppose my views, as any one who, having read the many letters I have written through your columns, can judge.

The world is a mixture. We meet all classes; I have never yet met the perfect man; and what I want to say is, that these men who pose as having the power to bring on the salvation of the human race are simply "Human." Would you believe it, Mr. Editor, they do exactly as the ordinary man would do if the opportunity came, prepared to take advantage of similar opportunities, ever ready for the easy job, and just as tricky and in some cases prepared to take the pay of their employer and use all manner of means to evade a just return in work. Why, if placed in power, they would rule with less fairness than the ordinary Liberal or Conservative. Cross them, or attempt to disprove their stand, then God help you if by any means they can get you (some of these men have control of that recall). These men are in many cases late members of such bodies as the Socialist, Social Democrats, etc. (bodies that I have a respect for and the genuine members of same), who want none of them. They have crept into the organized labor movements or have been labor men who have listened to these specious arguments. They are full of patience and cunning, clever to a degree in their methods. They plead for the genuine labor man to attend their meetings, but they must not attempt to argue the question or it is made so hot for them that the member of the union who attends gets disgusted and stays away. This is what they want, and that is why they get into power; and bring into disrepute the genuine labor movement. The last election proves this, by the number of votes recorded. The action of the Trades and Labor Congress and the American Federation of Labor in dealing with these men and the unions they control gives evidence of it.

If they formed a body and got collected together in one room, there would soon be disorder, for if three agreed the next three would disagree with them. Some have read the first three chapters of Karl Marx, or some such book, and then formed their own conclusions regarding the rest of the book. Some have never read a word and they know more than the other fellow. These men get their living by and through their connection with the labor movement, they carry a card and wear a button, yet they at heart hate the labor movement and to them all the members are fools. The labor movement has less to fear from the non-union men who are outside than those specious hangers on who are on the inside.

Should labor be represented in Parliament and cities? It is silly to argue the question. Why are they not there? The real labor movement could, by following out its constitutions and principles, if allowed (a strange word to use, yet true) to convince the public of the justness of their stand and through public confidence could get there, but it is this (or has been in the past) octupus within its ranks that has stopped it.

They will tell you they are not office seekers and pretended surprise can be seen on their face when elected, and yet how strange it is, Mr. Editor, they always get their talk about manipulation of the ballot box, that is not in it. In some cases with these men there is, and should be, only one constitution, their own. They forget that this world is evolutionary (I am wrong, they know but prefer placing the letter "R" in front of the word to suit their own purpose), and by a gradual working out of development of minds and character the world will become better; by education, not force.

The Federated Labor (so-called) Party's birth was at Vancouver annual convention of the B. C. Federation of Labor, 1918, I attended as a delegate; when the question came on the floor of the convention. The real trades unions, although prepared to give this a trial, saw the trick behind it, expressed the opinion that it would in a short time become what it has become, simply a place for a number of soap box orators to voice their mad ideas and schemes under the guise of labor and using labor as a tool if possible for their aspirations.

There is sufficient evidence to prove this because, although the attempt was made, not a man in the organized labor movement would answer the call. They played on the returned soldier and also failed. They were not mad enough (only one) to place themselves in the hands of the Federated Labor (so-called) Party, and it was quite natural to go to New Westminster. The returned soldier must know that if it had been left to the majority of the men I know connected with this movement, they would either have been buried in France or become prisoners of the Germans.

What is the B.C. Federation of Labor? Evidence again proves what I now state. It was wrongly named in the first instance. It should have been called B. C. Federatoin of Disgruntled, Disappointed Socialists and Extremsits. Why, very few of the labor organizations know that under its constitution its platform is Socialism; it is not nor ever has been the real voice of organized labor.

It was the birthplace of the O. B. U., but the promotors of this were smart enough to take it to Calgary, knowing that British Columbia unionists would sign its death warrant.

All these happenings are good for organized labor. They now know these men and it is to be hoped that the few that are still carrying a union card will receive notice to quit; and at the next general election a clean-cut labor man and member of some organization will come out and the public and members of the movement, be they Liberal or Conservative now, will support him, and I believe that whatever party is in power the will then get their respect because real labor asks for nothing unfair, unjust or unconstitutional. I hope that the real element of labor, having sufficient knowledge of the truth of my statements, will, however, support Dr. Tolmie in their own interest, if only to sign the death warrant to the octopus that has so long clung to their own movement.

Who Was Swedenborg.

Sir,—I was interested in a letter which appeared in your columns, one day last week referring to Swedenborg and beg to be allowed to reply in brief to the query, "Who was Swedenborg?"

Emanuel Swedenborg was a religious enthusiast belonging to the class called "Mystics."

The extreme piety of his father—who was a very learned man, professor of theology at Upsala and also Bishop of Vera, descended to the son, who was born at Stockholm, Sweden, in 1688.

Emanuel had a brilliant intellect, and in addition to a very thorough education, being deeply versed in Latin, Greek and Hebrew. He graduated at the age of 18 from the University of Upsala. He became a devoted student of natural science and was made famous by his invention of machines for the transportation overland of boats and galleys, but in addition to this very practical side of his nature, his thorough knowledge of mathematics, he studied deeply spiritual and philosophical subjects, and became widely known for his alleged discoveries in metaphysics and spiritual science.

His remarkable theories regarding the relation between the finite and infinite, the problem, which he believed he had solved, as to the nature of Soul or Spirit, his claims to supernatural inspiration and the opening to him of heavenly visions, were considered untenable by those of materialistic thought, but amongst the spiritually illumined he had and has a large following, believing him to have been an especially gifted seer and prophet, second not even to St. John, the divine, to whose spiritual experiences his own may be likened.

He led a very simple life, but one of immaculate purity, and won the deep love and respect of all who knew him, even of those who did not believe in the truth of his claims, and it is said that these did not ridicule him.

FIFTY YEARS AGO TODAY

(From The British Colonist, October 26, 1869)

Marriage—St. Paul's Church, Esquimalt, was thronged yesterday with ladies and gentlemen, gathered to witness the nuptials of Staff-Commander Pender, R.N., and Miss Amy Maria Gribbell. The ceremony was performed by Ven. Archdeacon Reece, assisted by Rev. Frank B. Gribbell, brother of the bride.

The Big Bend Steamer Sunk—By way of Walla Walla we learn that the steamer [illegible] has been sunk on the Columbia River, some 200 miles above Colville. She was running down stream when she struck a rock, and after running some four miles was discovered to be in sinking condition, when she was beached in shallow water. She now lies with her machinery submerged in water.

Return Match—The return match between the Charybdis and Victoria Team will be shot on Thursday next at the range at Esquimalt.

UNITED FARMERS' PLAN ATTACKED

Ministers Meighen and Robertson in Speeches at Woodstock, N.B., Show Dangers of Class Move in Politics

WINNIPEG, Oct. 25.—A special to The Free Press from Woodstock, N.B., says:

The United Farmers' political movement in Canada is "an endeavor to stir up class against class and to disseminate selfish unrest and dissatisfaction at a time when the united efforts of the people of the Dominion are most essential to the future prosperity of the country."

Thus it was characterized by Hon. Arthur Meighen, Minister of the Interior, at the Hayden-Gibbons theatre last night, in the first pronouncement that has been made by a member of the Federal Government since the United Farmers succeeded in electing the largest number of candidates in recent provincial elections in Ontario.

He was addressing an audience which almost completely filled the same auditorium in which the United Farmers had held a meeting the previous evening in the Carleton-Victoria by-election campaign in Eastern Canada. Hon. Mr. Meighen said the United Farmers had done a lot of good work, which would be for the benefit of themselves and the country, and that there is an ample sphere for them to do good in their co-operation work, just as labor had its sphere of endeavor, but he did not believe Canada should have occupational politics.

"If there is to be class politics," asked the minister, "where is it going to end."

If there was to be a political party of farmers, it would not be unnatural for the rest of the country to combine as a party against the farmers, and he asked his audience to consider whether that would be in the best interests of Canada.

Hon. Mr. Robertson was given a most hearty reception. He dealt briefly with what the Department of Labor had accomplished. He added that it was utterly impracticable and impossible for any one class, farmers or anybody else, to undertake to carry on Government for the benefit of themselves as one, as every citizen must have equal rights. Any Government that attempts to carry on the administration of affairs of a country for one class cannot survive.

JAMES BAY CLUB WILL MEET TOMORROW NIGHT

IDENTITY OF BOTH TO BE PRESERVED

Units That Served in France Should Be Represented in Canadian Militia, Officers Represent to Commission

That units that served in France should be represented in the Canadian Militia and established in conjunction with the original Militia regiments in any scheme of reorganization of the Militia was the consensus of opinion at the conference held yesterday morning at the Drill Hall. Officers representing both the active Militia units and overseas battalions that went from Victoria were present to meet the commission of four generals sent out here from Ottawa for the purpose of investigating the question, and the discussion was of such informal character that every person felt free to express his views. So far as could be gathered, the opinions of the visiting officials accorded with those of the officers here who were invited to the conference, and when the commission report on the matter they will, no doubt, try to take into consideration the local conditions and local needs. Incidentally the conference, although numerically smaller, brought forward suggestions very much along the same lines as those offered at a similar conference held earlier in the week in Vancouver, at which between forty and fifty officers were present in addition to the members of the commission.

Representing the 5th Regiment were Brig.-Gen. R. P. Clark, C.M.G., D.S.O., M.C. (of the 4th Division), Lieut.-Col. R. Angus, Lieut.-Col. Winsby (47th Battalion), Lieut.-Col. "Chester" Harris (artillery); representing the 50th, Lieut.-Col. Lorne Ross, D.S.O. (67th Battalion) and Major D. M. Roberts; 88th Regiment, Lieut.-Col. Rous Cullin and Lieut.-Col. Hugh Major (7th Battalion) and Capt. J. W. Ambery; 2nd C.M.R., Lieut.-Col. G. Chalmers Johnston, D.S.O., M.C., Lieut.-Col. W. W. Foster, D.S.O., M.C., and Major Bapty; 48th, C.E.F., Lieut.-Col. W. J. H. Holmes, Capt. Aiken, and, in civilian capacity as former G.O.C.'s of this Military District, Colonel E. G. Prior and Colonel Holmes. Major-General Leckie, C.M.G., was present at the conference, as he was in Vancouver also, in his capacity as G.O.C. of Military District No. 11.

The matter of actual strength of the various Militia units under any scheme of reorganization was not discussed, and only very brief reference was made to the number of battalions that might be established in each place. In connection with this latter matter it is not improbable that the point will be worked out on a basis of the population.

Sentiment and the practical will go hand in hand. The returned men will take a much more active interest when the name of the overseas unit is associated with the Militia unit, just as the various veterans' organizations have made their special individual appeal through bearing the name of the overseas battalion.

The members of the commission which sat at the conference yesterday morning all left last night for the Mainland, en route for the East. They are Major.-Gen. Sir William Otter, K.C.B., C.V.O., Major-Gen. Sir Edward Morrison, K.C.B., D.S.O., Major-Gen. W. G. Gwatkin, C.B, C.M.G., and Brig.-Gen. A. McNaughton, C.M.G., D.S.O.

Former Nanaimo Ring Artist Was Reported Killed After Encounter With the Huns

VANCOUVER, Oct. 25.—Greeted by his friends as one returned from the grave, Rod Standen, a former well-known Nanaimo boxer, is in the city on his way to Australia after several years' service in the army overseas.

In the early years of the war Standen was reported as killed in action after a gallant part he had performed in an encounter on the western front. Australian and British Columbia newspapers carried accounts of his death, and Standen has had the opportunity of reading his obituary notice in a score of papers.

Many old friends were pleased to meet the pouular athlete today. He will leave on the afternoon boat to spend a few days at Nanaimo before sailing for Australia.

SOUTH PARK WINS

School Football Club Has Yet to Lose a Game—Burnside Makes Plucky Fight

In their public schools football league game South Park School won from Burnside School by three goals to nil. South Park School has so far been successful in all its games, while the Burnside School has as yet failed to achieve a win. However, there is an improvement all round shown by the latter and the spirit and dash that they put into their games should be an example to other teams which at present appear to win easily, and will most assuredly bring them success as the football season advances.

Athletic Association Dance

LADYSMITH, Oct. 25.—A dance given under the auspices of the Ladysmith Athletic Association was held in the Association's Hall on Friday evening. A large number attended and a good time was enjoyed by all. The music was supplied by Mr. R. Robertson's orchestra of Nanaimo, and was commented upon by all present.

The Minister of Agriculture

Two years ago when the Unionists of Victoria sought out Mr. Tolmie, persuaded him to be a candidate in the war contest, and afterward gave him an election which was almost unanimous, they did not think that they were introducing to parlimentary life a future minister of the crown. It was well known that Mr. Tolmie was not then eager to go to Ottawa. He was willing to continue his service to British Columbia farmers, and to contribute what he could to the progress and prosperity of his own Province. But he has now been called to a much wider field of useful activity, as minister of agriculture for the Dominion, and is bringing to his department an expert knowledge somewhat wider than that of any of his predecessors, though three of these were also practical farmers.

It is a compliment to the farmers and fruitgrowers of this Province that two ministers of agriculture have been found in the delegations from British Columbia, and Mr. Tolmie is especially honored, inasmuch as he has reached promotion in the second year after entering Parliament.

Because of this promotion Mr. Tolmie is a candidate for re-election in Victoria, while if he had not been called to office he would have remained in undisturbed possession of his seat. In a general election he would naturally expect opposition, and he will not complain of it now, though in by-elections it is more common to allow the minister of an unopposed return. The regular opposition is not bringing forward a candidate, but Mr. Tolmie is opposed by a candidate from another city running in the labor interests. Those who think Mr. Tolmie personally worthy, who do not wish to see his work cut short at the beginning and another constituency added to elect a minister, will naturally give him their support, leaving party struggles to be fought out in the general election. Apparently this is not to be a party contest, or a party victory, whoever is successful. But the citizens of Victoria have in Mr. Tolmie a good representative, who is called to a high position, and it will be a great surprise if they do not retain him.—Vancouver Province.

St. John's Hall Dance—The regular weekly dance at St. John's Hall last night, drew a number of enthusiasts, and dancing was carried on until a late hour in the evening. A number of popular selections were excellently rendered by the orchestra, and the dancing was enjoyed by all. Some 150 were present at the entertainment, which is growing in popularity each succeeding week.

Flew to Ganges—Taking advantage of the clear and sharp weather, the Aerial League dispatched the Pathfinder II. to Ganges last Friday, leaving the city at 2 p.m. the machine bucked a head wind there, arriving in some thirty minutes. Numerous passengers were taken up, and the machine returned at six in the evening, fair wind following, in twenty minutes. Mr. W. H. Brown piloted the Curtiss, making the trip solo flying.

Service at St. John's—This evening, at St. John's Church, there will be another of the "Services of Praise." Choral evensong forms the first part of the service, and then a selected number of the well-known hymns, especially chosen for the purpose of congregational singing, are sung. The organist, Mr. G. Jennings Burnett, will also give several organ numbers, including the well-known hymn, "Rock of Ages," with variations.

Made Address—"A Plea for a Larger Consideration of the Christian Ministry as a Life Vocation" was the subject of the address which the Very Rev. Dean Quainton gave at a meeting held last week in St. Paul's Schoolroom, Vancouver, in connection with St. Mark's Theological Hall. During the war St. Mark's refused to take as students any men eligible for military service, and as a consequence its numbers fell to a very low ebb. Now, however, there are evidences that the institution will regain its former place in fitting men for the ministry. The Dean has now returned to the city.

Subject to Own Conscience—Referring to a letter which appeared in yesterday's Colonist, and in which was set forth part of the alleged constitution of the Reichstag, Colonel Appleton refers The Colonist to an article which appeared in Current History (October), in which is set out in full the whole constitution of the German Republic. The Article (21) referred to by the correspondent, and misquoted yesterday by a Colonist correspondent, reads as follows: Article 21, under the heading "The Reichstag," "The delegates are representatives of the whole people. They are subject only to their own conscience, and shall not be bound by any orders.

W.A. to G.W.V.A. Meeting—The W.A. to the G.W.V.A held its general meeting in the rooms, 512 Fort Street, on Friday evening last, Mrs. Ball, president, in the chair. There was a good attendance. Mrs. Hunt reported on the recent tag day, the net proceeds of which amounted to $859.32. It was proposed and carried that a cheque for $1,000 be handed to the G.W.V.A. The drawing for the winning ticket in the raffle for the Lusitania model was postponed until Monday's social, as all the tickets had not been turned in. A concert will be held at Craigdarroch Hospital on October 31, members to take refreshments. On December 9 a sale of plain and fancy work and of home cooking will be held in the rooms.

K. of C. Hut—The winners of the prizes for the Five Hundred, held at the K. of C. Hut on Friday evening were: Mrs. Rossiter, Mrs. Palfrey, Mr. F. H. Saunders, and Mr. W. D. Johnson. The dancing proved highly popular, being kept going until midnight. Mr. Fred Broughton and his brother kindly volunteered their services for the dance music, which was all that could be desired. The "Hut" is now filled practically to capacity, the number of residents averaging 115, while the number of meals served daily averages about 325. In fact so big is the demand for rooms that the committee is preparing to open the hitherto unoccupied fourth floor of the building with a view to providing further accommodation.

Cyclist Injured—Ernest Harris, of 1347 Vining Street, while cycling yesterday afternoon on that thoroughfare, was run down by a motor car, the driver of which did not stop and whose identity is unknown. The lad was injured about the shoulder but not seriously.

Wanted at Kamloops—Harold L. Kemp, wanted at Kamloops on a charge of the theft of a cheque for $12 which he fraudulently uttered and $5 in cash, the property of Alexander Mann, was arrested here last night by Detectives Macdonald and Siciliano. He will be held pending the arrival of an officer from Kamloops, to which point he will be taken back for trial.

Women Thrown From Motor—Skidding in a quantity of loose gravel on the highway near the Colwood Hotel, a motor car owned by the Island Auto Livery and driven by Robert Grice, of 2019 Vancouver Street, was overturned last night at 8:30 o'clock. In the car were Mrs. and Miss Murray and Miss Chambers, of this city, who had been visiting friends at the Quarantine Station and were on their way back to the city. With the exception of Miss Cameron, who sustained cuts and bruises about the head and arms, the occupants of the car escaped without injury. Miss Cameron was not seriously injured.

Organ and Violin Recital Tonight—With all services commencing according to the new time schedule, an organ and violin recital will be given in Christ Church Cathedral tonight immediately after church evensong at 7:30. The recital, which is to be largely from the works of Handel, will be contributed by Dr. J. E. Watson, the Cathedral organist, and Miss Mary Izard, violinist, assisted by Mrs. Alsdorf, mezzo-soprano, and Mr. E. Clarke, bass. The preacher at the service preceding the recital will be the Rev. G. A. Wells, C.M.G., who has recently returned from service overseas as chaplain to the Canadian forces. Dean Quainton will preach at the eleven o'clock service (new time).

Dance at Alexandra—Plans for the dance to be held by the Navy League Chapter, I.O.D.E., at the Alexandra Club ballroom next Wednesday evening promise a delightful evening in store for patrons of the affair, the proceeds from which will enable the chapter to repeat this year the annual Christmas entertainment given the children of men in the naval service. One of the features of the affair which should be extremely popular will be on exhibition of the latest dance steps, as seen in New York, by Mr. McCredy and his partner, Miss Richards, who have studied them in the great metropolis. Heaton's orchestra will furnish the music for the dance programme, which will begin at nine o'clock, continuing until one.

Motor Thieves Caught—Within an hour after they stole the motor car belonging to Mr. Crowe, of 366 Earsman Street, from in front of the Royal Victoria Theatre, E. S. Springett and P. E. Allan were arrested by Detectives Macdonald and Siciliano, in the downtown portion of the city, as they were driving the stolen car. Taken to police headquarters, Springett was found to be in possession of a loaded revolver. The pair were booked on a charge of the theft of the car, and Springett was also charged with having a concealed weapon in his possession. The pair will be arraigned in the police court tomorrow morning. Motor thefts of late have been frequent, but the difficulty in catching the thieves has been so great that in most cases they went undetected.

CHAPTER PLANS FOR ELABORATE FUNCTION

"J" Unit Chapter Will Hold Bazaar and Cabaret Dance at Empress on November 5—Many Prominent Patrons

Elaborate arrangements are under way for the bazaar and cabaret to be held by the "J" Unit Chapter, I.O.D.E., at the Empress Hotel on Wednesday, November 5. Lady Barnard will formally open the bazaar in the ballroom at 3 o'clock, and the cabaret dance, which will be held in the evening under Mrs. Harry Pooley's direction, will have the patronage of His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and Lady Barnard; Gen. R. G. E. Leckie, C.M.G., G.O.C.; Brig.-Gen. and Mrs. R. P. Clarke, Major and Mrs. O'Hagan, Capt. E. H. Martin, C.M.G., R.N., and Dr. and Mrs. S. F. Tolmie.

Several well-known artists will assist Mrs. Pooley with the programme, contributing vocal and dance numbers interspersed through the programme of latest dance music furnished by Mr. Lou Turner's orchestra, which will commence at 9 o'clock, continuing until 1. Gen. Leckie has given all ex-service men permission to wear their uniform, and as there is always a large representation of both branches at the dances of the chapter, there will undoubtedly be many in naval and military dress. Reservations for the cabaret tables should be made by communication with phone No. 4311R.

NO TRACE OF JEWELRY

Chinese Prisoner Held for Theft Turns King's Evidence—Police Seek for Valuables

With two Chinese behind the bars charged with the theft of diamond rings and other jewelry valued at $3,910, the property of Alfred Alexander, chauffeur, proprietor of a rooming house at 1304 Store Street, the police are bending every energy to locating a third Chinaman, Who Quo, who, they believe, is in possession of the missing jewelry which has not as yet been secured.

One of the prisoners, Wah Boo, has turned King's evidence, and City Prosecutor Harrison informed the court when the other prisoner, Chow Ching, was arraigned yesterday morning, it would be proved that Wah Boo, employed by Alexander, informed the other two of the fact of the jewelry on the premises. They urged upon him to secure it and promised to provide him with a drug to be used to incapacitate the owner while the theft was being effected. This drug never appeared but Wah Boo later secured the key to the trunk in which the jewelry was deposited, and took the box containing the valuables. He handed it to Chow Ching. Later Wah Boo asked Chow Ching to be allowed to see the jewelry, but he was put off with some excuse. Then Wah Boo and Chow Ching were arrested, and Wah Quo, who had told them he had put the jewelry in a safe place. The case will be resumed next Wednesday.

Mrs. R. S. Day, provincial vice-president of the National Council of Women, is leaving on the afternoon boat for the Mainland to attend a special meeting of the New Westminster Council of Women on Monday afternoon and an important meeting of the provincial executive, which is being held in Vancouver on Tuesday. Mrs. J. L. Hatfield (nee Florence Hall) held a reception at the home of Mrs. Ainsley Hatfield, Port Greville, Nova Scotia, on Thursday, October 2nd, at which a large number of guests were present. Mrs. Hatfield looked very charming in her bridal gown of white satin and georgette with pearl trimmings. Mrs. (Capt.) J. R. Pettis assisted the hostess and bride to receive. Misses Ruth Hatfield and Jessie F. Pettis assisted in serving. Freda Wilson made a very pretty little door girl. The beautiful display of presents showed the popularity of the bride in Victoria, B.C., and Port Greville.

Mr. R. D. Kenning, representative for E. G. Prior & Co., Ltd., is spending a day in the city, having just had an extended trip through the interior of the province.

Mr. U. N. Runnalls, of this city, is spending a few days in Vancouver.

Mrs. James Baker, 714 Discovery Street, entertained on Friday afternoon at a tea in honor of her friend, Mrs. J. R. Clark, who is leaving shortly to make her home in Vancouver. The drawing-room was very prettily decorated with pink chrysanthemums, while the effective color scheme in the dining-room was achieved by the use of golden chrysanthemums on the tea tables and about the room. The hostess was assisted in serving tea by Mrs. Ernie Eve.

Word comes from London that the King and Queen will return the state visit that President Poincare is to pay to London next month in the Spring of next year, when they will stay in Paris for a few days. The details of the visit are likely to be settled while the French president is at Buckingham Palace.

Miss Lawson, who is visiting Mrs. Symons, Haro Street, Vancouver, was the guest of honor at a tea given on Thursday afternoon by her hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. Barrett, whose marriage took place in New Westminster last week, spent a few days in this city en route to Seattle, where they will make their home. The bride was formerly Miss Anna Louise Walsh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Walsh, of Vancouver.

Calgary Losing Gas Supply

CALGARY, Oct. 25.—The gas pressure in the city is going down, and the city commissioners have ordered that all buildings under their control shall be changed from gas to coal. This order was issued Friday, when it was found that the continued cold weather has caused a weakening of the gas pressure. A large number of the larger buildings in the city have been changed over within the past few weeks to coal.

TURF COMMISSIONER HOLDS LAST SITTING

Dr. Rutherford Hears Views of Local Men Interested in Horse Racing and Other People's Morals

Dr. J. W. Rutherford, C.M.G., Dominion Government commissioner to investigate turf conditions in Canada, held his concluding session in the City Hall here yesterday morning.

Mr. W. J. Taylor, K.C., spoke in favor of Government control of race meets with surplus profits to be devoted to a patriotic cause. He was not in favor of bookmakers, but saw no objection to the betting machines, and he thought proper Government supervision would eliminate certain evils from the race track.

Alderman Sangster, secretary of the B. C. Agricultural Society, did not appear to give evidence, but will be asked to give it in writing later.

Rev. Dr. Clay spoke of the serious effect of a race meet in Victoria on the morals of the community, but said the Social Service Commission was not opposed to legitimate racing with attendant gambling evils. A resolution was put in by the Presbyterian Synod asking the Government to prohibit the illegal conduct of race meets and a written statement will be accepted from Mr. C. Harris.

Other witnesses heard were Messrs. B. Leighton, J. McCleave, W. H. Cochrane and Deputy Attorney-General Johnson.

SOLICITOR GENERAL ADVISES NO CHANGE

Hon. Hugh Guthrie Answers Dr. Tolmie's Request for Change in Polling Hours

In answer to a request that the hours of closing the poll on Monday should be changed to 7 p.m. instead of 5 p.m., Hon. Dr. Tolmie yesterday received from Hon. H. Guthrie, Solicitor-General, Ottawa, the following telegram:

"In my opinion Section 136 of the Dominion Elections Act govern hours of polling from 9 o'clock in the forenoon to 5 o'clock in the afternoon. The War Time Elections Act made special provisions extending the hours of polling in cities, but the Act does not apply to a by-election, and there is no way of extending the time of polling beyond that mentioned in Section 136. Employers must give every one at least one hour besides the noon hour without deduction of pay."

Taming My Husband

By Kathleen Fox

XL.—A MAN WHO WOULD HAVE HIS WAY

I gasped. "Mother Hayes," I cried, "I should love to be like you, for you are wonderful!"

She raised her hand in protest.

"No, child, I am not wonderful and have not been, but I am going to do you a service of which you may make a wonderful thing if you will."

I felt that a close bond of sympathy suddenly had united us two women who had married Gordon and Crittenden Hayes, father and son. I put my strong, young arms about Mother Hayes and drew her down on my shoulder, then listened to her story.

"As you have observed, Bess, dear," she continued, "Crittenden is like his father. And because I know his father and am not entirely unacquainted with Crittenden, I want to beg of you not to be a 'yes, dear' wife. If you do," she warned, "you will live as I have lived and will wait throughout the years, as I have waited, to tell the wife of your son what I am now telling you. Time would prove I am right, but I don't want you to wait for that. I love you so that I want you to be equipped at the beginning while you are young and while Crittenden is not yet hardened.

"No man in all Kentucky is more honorable that Colonel Hayes, Bess. No man cauld be a better citizen. He is upright, generous, charitable, industrious, proud and dependable. But —," and she threw her slim hands palm outward in an eloquent gesture —"he'd sink the county or have his way!"

I nodded. I was thinking of Crittenden.

"Oh, I love Gordon," she insisted, and I knew that she did. "You must realize that. He has been good to me —according to his standards and measurements. He has heaped gifts upon me, we have traveled, and he still makes wonderful love to me. But there are few things I have done as his wife that I planned, that I elected to do. There were few things apart from my personal belongings that I had as I wanted. All, all—everything has been ordered like Colonel Hayes wanted it.

"That, daughter, has been hard, of course. It would be hard for you, too, hard for any woman. I can see that. And you are young, you are at the beginning of your life with Crittenden. Don't, don't, don't let it happen!"

I patted her shoulder to reassure her, to give her a silent promise that I should not let it happen. She smiled and resumed her story.

"All that, daughter, was due to the fact that early in our married life I became a 'yes, dear' wife. I loved Colonel Hayes and was anxious to please him. I agreed with him whether I thought as he did or not, because, when I disagreed with him, I found it displeased him greatly. So, little by little, I found myself saying 'yes, dear,' and allowing him to have his way in all things. Oh, dear, if I had only known then what I came to know later.

"That was wrong. It will be wrong if you do that with Crittenden. And I know he will want his own way even as his father wanted his way before him. Don't let him have his way all the time.

"I'm not timid by nature," she defended herself, proudly. "I am of revolutionary stock, but I have allowed my personality to warp just because Colonel Hayes wanted his way and because—because I learned how easy it was to say 'yes, dear,' and let him have it.

"So now he takes it as a matter of course that my thoughts are to coincide with his own, that I am to acquiesce in everything he suggests. And, to be frank, I don't blame him half so much as I blame myself. It might have been easy at first for me to assert myself instead of humbly acknowledging he was my lord and master and expressing that allegiance in the words that have helped make an unwelcome and now unalterable condition—'yes, dear.'

"And as to Crittenden, my handsome son that I love so. Why, he defied me from the time he was learning to walk."

"I imagine he might have," I said.

"No, I never was able to conquer that rascal," she smiled. "I tried many times and stung his bare legs with many a whipping, but he was still rebellious when it was all over, and I would be crying harder than he was. Every day I saw him grow more like his father. It is remarkable, I think, for, except as to age, they are almost doubles.

"They clashed many times, father and son. But Gordon did not master him either," she reflected. "And yet, in spite of their clashes, which still come now and then, they adore each other, except—except," and she laughed and I with her when she finished, "except when one wants it one way and the other another."

TUESDAY—CONFIDING IN MOTHER HAYES.

WEDDINGS

Swain-Bremble

A marriage of interest to a wide circle of friends of the bride and groom took place on Thursday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, when Miss Lillian Bremble, daughter of Mrs. M. Bremble, 1131 Mears Street, became the bride of Mr. George Hilton Swain, second son of Mrs. Swain, 2331 Cranmore Road. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Knight, the bridal party standing beneath an arch of evergreens effectively combined with Autumn foliage and flowers. The bride, who was given away by Mr. H. M. Wright, looked very charming in her gown of white georgette crepe and baronette satin, with which was worn the conventional veil of filmy tulle, caught in coronet effect with a wreath of orange blossoms. Her bouquet was a shower of beautiful roses. She was attended by her sister, Miss Ella Bremble, who wore a pretty bridesmaid's frock of pale pink taffeta and carried a bouquet of pale pink carnations. Mr. C. F. Swain supported the groom. Only immediate relatives and intimate friends witnessed the ceremony and attended the reception afterwards to extend their felicitations to the happy pair. The bride's mother assisted them in receiving, wearing an attractive frock of taupe crepe de chene. A dainty supper was served in the dining room, the table being effectively arranged, with a kewpie bride and groom and their attendants holding the central place of honor in the decorative scheme. While the bride was donning her traveling costume of seal-trimmed brown broadcloth, with brown velvet hat, the guests seized the opportunity to admire the many handsome presents showered upon the young couple. Mr. and Mrs. Swain left on the 4:30 boat for Seattle and Portland, where the honeymoon is being spent. On their return they will make their home at 2331 Cranmore Road.

Mrs. Seldon Humphreys, nee Miss Kathleen Dunsmuir, who will assist in the programme of variety numbers arranged by Mrs. R. H. Pooley in connection with the "J" Unit cabaret on November 5.

Plows-Martinson

Last Tuesday at Breadalbane, the minister's residence, the Rev. Dr. Campbell celebrated the marriage of Mr. Robert Hunter Plows and Miss Clara Martinson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Martinson, all of Victoria. After the honeymoon trip Mr. and Mrs. Plows will make their home in this city.

Lensbery-Woolverton

At Breadalbane, 1135 Fort Street, on Thursday evening, the marriage of Mr. Frederick William Lensbery and Miss Henrietta Augusta Woolverton was celebrated in the presence of a few friends, by Captain the Rev. Dr. Campbell. After spending a honeymoon in Victoria Mr. and Mrs. Lensbery will return to Sequim, Wash., U. S. A., where they will reside.

GIRL GUIDE NOTES

At the drill on Friday three recruits were enrolled as Tenderfoot Guides in No. 3 (Lady Douglas) Company. Kathleen Davis joined the Maple Patrol and Elva Mooney and Betty Gloima joined the Clover Patrol.

As Hallowe'en falls on Friday, the regular drill night, the Victoria Girl Guides will hold a masquerade, to which each Guide may bring three friends. Prizes will be awarded for the best costume, and the girls are anticipating an enjoyable evening.

PROVES THE ONE BEST BURLESQUE FEATURE

That Famous Barnard Undated Resignation and the Self-Constituted Political Junta Controlling Adds Humor

Mr. T. A. Barnard, of New Westminster, the candidate of the Federated Labor Party in the present Federal by-election contest which will be decided at the polls tomorrow, has altered the designation under which he has been appearing before the electors of the City since the inauguration of his campaign.

Up to yesterday Mr. Barnard was advertised as the "Soldier-Labor" candidate. Yesterday, however, his advertisements bore the prefix "Labor-Soldier," the fact of his having been a soldier being subordinated to his labor proclivities.

Just why the change has been made was not explained, but in view of the fact that the great bulk of his support is alleged to come from the labor element, especially the radical section, the while the soldier element has been holding aloof from him, may be the reason for the change.

Comment on the street concerning Mr. Barnard's action in allowing himself to be placed under the complete control and dictation of some twenty-nine individuals who, should he be elected tomorrow, will be the sole controlling force over his future career in the House of Commonse as member for the capital city of British Columbia, is anything but complimentary to Mr. Barnard.

In fact the move is regarded as the one big burlesque feature of the campaign. The effort of the opposition candidate to make it appear that the individuals in whose hands he had placed his political conscience are representative of the electors of Victoria is regarded as a joke. The twenty-nine individuals named are those whose names appeared upon Mr. Barnard's nomination papers to which they were subscribed, in no wise as representative of any section in the community, but purely in their own individual capacity. Not a single person whose name figures in this political junta has been authorized to represent any organization or body, either public or private. The returned soldiers organization for instance, resent Mr. Barnard's suggestion that Messrs. McLernan or Duggan have any right to be termed representatives of the returned soldiers so far as passing upon the future political activities of the candidate is concerned. While they ,in their individual and personal capacities, had a perfect right to appear on Mr. Barnard's nomination papers, it is only to that extent that they can claim any status, say many returned men.

In his action in placing himself under the thumb of the twenty-nine, Mr. Barnard introduced something novel in political history. His effort to explain his action by saying it is in line with the system of recall whch he advocates for this country, is not treated seriously by the average elector in the city, who argues that while there may be something to be said of a recall system that gives scope for action by a substantial section of the electors by whom a candidate has been elected, the idea that any body of two dozen or a little over, should exercise the political thinking of a community of some forty thousand or more people, is a distinct descent from the sublime to the ridiculous.

At no time during his appeal to the electors has Mr. Barnard seen fit to make a full explanation of the reasons for his course in regard to his now famous undated resignation.

With reference to the effort being made by the Barnard supporters to make it appear that certain old-time political elements are managing his campaign, Hon. Dr. Tolmie yesterday issued a statement absolutely denying the insinuation. He says:

"My campaign manager is Joshua Kingham. Alderman Sangster is honorary secretary. The statement that anyone else is manager, or in charge is incorrect. These two men are in sole charge of the campaign and have not called in and have nothing to do with any former political organization or managers. They have their own organization only for this election, and its members are all prominent Victorians, the list of whose names are open to all."

Insinuations made by some supporters of Mr. Barnard concerning Dr. Tolmie's war record brings forth the rejoinder from the Minister's friends that his record has been one of exceptional service and value at a time when men of his trained ability and experience were imperatively required. His work carried on in Canada was of the utmost service, infinitely more important, from the national standpoint, than had he been occupying any high office overseas. In this connection, the Minister's friends point out, Dr. Tolmie, when war broke out, was head of the Health of Animals Branch of the Department of Agriculture. Government veterinarians with experience in that line of work were very scarce and applications to enlist to go overseas were discouraged in every possible way because of the imperative necessity of having trained men at home who could protect the health of the livestock of this country and prevent disease. For instance, an outbreak of the dreaded foot and mouth disease would have prejudiced the entire meat supply of this country and seriously affected the supplies destined for the Allied armies. But every precaution was taken by the trained experts of the Department hefe in Canada to prevent an outbreak of contagious disease and the success achieved is a matter of record which proved the excellent work done by Dr. Tolmie and under his direction as head of his special department. Dr. Tolmie, too, organized the campaign in B. C. and elsewhere for greater production which throughout Canada produced such excellent results. As one of the prominent veterinarians Dr. Tolmie was requested by the Veterinary General to remain at his post in Canada and perform his war service by using his utmost efforts to protect the army food supply.

WARDS WIN OUT IN HARD PLAYED GAME

Great War Veterans Lost at Beacon Hill by 1-0—Goalkeepers Look on While the Teams Battle in Midfield

The tightest struggle of all yesterday's soccer fixtures was that between the North Wards and the G.W.V.A. at Beacon Hill, the Veterans were out to ring a few goals up on the Ward's hitherto unblemished record, but after having a hammer and tongs struggle were compelled to admit defeat by 1-0.

End to end play, marked by the speed of the Ward's wing forwards, was the main feature of this half, but Allen and Kroeger were in good form and these attacks came to nothing, and half time came with no score and little work for either goal keeper.

After a long interval the Wards rushed the ball down to Pendray, and from a scrimmage Petticrew scored an easy goal. From the face-off the Veterans forced the play in an effort to tie the score, but when the forward line did get reasonably near to Menzies, their poor shooting robbed them of their chances, and the game was going at a remarkably fast clip when the final whistle blew.

The teams were:

North Wards: Menzies; Taylor and Isbister; Baker, Dakers and Rickerson; McInnes, Wales, Petticrew, Johnny Cummins and Jim Cummins.

G.W.V.A: Pendray; Kroeger and Allen; Ackroyd, Charman and Robbins; Rudd, Kerr, Bartholomew and Forrest.

Referee, P. C. Payne.

FOUNDATION CLUB PLANS DANCE SERIES

Next of Popular Dance Series to Be Held on Wednesday Evening — Weekly Affairs Throughout Winter

At the recent meeting of the directors of the Foundation Organizations an ambitious programme of social events for the Winter months was launched. This will consist of a series of weekly dances which will be held each Wednesday at the clubhouse. Something new and attractive will mark each of these affairs and it is the intention of the directors to make the comfortable and commodious club rooms the scene of some brilliant social functions this season. Next Wednesday evening the feature of the dance will be a waltzing competition, the winners of which will receive handsome prizes.

Tentative arrangements are under way for the first annual ball of the Foundation Organizations to be held some time about the middle of November and it is the intention of the promoters to make this one of the principal social events of the year. Okard's orchestra will supply the music for Wednesday's dance and the club room floor, one of the best in the district, is receiving special attention. The judges of the waltzing competition will be Mrs. George Simpson, Bob Vipond and Lem Oliver.

WESTS MEET DEFEAT AT CENTRAL PARK

K. of C. Hut Men Play Brilliant Game—Wests Find League Newcomers Strong Contenders and Lose 2-0

A fine crowd gathered at the Central Park yesterday to witness the contest between the K of C. Huts and the Victoria Wests, and were well pleased with the game, which resulted in a 2-0 win for the K. of C.'s as a result of masterly combination work in the first half.

The first half was practically controlled by the Army Hut men, and after fifteen minutes a pretty massed attack staged by the whole forward line brought the ball through and Brass scored with a fast high shot which gave Shandley no chance to save.

The Wests seemed unable to get going, they lost the ball as soon as they got it, and after another fifteen minutes the K. of C.'s got another goal as a result of a penalty for hands, J. Allen netting the ball with a fine shot out of Shandley's reach.

The teams were:

K. of C. Hut—Shrimpton; Breadner and Shearman; Brown, J. Allen and Wright; Swinburne, G. Allen, Brass, McKinnon and Caskie.

Victoria Wests—Shandley; Whyte and Copas; Thomas, McKay and Okell; J. Sherratt, S. Sheratt, James, Youson and Mulcahy.

Referee—Pearson.

RUGBY GAMES WON BY LARGE MARGINS

Naval Cadets Inflict Defeat on Wanderers — V.I.A.A. Piled Up Big Score Over University School

The Rugby practice games played yesterday did not provide any very close contests. After the hard frost of the night before and the continued dry weather the ground was hardly in safe condition for a game and a number of players lost considerable bark from knees and elbows, although fortunately no more serious casualties occurred.

At Oak Bay the V.I.A.A. proved too heavy and fast for the University school fifteen, which is not at present as strong a side as the school usually is able to put in the field, although another month's practice is liable to work wonders. Their three-quarter line was decidedly weak, not having learned as yet to play together and being too much inclined to bunch instead of lining well out across the field. Their full back also will need a good deal of coaching and will have to develop a lot more snappiness in fielding the ball and gaining as much ground as is safely possible before getting in his kick. The forwards are a hard-working lot, though too light for the V.I.A.A. yesterday, and the school will no doubt be represented by a good fifteen men when the players have had more practice.

The V.I.A.A. showed that they will be strong contenders for the league honours and gave a good display in all departments of the game. Matson was especially brilliant as wing three-quarter and his speed and dodging ability was too much for the opposing backs on numerous occasions. Wilson and Cowan also did excellently and Lewis is a decided acquisition in their scrum formation. The final score was 32 to 6, (4 goals and 4 tries to 2 tries) Matson scored three times, Cowan twice, Lewis, Wilson and Grubb once each, Honeychurch kicking the goals: Pritchard scored the University School's first try and London the second.

Wanderers Are Beaten

At the Canteen grounds the Wanderers were badly beaten by the the Royal Naval College by a score of 17 to nil (1 goal and 4 tries). The side representing the Wanderers was, to a great extent, an experimental one and the result represents the run of the play. C. G. Grant, H. E. Robinson and C. S. Williams played well for the losers.

The College side showed excellent team work, their passing and touch finding being very good. Brock and Pickard were the best of a very good side.

The Great War Veterans were to have played the J. B. A. A. at Oak Bay, but unfortunately were unable to field more than seven men. The J.B.A.A. were out with a full number and a practice was played with the teams mixed, twelve a side taking part. Almost every man on the field had a different colored jersey, which made the play rather confusing to watch, but it was noticed that good work was done by Gosnell and Bendrodt, three-quarters, and Hearne at half, while other conspicuous players were McKinnon, Bennet, Sanson and Travis, the latter showing better form than even in his pre-war Rugby days.

MARINES DEFEATED BY ARMY AND NAVY

Fast Game at Work Point Won by Veterans by Score of 4-1—Fillmore Played in Great Form

The Army and Navy soccer men yesterday encountered the Harbor Marines at Work Point and wrested a 4-1 victory out of a well-contested struggle, mainly through the excellent form displayed by Fillmore.

Gale opened the scoring five minutes after the face-off, putting a penalty kick past Trentham, and fifteen minutes later Fillmore netted a hot shot. A few minutes before the half expired Fillmore again got an opening, and by splendid footwork worked through the Marines' defence and made the score 3-0, this figure standing at half-time, in spite of strong efforts by the Marines.

Fillmore Does "Hat Trick"

In the second half Oliver went in goal after hurting his foot, and made a good showing until well towards the close of the game, when Fillmore beat him for the tally required to complete the hat trick.

The A. and N. defence squad becoming a trifle lax, Swann got an opportunity for an easy shot which completely beat Leeming, who had been unusually safe hitherto.

The teams were:

A. and N. Veterans—Leeming; Church and Piggott; Dowell, Hatherill and Frankish; Hillier, Grimes, Fillmore, Gale and Wilcox.

Harbor Marines—Trentham; Mackenzie and Sedger; A. N. Other, Owens and Monk; Oliver, Swann, Harwood, Fawcett and Webb.

Referee, B. R. Lock.

TWO MAINLAND PROS APPLY FOR WHITEWASH

Best Known Is Corey Hesse, Veteran Lacrosse Star — Other Applications Expected to Follow Before Tomorrow

VANCOUVER, Oct. 25.—Although it is reported that a dozen or more local athletes, professionals in other days, are to ask to have the whitewash brush applied by the powers that be in British Columbia only two have so far come forward with their applications. Corey Hesse, old-time lacrosse goalkeeping star, is one, and Foley, a local youngster who was coaxed into the professional lacrosse ranks during the past season and sidetracked when he failed to land a permanent berth, are the two men to submit their applications. Hesse's application is certain to be approved.

Dave Leith, vice-president of the A.A.U. of Canada, and chairman of the Vancouver branch, stated today that all athletes who intend applying for reinstatement should do so before Monday night. A meeting of the Vancouver board will be held early next week to consider the applications and to nominate representatives to attend the meeting of the provincial executive. Victoria wants the meeting of the British Columbia executive held at Nanaimo on November 1, but it is altogether likely that the meeting will be set back for one week.

WILLIE HOPPE WINS: RECORD IS PERFECT

Six Victories and No Defeat Gives Him the American National Balk-Line Billiard Championship

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—Willie Hoppe defeated Jake Schaefer in the final match tonight of the professional 18.2 balk-line national championship billiard tournament, 400 to 214. This left Hoppe with a perfect record for the tournament with six victories and no defeats. His grand average for all the games was 47.5.

Following the final match the winner was presented with a gold medal studded with a ruby and two diamonds, emblematic of the balk-line title for one year.

Cochran and Morningstar divided second and third money, each having won four games and lost two, and Schaefer took fourth place by splitting even on his six games. Sutton and Yamada tied for fifth place with two won and four lost, and Slosson was sixth, having lost all his games.

Schaefer — Total 214; average 17 10-12; high runs 54, 48 and 40.

Fifth Regiment Shoot

High scoring in connection with the shoots of the 5th Regiment, C.G.A. Rifle Association have become so common that the recording of a century or two on any one day is scarcely worth mentioning. Yesterday afternoon there were two scores of a 101, Lieut. deCarteret making the possible at 200 yards and winning a spoon. R. S. M. Clarke, by making a score of 94, qualifies for "A" class.

Averages and Statistics of Virtue Cup Cricket

The following batting and bowling averages and statistics of the past season's Virtue Cup Cricket competition have been compiled by Mr. W. A. Tucker, the honorary secretary of the Victoria and District Cricket Association. It will be noticed that they are unusually complete and the compiling of these statistics, as well as those of the Flannery Cup and Great War tournament, which appear in today's Colonist, represent a great amount of time and labor spent by the energetic secretary, and will doubtless be found not only of great interest to all cricketers here, but also of great value to captains of clubs and selection committees in the future.

Members of the Victoria and District Cricket Association should note that in the accompanying averages none of the second innings scores are taken into consideration, unless they have had a direct bearing on the result of the game. A good number of cricketers have been rather seriously affected by this, as in a great many cases some of their best scores have been made in the second innings. However, this ruling of the league executive is liable to be changed in the near future, so that next season all second innings scores will count in the averages, independent of whether they affect the result of the match or not.

COMRADES WIN SLOW CONTEST AT JUBILEE

Fragments Once More Meet Defeat—Fielded Weakened Team in Game Marked by Offside Play—Score 4-2

The soccer game between the Fragments and the Comrades, played at the Jubilee grounds yesterday afternoon, resulted in a 4-2 win for the Comrades, the large turnout of fans being somewhat disappointed by the slow character of the contest.

The Fragments took the field with but nine players, and as Bruce was having an off day between the posts it fell to Gomm, as the solitary back, to carry much of the game, which he did with consummate head work as well as football, making the most of his chances to place the Comrades' forward line offside, and so proving the main factor in keeping the score down.

Most of the play was in the Fragments' territory, and ten minutes after the start the Comrades scored on Harper's shot. Right from the face-off the ball came back again, Bruce was forced to concede a corner, and McIlmoyle's well placed kick was headed into the net by Harper for his second tally in two minutes.

The Fragments made strong efforts to score in the next few minutes. An opportunity coming to Walton he netted a beautifully placed shot for the Comrades' third goal.

Ten minutes before half time Patterson of the Comrades got his leg badly scraped and changed places with Lomas, and a few moments before the whistle went Bloom beat him for the Fragments' first goal, the half time score being 3-1.

In the second half both sides were playing the one back game, Patterson being unable to resume, and after fifteen minutes of slow play Bristoe netted the Comrades' last goal.

The final tally of the contest was the result of a penalty awarded the Fragments. Bloom took the kick and Lomas made a wonderful save of the well placed shot, but Bloom has come close in and scored before Lomas could recover.

The teams were:

Comrades: Lomas; Donnell and Davies; Fyvie, Patterson and Green; Harper, Walton, Sharrack, Bristoe and McIlmoyl.

Fragments: Bruce; Gomm; Substitute, Ingle and Pitts; Bowers, Bloom, Kroeger and Baddeley.

YARROWS WORK HARD BUT ARE DEFEATED

Esquimalt Men Lose, 3-0, to Foundations at Athletic Park—Defeat Was Due to Poor Shooting

The Foundation soccer men wrested a 3-0 victory from the Yarrows team yesterday at the Royal Athletic Park, the game being a remarkable exhibition of one team forcing all the play and the other raking in the tallies.

The Foundations were the first to press, Allen coming down the field in fine form but weakening as he made the shot, which Jasper easily fended. Yarrows lost a splendid opportunity to score a couple of minutes later, when Shearer took the ball down and centred when none of his attack companions was in readiness to take the pass.

Several minutes of even play followed then, Kerley lost a chance to score by tipping the ball over Bridges' bar, this being followed by a similar stunt by Southin at Jasper's end. The first score of the game went to the credit of Speak, Jasper mis-kicking his long shot and allowing it to roll into the net.

The Foundation goal was then in serious danger for some time, Shearer's shot struck the bar, Merfield missed by inches, and Bridges was making a fine showing as he kept the goal safe while the Yarrows tried desperately to draw level, half time coming as the Yarrows were taking a corner.

Poor Showing Last Game

The second half opened with the Yarrows keeping up the pressure, but their shots went everywhere except between the posts, the Foundation backs playing a great game and preventing the Yarrows from getting any really easy close-in chances at Bridges.

A sudden dash by the Foundations netted them their second tally, Allen beating Jasper with a fine shot, while Southin scored the final goal after catching the Yarrows' backs too far down the field and running clear away from them.

The teams were:

Foundations—Bridges; Chester and Elliott; Meshes, Clegg and George; Kerley, Speak, Southin, Allen and Cosier.

Yarrows—Jasper, J. Ord and H. Ord; Roe, Young and McIlroy; W. Roberts, Merfield, Prevost, Shearer and Kerley.

Referee—Jones.

LADYSMITH BASKETBALL

LADYSMITH, Oct. 25.—At a meeting of the executive of the Athletic Association it was decided to make arrangements for the basketball season to begin this coming week. The season will start on Saturday evening next with the first game of the city league. Ladysmith has a basketball team that has few if any superiors and a good season is in store for them this year, judging by the number of games already arranged.

The ladies will open their season on Friday, November 7, when their opponents will be Chemainus. The teams have met on several occasions previously and a hard tussle is in view, both Chemainus and Ladysmith have splendid teams and a first-class game should result.

FOUNDATION BOXERS PLAN TOURNAMENT

Shipbuilders Prepare Ambitious Programme for Middle of Next Month — Handsome Prizes Will Be Hung Up

The Foundation Organizations will stage another big boxing tournament at the club rooms on Friday, November 14th and the plans under way would indicate that this event will be the most ambitious yet attempted by the shipbuilders. Already entries have been received from Chet McIntyre, who is sending over four of his Tacoma stars to compete. The four boys coming over are: Dudwick Jones, 115 lbs., who will probably be matched against Charlie Picca, the 115 P.N.A. champion; J. Murphy, a clever and hard hitting 135 pounder; Kenneth Moffatt, the 135 lbs. P.N.A. champion, who will try conclusions with Charlie Martin, and a husky 158-pounder named Jack Grant.

In addition to these Jimmy Clark and Geo. Paris of Vancouver, will send over the pick of their strings, while Dave Mottishaw has signified his intention of having some of the up-Island scrappers mix it with the best of them. As usual the Foundation are hanging up handsome prizes, consisting of cups and medals.

PATRICK SIGNS UP SOME EASTERN STARS

Vancouver Hockey Magnate Secures Disbanded Toronto Players—Alf. Skinner and Adams Brothers Will Help Millionaires

VANCOUVER, Oct. 25.—Eastern hockey stars will perform for the benefit of coast followers of the Winter pastime during the coming season. Determined that Vancouver shall be represented by the fastest team in the history of the game on the coast, Frank Patrick, president of the Pacific Coast Hockey Association and manager of the Vancouver club, announced this morning that he has secured the signatures of Alf. Skinner and Jack Adams, former members of the Toronto Hockey Club of the N. H. L. and also the signature of Bill Adams, brother of Jack. The acquisition of the three Toronto players will bolster up the Vancouver team considerably.

Patrick's action in invading the East does not in any way indicate that there will be another "hockey war" waged between the Pacific Coast Hockey Association and the National Hockey League. There is an agreement between the two leagues that neithr shall negotiate for players unless the same have been released outright by their respective clubs. These players who have supplied Patrick with their John Hancocks were made free agents when the Toronto team was disbanded at the close of last season. It is therefore more than likely that Patrick will make enticing offers to more of the players who are looking for berths.

SPECIAL MUSIC AT MONTHLY RECITAL

English Soprano and Chinese Baritone Will Sing in Congregational Church This Evening

Included in the programme to be presented this evening at the Congregational Church, at the regular monthly recital under the auspices of the choir are two vocal numbers by Madame Meakin-Mahoney, who will make her initial appearance before a Victoria audience on this occasion. Madame Meakin-Mahoney is a gold medalist, coming here from London and the South of England, where she has appeared very prominently as soprano soloist in much concert and church work. Mme. Meakin-Mahoney will sing Louis Carey's "Nearer, My God, to Thee" and "Come Unto Him," from "The Messiah."

Mr. Alfred Quen Lee, the popular Chinese baritone of this city, will also appear on the programme, giving "O, Loving Father," by del Riego. Mr. Lee is the possessor of a beautiful mellow, sympathetic voice, and many who have heard him in recital here predict great things for him in this field. Mr. Lee is a native-born Victorian, hence there is an added interest in his work.

Miss Louie A. de W. Moore, the organist of the church will play "Virgin's Prayer," Massenet; "Cantilene," from Rheinberger's Ninth Sonata, and Wely's "Offertoire."

The choir will sing, "Surely He Hath Borne Our Griefs," Handel, and Gaul's "The Silent Land."

Y.M.C.A. BASKETBALL

In one of the fastest and hardest tussles of the House League senior series of the Y.M.C.A., the Whiz-Bangs went down to defeat before the Huskies in a score of 33 to 25. For the first half the play was a little loose on the part of the Whiz-Bangs, who dropped to a level of 25 to 7 in favor of their opponents. In the last half, however, the Huskies were given a stouter struggle, and the final score showed signs of work on the part of each team. The Huskies team was composed of T. Newt, C. Corkle, S. Mackay, T. Peden and J. Wenger, while Middleton, MacIntyre, Stewart, Dickson, Yates and Lane played for the losers. The next game of the series will be on Wednesday, October 29, between the High School and the Crusaders.

Have Your Teeth Corrected Properly and Promptly

It is well, when you decide that your teeth are to be made sound and wholesome, to have the work performed properly—and without any delay. Right now is a very good time to have your teeth made perfect.

The "Toothache" season won't show any mercy when teeth with exposed nerves and decay spots are present in your mouth. And another bad feature of delay is that you will have to wait longer—and take your turn later on—as dental offices are busier during the cold weather than in the Summer months. VAUDEVILLE MUSIC

STAR HAS EXCELLENT SUPPORT IN "UPSTAIRS"

Mabel Normand in New Goldwyn Production — Royal Victoria Picture Offering for This Week.

Mabel Normand's newest Goldwyn picture, "Upstairs," which will be shown on the Royal Victoria screen for four days, commencing tomorrow, is brimful of fun and entertainment.

Miss Normand never has had a better vehicle for her peculiar talents than in this story by Perley Poore Sheean. She plays Elsie MacFarland in the "downstairs" of a great, palatial hotel; a slavey always anxious to get "upstairs," where the music and the laughter and wine are. But apparently she is always to stay below and suffer callings-down from the brutal chef who dominates the kitchen.

There is humor enough in her dealings with that individual and her attempts to play when she should be working. But the real humor of the piece is seen when she is providentially lifted upwards by a bell-boy who is a millionaire in disguise. In passing it may be noted that his sole reason for donning a role was to become acquainted with Elsie, whom he had seen peeking through a doorway.

A runaway heiress arrives at the hotel, and fearing that the detective would recognize her from her costume, gives it to the "bell-boy" to have "cleaned." He, however, induces Elsie to put it on, which she does, and when she goes "upstairs" completes her toilette by abstracting a pair of shoes a lady has delicately removed beneath a table. Elsie replaces the shoes with her own. There is considerable difference between them and her brogans.

When the detective espies the dress he naturally concludes he has the heiress (whose father has offered a $5,000 reward for her capture unmarried—she has eloped with a rascally chauffeur) and the fun begins, which results in Elsie's exposing the adventurer, winning the reward, and incidentally a rich husband—the "bell-boy."

"RAFFLES" IS PICTURE BRIMFUL OF EXCITEMENT

Picturized Version of Hornung's Widely-Read Novel Will Be Photodramatic Offering at Variety This Week

Patrons of the Variety Theatre this week are assured of genuine entertainment when John Barrymore is presented in "Raffles." This is a photoplay adaptation of Mr. E. W. Hornung's great story of the same title and provides the star with a role quite suited to his remarkable ability as an actor of the highest type.

Nearly everyone has read the stories of "Raffles, the Amateur Cracksman," and those who have will remember the thrills with which they followed the author's masterful pen-pictures of the exploits of this clever crook; clever, because the sharpest police officers of both England and France tried to capture him repeatedly and failed each time.

Every thrilling situation, every tense moment in the story, has been preserved in the film version, which is presented in seven reels, while John Barrymore is supported by an all-star cast that is the last word in character portrayals from each of the several individuals connected with the story.

Dainty Marguerite Clark is to be featured on the Dominion screen this week in the new Artcraft picture, "Girls."

MARGUERITE CLARK IS DOMINION ATTRACTION

Diminutive Star Has Appealing Role in "Girls"—Wallace Reid Featured in Victory Loan Picture.

When Marguerite Clark, popular Paramount star, arrived in Los Angeles to begin work on a picturization of Clyde Fitch's comedy, "Girls," which will be shown at the Dominion this week, she was accorded an enthusiastic reception by motion picture folks and soon felt much at home.

Having spent the last four years in New York, it was at first feared that she would be a little homesick on her arrival, but whatever feelings of this nature she might have experienced were soon dispelled and she was "as happy as a lark," to use a timeworn phrase.

An entire bungalow was remodeled and refurnished to serve as her dressing room and a beautiful mansion in the most exclusive district in Los Angeles was ready for her to move into immediately upon her arrival. The little star is well supported in "Girls," her leading man being Harrison Ford.

Helene Chadwick, who is reputed to be the most photographed girl in America, and who has also posed for some of the most famous painters and sculptors in this country, including Harrison Fisher, Penryn Stanlaws and others, also plays an important role in "Girls."

In addition to the feature photodrama, the Dominion will present the special film, "His Extra Bit," featuring the popular Paramount star, Wallace Reid. This picture was specially made to assist in the 1919 Victory Loan campaign and presents the well known artist in an attractive role of a very convincing story well told.

VARIETY FEATURES THIS WEEK'S BILL

Royal Orpheum Offering for This Week Is Brimful of Wholesome Entertainment Along Many Lines.

Gertrude Hoffman, who comes to the Royal Victoria this week on Friday and Saturday with a Saturday matinee, as a headline attraction on the Orpheum bill, is indeed vaudeville's versatile genius. Vaudeville is a kaleidoscopic line of amusement and the variety of Miss Hoffman's achievements seems wide and inexhaustible. In fact, she is in a class by herself. She does so many things better than most artists and she does so many things that she would be quite capable of giving a whole vaudeville show by herself. She was the first to present "Salome" and Mendelssohn's "Spring Song." She was the first to head a company of classical dancers. She has won fame as an impersonator. Her greatest merit perhaps was her unswerving desire for accomplishment. One day Miss Hoffman presented a review, and much to the surprise of everybody she proved she could do a dozen or more different things that lead toward the goal of entertainment. This year she comes here in a series of dances and impersonations with special stage settings and an augmented orchestra under the direction of Max Hoffman.

With a scene depicting the interior of a hand laundry and a comedy playlet, called "The Tale of a Shirt," Erwin and Jane Connelly will add to the spice of this week's bill. The playlet is described as a comedy of laundry life and is a delightful and perfect blend of sentiment, romance and humor.

Frankie Wood and Bunnie Wyde in a satire of Greenwich village will offer a humorous line of conversation enhanced in songs and dances. Miss Wyde is a handsome blonde with a pleasing voice, while Mr. Wood is a comedian of genuine merit.

"The Smile Girl," otherwise Claudie Coleman, in "Feminine Types," is an artist in impersonation. Miss Coleman does not seek to exaggerate, only to present vividly the mannerisms of familiar characters. Miss Coleman is hailed as an artist of rare ability and is a favorite everywhere she has appeared this season.

"A Merry Moment" is a precious gem. Sam Green and Helen Myra have twelve such gems to offer. A famous leader of men once said that when he sent a man on an important mission he always tried to send him smiling, then he knew he would succeed. This famous man needed the arts of Sam Green and Helen Myra.

The Casting Wards, gymnasts, are said to be the greatest in the world. This may be an extravagant statement, but the fact remains that they are truly exceptional. The Wards do some really wonderful stunts, one of them being a triple somersault.

Samaroff and Sonia, Russian peasants, present what they call "On a Sunny Afternoon in Their Native Land." It is an act full of color and characteristic Russian singing and dancing.

The orchestral offerings and the picture section may be depended upon to round out a complete bill of especial merit and one to be enjoyed by Orpheum vaudeville fans.

PRINCESS PLAYERS TO PRESENT GOOD COMEDY

Mr. Hincks' Aggregation of Artists Will Open Week's Engagement Friday With "Billy's Little Love Affair"

"Billy's Little Love Affair," the clever comedy, was written by H. V. Esmond, and enjoyed tremendous popularity when played in London by his wife, Miss Eva Moore and Allen Aynesworth. Unlike so many modern plays, it has a well developed and intensely interesting plot and by means of Mr. Esmond's usual easy and cleverly written dialogue, the actors are able to hold the audience throughout the entire play, which will be produced at the Princess next Friday evening by R. N. Hincks.

Founded on the theme of "a gilded youth who has lost most of his gilding," marrying for money and ignoring a very bountiful crop of wild oats left behind, the author does a little "harvesting", and brings those "oats" to maturity. The theme itself is, of course, as old as the first marriage license, but the way in which Mr. Esmond deals with it is quite new and he has been singularly fortunate in selecting types for his characters which allow scope for some really good acting.

In Victoria, as in London, the name part will be taken by an "Eva," Miss Hart filling that role in the Princess production, and this charming little actress has probably never had a part which makes such constant demands upon the dramatic talent which she possesses. Captain Hendy will play opposite to Miss Hart, and after his capital work in "His Excellency the Governor" is sure to make a great success of this much more ambitious role.

Many of the heavier dramatic situations are in the very capable hands of Mrs. Logan-Willis, in whom Victoria possesses an emotional actress of an unusually high order, while her husband has a part for which he is admirably suited.

Mrs. Taylor, Mrs. Pritchard, Mrs. Thornborrow and Mr. Fairbairn all have excellent work to do, while Miss Taylor, Major Taylor, Messrs. Reade, Stewart, Clark and R. N. Hincks fill the minor roles.

REMARKABLE APE IS HEADLINE FEATURE

Tarzan, "The Mystery Monk," Presents Novelty of Unusual Interest—Five Other Fine Acts at Pantages.

Beyond question, giving the most wonderful exhibition of baboon intelligence ever witnessed anywhere, Tarzan will set tongues wagging in Victoria as the headline feature of this week's bill of vaudeville at the Pantages Theatre. Tarzan is billed "The Mystery Monk," because of the reluctance of some to believe what they actually see on the stage. There are times when this expertly trained animal shows clearly mental efforts closely resembling human deductions. His trainer, Felix Patty, has worked out a method of communication with Tarzan that answers nearly every emergency and the audience will observe the this wonderful animal is not directed in his stunts by the methods common to other trainers. He can seemingly do anything that his trainer can do, and there are moments when his show of intelligence would almost lead one to expect him to speak out. A feature of this particular specimen of the monkey family that has greatly interested pathologists is his capacity to make mental deductions, and his comedy in the act shows great originality in this way.

K. T. Kuma and company are called Oriental wonder workers. This is the last word in mystery, a Japanese act which carries with it the mystery of the Orient, it is said. The act is beautifully staged and consists of illusions, tricks, mystics and juggling.

Dominique Amores is called a French comedian with a chaplinesque touch. He is assisted by Jeanette, a young lady of English extraction, and they present a comedy oddity entitled "Mon Chapeau." The two indulge in verbal and physical hokum.

Pretty little Belle Oliver will be a delight for the Pantages audiences this week with her repertoire of popular songs and her dainty appearance on the stage. Imagine a cool park with its big iron gates, its stone walls covered with ivy and a park bench nearby. A policeman strolls by and hears a baby crying and looking around finds a wee tot on the bench. The policeman then hears a lot of boys quarreling in the park and he orders them to go along; but one little urchin refuses to be awed by a policeman, so he has to be brought in. The policeman is a ventriloquist, and all this talk has been coming from dummies. W. E. Whittle presents the act.

William Wolfe and Helen Patterson promise a neat and artistic little entertainment. Miss Patterson is the picture in the frame which the artist has just completed, and he is so in love with his work that he sings to the picture he has just completed. He falls asleep and the picture comes to life, steps out and does a dance.

"THE TIGER-LILY" IS ROMANO ATTRACTION

Absorbing Photodrama of Love and Hate Stars Margarita Fisher in Entrancing Role of Italian Girl.

Beginning a three-day showing tomorrow, the Romano will present a brand-new "Flying A" picture, that is being hailed everywhere as one of the most absorbing romances ever flashed upon the screen. It is "The Tiger-Lily," the featured love-story of a beautiful Italian girl living in America. As played by Margarita Fisher in the title role, it presents a rare study in human emotions—love, fear, sympathy, hate, jealousy, pathos, revenge—brightened by youth and romance and touches of delightful humor.

The star, known as Carmina, otherwise "The Tiger-Lily," makes an entrancing daughter of the South with her flashing eyes, supple figure and glorious hair. Through her efforts to keep peace and harmony in her little community, Carmina becomes involved in a chain of unusual circumstances, from which she emerges as the affianced sweetheart of a young American millionaire.

There is an all-star cast supporting Miss Fisher, with Emory Johnson as the lover, popular J. Barney Sherry as his aristocratic father, Mme. Bonita Marstini as his worldly stepmother, and Beatrice Van as a haughty society "flapper"—the girl they want him to marry. George Periolat is seen as a typical Italian inn-keeper, E. Alyn Warren as a vindictive Neapolitan bent upon vendetta, and Frank Clark as a lovable old organ-grinder living in memories of his past operatic career.

GRIFFITH MASTERPIECE COMING HERE SHORTLY

"Broken Blossoms," Screen Tragedy of Immense Heart Appeal, Stars Lillian Gish as Victim of Brutality

This is what The New York Times said of the first showing of "Broken Blossoms," the latest Griffith masterpiece:

"A screen tragedy—not a mere melodrama with an unhappy ending—but a sincere human tragedy—that is what D. W. Griffith has had the courage and the capacity to produce in 'Broken Blossoms,' which opened his repertory season at the George M. Cohan Theatre last night. Mr. Griffith chose a tragic story of impossible love, love impossible in this world of passions and prejudices and brutal forces; he absorbed it in its full meaning, recast it in his mind pictorially, translated it from the written words of the author into the scenes and action of a photoplay, added what was needed to make it live in pictures, left out what pictures could not have adequately expressed — and 'Broken Blossoms' came to the screen, a masterpiece in moving pictures.

"The original story is 'The Chink and the Child' in Thomas Burke's 'Limehouse Nights.' The chink is far away from his native land, living in London, a dreamer and a poet lost in the Western Chinese quarter. The child is a girl, the daughter of a cockney pugilist, who makes her his punching bag when his temper and liquor control him, which is most of the time. The chink sees the beauty of the child, but always from a distance, until one day, when the pugilist has beaten her more unmercifully than usual, she staggers through the streets and falls in the Chinaman's door. He takes her up, bathes her wounds, and places her as a princess in his room. He robes her in silk, surrounds her with flowers, burns incense at her feet—and worships her. And for the first time in her life she smiled.

"But someone tells the pugilist and he discovers family honor. His child with a dirty chink! He'll 'learn' them both. And he does. He smashes the temple that the poet from China had built—and all three, the pugilist, the girl and the poet, go down in the crash. It was inevitable from the beginning.

"This bare narration of the story cannot hope even to suggest the power and truth of the tragedy that Mr. Griffith has pictured. All of his mastery of picture-making, the technique that is pre-eminently his by invention and control, the skill and subtlety with which he can unfold a story—all of the Griffith ability has gone into the making of 'Broken Blossoms.' Many of the pictures surpass anything hitherto seen on the screen in beauty and dramatic force. The whole is a photoplay which cannot fail to impress any one who looks at it in any mood short of the most resolute hostility."

"'Broken Blossoms' will shortly be shown in this city, having been booked by the management of the Variety Theatre.

PROGRAMME FOR BAND CONCERT

This Evening G.W.V.A. Will Hold Second of Popular Musical Evenings

This evening at the Pantages Theatre the second band-concert of the G.W.V.A. Band will be staged, commencing at 8:30 o'clock. At the first concert held a short time ago the band played to a house filled to capacity long before the curtain arose, and many music lovers had to be turned away. The management has every confidence that the attendance tonight will be large.

Formed a bare three months ago, by the gathering of a very few musicians at the G.W.V.A. rooms the record of the band has been one of success from the start. The services of Bandmaster J. M. Miller were secured at once, and the wisdom of the choice has become apparent, the band increasing in popularity by leaps and bounds.

Composed entirely of returned soldiers, all local talent, the aggregation today numbers some 27 musicians; and to such good purposes have the boys devoted their energies that competent musical critics present at the first concert in the Pantages, stated that the rendering of the programme placed the local band among the premier organizations of its kind.

Tonight's programme, which is appended, reveals another treat in store for music lovers who gain admittance:

VANCOUVER, Oct. 25.—The end of October will see the closing of the last of the military hospitals, the Shaughnessy building. All the patients have been discharged or removed. The building is now occupied by the recently-arrived squadron of Mounted Police, and there remain only 25 of the original C.A.M.C. staff out of the whole organization which did such a fine work during the war and since. The O. FIXES SUGAR PRICE FOR NORTHWEST STATES

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 25.—The price of sugar in Portland and the Northwest should be 11 1-2 cents a pound to consumers, plus the freight charge from San Francisco, the local committee of the Federal Sugar Equalization Board announced here today.

One and one-half cents a pound was a "fair and reasonable" margin of profit for the retailer, and he should not be permitted to charge more, the committee said.

Jobbers and dealers charging more than the rate specified by the Equalization Board were in danger of losing their sugar supply, the committee said.

GARTSHORE IS ORDERED RELEASED

Chief Justice Hunter Hands Down Judgment in Case of Vancouver Man Committed by Police Magistrate.

In the Supreme Court yesterday Chief Justice Hunter delivered judgment in the application for a writ of habeas corpus in the case of Rex vs. Gartshore, ordering the discharge of the defendant from custody.

Following is the judgment of the Chief Justice:

This is an application for a writ of habeas corpus directed to the jailer of Okalla Prison and to show cause why the applicant should not be discharged from custody.

The defendant had been convicted by a police magistrate for the unlawful sale of intoxicating liquor in violation of section 10 of the Prohibition Act, 1916, and sentenced to six months' imprisonment.

The hearing before the magistrate was concluded on January 22nd, 1919, and sentence was pronounced on January 30th, and the warrant committing the defendant to prison was issued on the same day. He was not, however, lodged in prison pursuant to the warrant, being admitted to bail pending the hearing of a case stated by the magistrate under the provisions of the Summary Convictions Act, 1915, for the opinion of the Supreme Court on (inter alia) the sufficiency of the evidence to warrant the conviction. The case was heard by me on the 7th of February, and, after hearing the argument on behalf of the Crown and the accused, I came to the conclusion that, assuming that the defendant had agreed to sell the liquor in question, there was no evidence to show that he had actually carried it out, whereupon I set aside the conviction.

The Crown took an appeal from my order to the Court of Appeal, and that court, having heard argument and reserved judgment, on May 20th, 1919, set aside my order and affirmed the conviction, stating it to have been made on the 4th of January, 1919, which, of course, was erroneous, as it took place on January 30th.

The case is not yet reported in the official Law Reports, but I have been furnished with copies of the judgments by the official reporter.

It appears that the defendant's counsel at the hearing of the appeal challenged the jurisdiction of the court to entertain an appeal and wished to reopen the question which was supposed to have been settled by a former decision of the court in Rex v. Evans, 23 B.C.R., 128.

The court (Martin and McPhillips, JJ.A., dissenting), decided to hear the argument and then reaffirmed the existence of the right of appeal. It does not appear that Mr. Justice Eberts assented to this decision, but it is clear that the other four judges maintained the right of appeal. They then dealt with the appeal on the merits, and decided (McPhillips and Eberts, JJ.A., dissenting) to reverse my order. Two of the three judges who reversed my order did not give any reasons for holding that I was wrong. The third, Martin, J.A., did give reasons, but, as it is reasonable to assume in a case concerning the liberty of the subject, that the majority consulted before reversing my order, the inference is that the other two judges were not prepared to adopt the reasons given by Martin, J.A., or they would have said so. On the other hand, Mr. Justice McPhillips gave reasons in his oral judgment, stating that he entirely agreed with me. In fact, I do not see how the matter could be put any more clearly than it was when he said:

"The mere finding of the articles on the premises, without more, constitutes very insufficient evidence of the completed sale. There must be something definite to enable it to be said that the defendant placed those articles there. It may not need to be very cogent evidence, but there would need to be some evidence; for instance, that the carter got his instructions for delivery from the defendant, or some evidence connecting the defendant with the selection, appropriation and delivery, but all such evidence is absent."

The result, then, of the appeal was unfavorable to the defendant by a majority of one, and he was then taken into custody under the warrant which the magistrate had issued, no fresh warrant having been issued, and taken to the Okalla Gaol to serve out the sentence, and now applies for his discharge.

The argument came on to be heard by me on October 15th and 16th, Mr. Johnson, Deputy Attorney-General, appearing for the Crown, and Mr. Wilson and Mr. Davis for the applicant, but inasmuch as the matter presented for my consideration appeared to be of some gravity, I reserved judgment, and in the meantime admitted the defendant to bail, the Crown assenting to that course.

The application for habeas corpus and for the prisoner's discharge is based on several grounds. One is that the order of the Court of Appeal purported to affirm the conviction alleged to have taken place on the 4th of January, 1919, whereas the conviction in question took place on the 30th of January and not on the 4th, and therefore was not affected by the order of the Court of Appeal. As to this objection, however, while it is true that one paragraph of the judgment purports to affirm a mythical conviction, another paragraph purports to set aside my order of the 20th of February, so that assuming the court had jurisdiction to entertain the appeal, the order, in my opinion, would, nevertheless, have effectually disposed of the matter adversely to the defendant.

A number of objections were also taken to the legality of the warrant under which the defendant was taken into custody, but, as, upon a full examination into these points, it might be found that the net result might be that a fresh warrant could lawfully be issued by the magistrate, a discharge based on any such objection might turn out to be illusory, in which case the court would then no doubt be confronted with the necessity of passing on the main question which has been raised, and which is that the Court of Appeal had no

sider the matter carefully before taking that course. I at first thought that it might be possible for the defendant to take an appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada, but I find that the door of that court has been closed by its decision in re McNutt, 47 S.C.R. 259, in which it was held by a majority of the court that no appeal lies to that court in a case of this kind. It would also be open to the defendant to bring an action for false imprisonment, and in that way have the validity of the action of the Court of Appeal passed on by the Supreme Court of Canada, but in the meantime he would have to serve out the alleged unlawful sentence, and any damages which he might recover would be a very inadequate remedy, and in any event the object of the habeas corpus proceedings, which is to obtain speedy relief from unlawful imprisonment, would be frustrated by such delay. I think, therefore, that I am bound to consider the point and give my opinion on it.

In order that the nature of the question may be easily understood it is first of all necessary to set forth the legislation concerning the matter.

By the Court of Appeal Act, being Chapter 51 of the Revised Statutes, 1911, section 6, sub-section 4 (a) it was provided that an appeal should lie to the Court of Appeal from the decision of the Supreme Court or a judge thereof on a case stated under the Summary Convictions Act.

By the Summary Convictions Act, being Chapter 218 of the Revised Statutes, 1911, section 92, it was provided:

"When a case is transmitted under this Act, the Supreme Court shall hear and determine the question or questions of law arising thereon, and shall thereupon reverse, affirm or amend the determination in respect of which the case has been stated, or remit the matter to the Justice or Justices, with the opinion of the court thereon, or may make such order as to costs as the court may seem fit; and all such orders shall be final and conclusive on all parties."

By the Summary Convictions Act, 1915, being Chapter 59 of the Statutes, 1915, the last-mentioned Act was repealed, section 92 reappearing with some variations as follows:

"The Supreme Court to which a case is transmitted shall hear and determine the question or questions of law arising thereon, and shall thereupon affirm, reverse or modify the conviction, order or determination in respect of which the case has been stated, or remit the matter to the Justice with the opinion of the court thereon, or may make such other order in relation to the matter, and such order as to costs as to the Court seems fit; and all such orders shall be final and conclusive on all parties."

And the question was and is as to whether, this being the last legislative declaration on the subject, it did not abolish the right of appeal which had been allowed by the Court of Appeal Act, 1911, as above stated.

At the outset I think it is unnecessary to do more than state two propositions that are almost axiomatic in their nature. The first is that no Appellate Court can usurp a jurisdiction to interfere with the judgment of a competent Court by merely declaring that it has the jurisdiction to do so, and the second is that the right of appeal is not a mere matter of procedure but a substantive right which can be created only by legislative authority and cannot be created by the inferior or superior tribunal or by both combined—Attorney-General v. Sillem, 10 H.L. Cas. 704—and, of course, when granted, can only be abolished by legislative authority. As I have said, the jurisdiction of the Court of Appeal to hear the appeal from my order was upheld by the Court, or at any rate by four of the judges, and they reaffirmed the reasons given in Rex v. Evans, 23 B.C.R. 128.

I asked the Deputy Attorney-General, if the matter were res integra, whether he would be prepared to maintain the jurisdiction of the Court of Appeal, and, with his usual candor, he admitted that he could not, and that he could not see any escape from the conclusion that Section 92 of the Summary Convictions Act, 1915, being the Act under which the conviction took place, cut off any right of appeal from my order to the Court of Appeal.

Notwithstanding that enactment, the majority of the Court held in the present case that the right of appeal still existed under the provisions already recited of the Court of Appeal Act, 1911. In the Evans case the Court held that they had to deal with a conflict between two of the revised statutes, and that, inasmuch as the original Court of Appeal Act was passed later than the original Summary Convictions Act, the latter had to give way, but in Gartshore's case they held that the passage of the new Summary Convictions Act in 1915 made no change in the situation, although passed long after the Court of Appeal Act in 1911. They undoubtedly professed to apply the principle that where two enactments conflict the later legislation must prevail, a principle which cannot be disputed, but, with great deference to the learned judges of the Court of Appeal, I think they misdirected themselves in endeavoring to apply the principle to the legislation in question by inquiring into the priorities of the Statutes which had been repealed.

In Boston v. Lelievre, L.R. 3 P.C. 151, Lord Westbury, in delivering the judgment of the Privy Council, which, of course, binds both the Court of Appeal and myself, said, in dealing with a converse case of a Court of Appeal refusing to hear an appeal on the ground that it had no jurisdiction:

"The question is governed entirely by the language of the Colonial Statutes. The Court of Appeal in Lower Canada is the creation of the Statute and the subjects upon which appeal lies to that Court are defined with reasonable clearness. The jurisdiction of the Court existed before the consolidated Statutes, but the consolidated Statutes annulled all the antecedent Statutes upon the subject. The consolidated Statutes may be treated as one great Act, and their Lordships think it would not be wrong to take the several chapters as being enactments which are to be construed collectively, and with reference to one another, just as if they had been sections of one Statute, instead of being separate Acts."

And in B.C. Electric Railway Co. v. Stewart, 1913, A.C., which was an appeal from the British Columbia Court of Appeal, Lord Atkinson says at page [illegible]:

"The Consolidated Railway Companies Act, 1896, and the Municipal Clauses Act, 1896, were passed in the statute must prevail (Moore v. Robinson)."

In the Evans case, then, it is clear that the method of dealing with the Statutes laid down by the Privy Council would have led to the opposite decision, and I must assume that the Court, if these decisions had been brought to their attention, would have decided that the right of appeal no longer existed. But it is not necessary to me to say anything more about the Evans case, which, in the view of the Court of Appeal, raised the question of a conflict between two Statutes contained in the same consolidation, for in Gartshore's case, the case was not that of a conflict between two Statutes contained in the same revision, but between the Court of Appeal Act of 1911 and the Summary Convictions Act, 1915, and therefore the decision in the Evans case, whether right or wrong, did not necessarily bind the Court in the present case.

On the argument in the present case, the case of Rex v. Sit Quin, 26 B.C. 362 was referred to. In that case the Court of Appeal held that it had jurisdiction to entertain an appeal from a decision of the County Court on an appeal from Justices of the Peace, under the Summary Convictions Act. With regard to the objection which had been raised to its jurisdiction, the learned Chief Justice says (Martin and McPhillips, JJ.A. concurring):

"Then as to the preliminary objections which we reserved, I see no reason for changing the opinion which I held in Rex v. Evans. I do not think the subsequent re-enactment or consolidation of the Summary Convictions Act affects the principles which we laid down in that case."

But the Summary Convictions Act does not declare the judgment of the County Court to be final and conclusive, as it does the judgment of the Supreme Court, so that the case of Rex v. Sit Quin was not necessarily governed by the case of Rex v. Evans, nor did it necessarily govern this case, and whether it is right or wrong does it not affect this case, and therefore it is unnecessary for me to consider it further.

So that the position is that the Court of Appeal, on the hearing of the appeal in the present case, were not bound by their decision in the Evans case, as the conflict there was between two coeval Statutes, they evidently considering that although the Summary Convictions Act of 1915 was passed before the hearing of the Evans appeal, which had been taken before its passage, it evidently had no bearing on the question, as they made no allusion to it. Nor were they bound by their ruling in the Sit Quin case, as that was the case of an appeal from a County Court and not from a Supreme Court. Nevertheless, they considered that their decision in the Evans case governed both the Sit Quin case and this case. The Court of Appeal therefore arrived at this result, that although the Summary Convictions Act of 1915 repealed the former Summary Convictions Act of 1911, and undoubtedly by Section 93 gave the defendant the right of appeal to the Supreme Court from the decision of the magistrate and by the same section declared the decision of the Supreme Court to be final and conclusive on all parties, it was not, however, effectual to extinguish the right of appeal which had been provided in another Statute of 1911.

With the greatest deference to the learned judges who so held, I think that they could not eliminate the last declaration of the Legislature in this way, and that the decision is in direct violation of the principles laid down by the Privy Council in Boston v. Lelievre and in B.C. Electric Railway Co. v. Stewart, as already stated. It may be suggested, although the learned Deputy Attorney-General did not see fit to suggest it, that the phrase in the Statute "final and conclusive on all parties" was not to be taken at its face value, but should be understood as subject to an appeal to the Court of Appeal, and the learned judges have, in fact, read into the Statute some such expression as "subject to the right of appeal allowed by Section 6 of the Court of Appeal Act, 1911"; but this mode of construction has often been condemned by courts of the highest authority.

In Cushing and DuPuy, 5 A.C. 409, the Privy Council had to construe a Dominion Statute which enacted that "the judgment of the Court to which an appeal under this Section can be made shall be final." It was argued that this did not necessarily prevent an appeal as of right to the Crown, but Sir Montague Smith, in delivering judgment, said at page 418:

"Then it was contended that if the Parliament of Canada had the power, it did not intend to abolish the right of appeal to the Crown. It was said that the word 'final' would be satisfied by holding that it prohibited an appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada, established by the Dominion Act of the 38 Vict., c. 11. Their Lordships think the effect of the word cannot be so confined. It is not reasonable to suppose that the Parliament of Canada intended to prohibit an appeal to the Supreme Court of Appeal recently established by its own legislation, and to allow the right of immediate appeal from the Court of Queen's Bench to the Queen to remain. Besides the word 'final' has been before used in Colonial legislation as an apt word to exclude in certain cases appeals as of right to Her Majesty (see the Lower Canada Statute, 34 Geo. 3, c. 20). Such an effect may, no doubt, be excluded by the context, but there is none in the enactment in question to limit the meaning of the word. For these reasons their Lordships think that the judges below were right in holding that they had no power to grant leave to appeal."

In Lock v. Queensland Investment and Land Co., 1896 A.C., Lord Halsbury says, at page 466:

"Of course, if you can introduce into the language which the Legislature has used other language which would have a different effect (and that has been practically the argument addressed to your Lordships), you may turn any Statute or any section of any Statute into an absurdity. But Table A of the seventh section expressly says that 'the directors may, if they think fit,' make such an arrangement as has been here made; and every effort to turn those plain words into something else has resulted, on the part of the learned counsel who argued it, in an admission that, without the addition of some words, they cannot get into that seventh section that which their argument requires."

In Salomon v. Salomon and Co., 1897 A.C., the Lord Chancellor, at page 29, said that he "must decline to insert into that Act of Parliament limitations which are not to be found there."

In Bank of New South Wales v. Piper, 1897, A.C., Sir Richard Couch, in delivering judgment, says at page 388:

"It is to be observed that in the first part of S. 7, which relates to the sale or delivery of wool that is under a lien, the words 'with a view to defraud' are introduced as an essential quality of the offence; but in the part of the section which relates to the sale and disposition of sheep or cattle that have been mortgaged these words are omitted. This cannot be considered to be an unintentional omission unless it is shown to be so by the context of the section. Their Lordships do not see any ground for construing the section as if the words 'with a view to defraud' had been inserted in this part of it. They cannot alter the offence created by the Statute by the introduction of words which the Legislature has omitted."

In Regina v. Hunt, 6 Q.B., at page 412, Erle J. said:

"I had been for some time in hopes that I might find language to express this meaning, but it is impossible to do so without inserting words in the section; for it is enacted that his 'decision on the reasonableness as well as the legality of the charges shall be final,' and not that his decision on the reasonableness shall be made in the same manner as on the legality of the charges. Neither can I read 'final' as meaning 'final unless appealed against.' Probably that was the object of the Legislature; but it cannot be done without reforming the words of the Statute; and therefore I agree that this rule must be discharged."

The decisions of the Courts of highest authority therefore make it clear that the Court erred in coming to the conclusion that the enactment that the decision of the Supreme Court was to be final and conclusive on all parties was to be considered as subject to the right of appeal, although the Statute itself provides no such limitation. These decisions are, of course, binding on both the Court of Appeal and myself. In fact, the Privy Council declared in Trimble v. Hill, 5 A.C. 344, that it was the duty of the Colonial Court of Appeal to follow the decision of the English Court of Appeal in preference to its own former decision where they came in conflict, which admonition has been followed by the Court of Appeal for Ontario, e.g., Mason v. Johnson, 20 A.R. 414. See also Hollenden v. Foulkes, 26 O.R. 61. A fortiori it is my duty to follow and apply the decisions of the highest courts of judicature in preference to those of the local Court of Appeal where they are in conflict.

It is not enough, however, merely to say that the Court had no jurisdiction. An order of a Court made without jurisdiction may be void only if and when it is set aside and declared void by a higher tribunal, as, for instance, where the jurisdiction was conditional on the existence of certain facts and on certain proceedings being taken. Decisions made when the conditions necessary to the existence of certain facts and on certain proceedings being taken. Decisions made when the conditions necessary to the existence of jurisdiction did not exist are not necessarily void, especially where the complaining party might have brought the true position to the attention of the Court and failed to do so. But there is a vital distinction between a case where there is a limited or conditional jurisdiction to do a judicial act and the case where, as in this case, there is no jurisdiction to do it under any circumstances. In the latter case it is void in the absolute sense and is just as inoperative for any purpose as if it had never been pronounced. It can establish no right or impose any obligation. It affords no protection to anyone who acts under it. It is, in short, a nullity and, as Chancellor Boyd said in McLeod v. Noble, 28 O.R. 528, of an injunction which had been issued out of the High Court of Justice with no jurisdiction to do so, "a thing of naught which cannot be disobeyed."

Before taking the step which I am of the opinion I am forced to take, I may say that I have considered whether or not I should adjourn the matter in order to enable the defendant, with the consent of the Crown, to make another application to the Court of Appeal to reconsider its decision as to its jurisdiction, or, if that were impracticable, then by way of Order of Reference.

But one difficulty is that the Court affirmed its jurisdiction on at least two if not three different occasions, although, as already pointed out, the former cases did not conclude the Court in the present case. The other difficulty is that two of the learned judges have already expressed themselves in the present case as opposed to the reconsideration of the question. In fact, Mr. Justice Martin said in objecting to rehearing the question of the Courts' jurisdiction in the present case:

"I, for one, do not propose to say that I sit here at the beginning of this term and make a ruling which sends one man to the penitentiary and later on in this term or the first of next term to make another which frees another man guilty of exactly the same offence from the same consequences. I give on these questions one ruling once and for all."

And in his judgment referred to Velesky, Ltd., v. Inland Revenue Commissioners, 1914, 3 K.B., 458. With all deference, I am unable to see the justice of sending more men to prison because one man has already been wrongly sent there, nor am I able to see the relevancy of the case cited. It was a taxation case, and examination of it shows that the ground on which the English Court of Appeal refused to overrule their former decision was that that decision had been brought to the attention of the House of Lords on the argument in a similar case and that, as that tribunal did not disapprove of it, it was not for them to unsettle the law.

As a matter of fact, the highest tribunals do not hesitate to overrule their former decisions and those of co-ordinate courts, whenever they consider it right, and to show that that is so it may not be amiss to cite the following instances:

In a case involving the question of the legislative power to imprison for contempt, the Privy Council in Kielley v. Carson, 4 Moore P.C. 63, overrule Beaumont and Barrett, 1 M.P.C. 59, Baron Parke delivering both judgments.

In Sidney v. Bourke it overruled Bathurst v. McPherson, 4 A.C. 256, on the question of the distinction between misfeasance and nonfeasance.

The United States Supreme Court has frequently overruled former decisions of its own, as, for instance, Leisy v. Hardin, 135 U.S. 100, overruled Pierce v. New Hampshire, 5 Howard 504, although that decision was the result of full consideration and was the law for forty years. In Teighman v. Proctor, 102 U.S. 707, it overruled Mitchell v. Teighman, 19 Wall 287, although the validity of the same patent was in issue in both suits and the patentee was a party to both. In Killbourne v. Thompson, 103 U.S. 168, they overruled Anderson v. Dunn, 6 Wheaton 204, on the question of the authority of Congress to commit for contempt. In the English Court of Appeal in re Dewhirst's Trusts, 33 Ch. D. 419, Cotton, Lindley and Lopes, L.JJ., overruled the decision of a former Court of Appeal consisting of James, Baggallay and Brett, L.JJ., in re Dalgleish, 4 Ch. D. 143, which had been followed by Jessel, M.R., in re Crowe, 14 Ch. D. 304. In Fowler v. Barstow, 20 Ch. D. 240, they overruled their former decision in Great Australian Gold Mining Company v. Martin, 5 Ch. D., on one point. In re Hallett's Estate, 13 Ch. D. 696, they overruled the decision of the Court in Pennell v. Deffell, 4 D.M. & G. 372, on one point. In The Bernina, 12 P.D. 58, they overruled the decision of Thorogood v. Bryan, 8 C.B., 115. The Divisional Court in Bowen v. Anderson (1894), 1 Q.B. 164, overruled its former decision in Sandford v. Clarke, 21 Q.B.C. 398, on a question of law. In Fortescue v. Vestry of St. Matthew (1891), 2 Q.B. 170, they overruled Vestry of St. Mary v. Goodman, 23 Q.B.D. 154. And on the hearing of the appeal the learned Chief Justice said:

"We have on one or two occasions overruled decisions of the full Court. In re Tiderington (1912), 17 B.C. 81; in re Rahim (1912), 17 B.C., 276, in which the Court, consisting of Irving, Martin and Galliher, JJ.A., and myself, overruled the decision of the full Court in Ikezoya v. C.P.R. (1907), 12 B.C. 454, Irving, J.A., dissenting.

Of course, in considering whether a former decision should be overruled, the Court has always to decide whether the principle of stare decisis or that error should be perpetuated is to prevail, and the principle clearly is that the Court should in each case consider whether it would be less mischievous to adhere to the error and leave it to be corrected by some higher authority or to correct the error. I venture to think that it is less mischievous to refrain from sending men to prison without the authority of law than it is to keep on doing so out of deference to an erroneous view of the law.

To sum up the matter, in view of what has taken place, I do not think that I can reasonably require the defendant to make another application to the Court of Appeal to reconsider its decision on the question of its jurisdiction, and therefore I have no alternative but to express my own opinion as to the legality of his imprisonment, and, indeed, I am required to do so on an application for a writ of habeas corpus, as pointed out by the House of Lords in Cox v. Hakes, 15 A.C. 506.

The only conclusion I can come to is that the decision of the Court of Appeal in the present case, by which it assumed to set aside my order, was the result of a series of misconceptions and must be regarded as having been given per incuriam, especially as the principles laid down by the Privy Council in relation to the interpretation of the Statutes were evidently not brought to their attention. If that is so, there is high authority for saying that a decision given per incuriam does not bind any court. In Sale v. Phillips, 1894, 1 Q.B. 349, the Divisional Court overruled its own previous decision in Lewis v. Arnold, L.R. 10 Q.B. 245, and Lord Coleridge, in delivering judgment, says at page 350:

"It is clear that the justices were not bound by Lewis v. Arnold. That case was decided under a misapprehension. The learned judges were not informed that an incorporated Statute contained a definition of 'owner' which made the landlord liable."

But even assuming that the judgment was not given per incuriam, it is undeniably in the teeth of the Statute of 1915, which declared the decision of the Supreme Court to be final and conclusive, and which Statute is of paramount authority to the decision of any Court.

For these reasons I am of the opinion that it is my duty to order the prisoner's discharge.

WILL NOT WAIVE FEES

The Saanich Council has discussed the advisability of making no charge for disinfecting houses and isolation hospital fees. The matter was brought up on suggestion of Dr. Tomalin, who pointed out that concealment of infectious disease was sometimes practised to avoid such charges. The Council decided that the present plan of collecting whenever possible should be continued.

Saanich Will Ask City to Grant Rate of One Cent Per Thousand Gallons—The Library Tangle Discussed

The Saanich Council Friday night considered at some length what aid should be asked from the City of Victoria towards the extension of the Saanich waterworks system, with a special eye to the needs of the Gordon Head district.

On the motion of Councillor Watson the municipality will ask that the City grant a water rate of one cent per 1,000 gallons used for irrigation purposes, every service consuming more than 10,000 gallons per month being used as the basis for the special concession.

The Victoria authorities will be informed that the Saanich Council is considering the submission to the ratepayers of a by-law calling for the expenditure of $175,000 on waterworks extensions, with approximately $100,000 of this sum earmarked for the Gordon Head extension and the balance for general service work in other portions of the municipality.

Much of the time of the session was occupied with consideration of the Library impasse, but the matter was finally stood over until next meeting, mainly because of the absence of Councillors Dooley, Brooks and Terrill. Reeve Jones thought that the question should be dealt with at once, and an offer of $800 for the balance of the current year and January, 1920, made to the Commissioners, provided they would accept a pro-rata of the cost for next year on the lines outlined at last week's meeting and reported in The Colonist, but when the proposal came to a vote Councillors Watson and Pim voted nay against Councillors Graham and Henderson, and the Reeve felt constrained to vote against the proposal, which will come up again next week.

Essays by Our Child Readers

Lots of Fun

(By Eric Allen, age 11, Uppingham School).

I am going to tell you how I enjoyed my holidays. Once I went to Cordova Bay and in the afternoon it rained. We were in a tent that leaked and the water spattered all over us, making even the fire spit. We caught it in basins and bowls till we had a little Cordova Bay inside. Another trip was to the Gorge, where I kicked and splashed like any old fish. After a while I swam a little. We went to have tea in the Japanese Tea Gardens. When we were going in there we saw a Japanese dog called Sundae trying to catch a humming bird. I went once again to Cordova Bay, and a lot of boys and I were picking up colored stones and throwing stones in the water to make them skip. We had a game of ball, too. I went to a party a little later on. We were playing French cricket and cricket. The little boy had a trike, and we were playing trains with it. Somebody was supposed to injure it and be found "guilty." Sometimes the train would go so slow we could pass it in a basement with tons of things in the way. We had a nice time and a lovely tea, and after tea we played "happy family." When I was coming home it was a little dark and I felt quite a man coming home by myself. A little while after that I went for a fine motor ride to Patricia Bay, Deep Cove, Resthaven and Sidney. At Patricia Bay I saw two puff-puffs, as the babies call a train. A short time ago I went with mother and daddy to Vancouver for a little trip. Boy, it was good! This Tuesday I went to the picture show called "The Still Alarm." I liked it very much. But the thing I liked best was going to Vancouver.

Swimming

(By Jill Spargue, age 11, Pierre, S. Dakota).

When the news spread over the city of Pierre that the swimming pool was ready and the water was fine, every child could have turned a summersault for pure joy, and as for myself, I could talk of nothing else but swimming, and seeing that I couldn't swim, I can't imagine what I talked about.

When I first went in the water I felt that I couldn't stand up. I was dizzy and very frightened. My uncle after finding that I was too afraid of the water to learn to swim, tried to teach me to duck, which was nearly as bad. I'd cover my face with two fingers, while with the others I held my ears and nose. After much coaxing and pleading, I would dip my head very gingerly into the water and come up sputtering and happy at my bravery, only to hear someone cry, "You didn't duck; you just dipped your nose." What a lot of work all for nothing.

At last, after several weeks' hard practice, I could swim a little, bit to be sure, but even that was better than clinging cold and miserable to the steps and watching the others). Never was I so happy as when I took my first strokes and swam gallantly to shore. (Mind, the shore was only three feet off). It was swimming nevertheless, and I had worked hard and faithfully for that few seconds of pleasure.

Now was the time to think of the pretty things of swimming, such as caps and bags.

One morning my chum Helen went down to get something to make a bag. We looked at everything from cheese cloth to canvas. She finally decided on the canvas, and as soon as she reached home started making it. I hate sewing, and don't know much about it, and so suggested that Helen stitch the bag with black thread, as she had no white. This her mother made her take out later and stitch neatly with white.

I wanted a bag; I just had to have one. Helen did. As usual, my allowance was spent, and so in the afternoon I rummaged the chest, the store room, the rag bag and even the linen closet, for an old bit of cloth. In the linen closet I found something that was of much interest to me.

Mother had been given a beautiful linen towel with embroidered red flowers on the side. The bright colors and heavy fringe made me set immediately to work. I chopped off the fringe, stitched up the sides, worked holes and ran red cord through them. And lastly, I drew my initials and outlined them in red. The bag really looked very pretty, unless you looked at the bumpy holes which I had tried to work with the button-hole stitch or the uneven outline of my initials, J. S.

My bag was nearly finished when mother came home. She examined the bag very closely as if she was looking at the knotty buttonholes or uneven outline stitch. Perhaps she was thinking more about the material, for she stared rather hard at the embroidered flowers and looked wonderingly at the cut fringe lying on the floor. I changed the subject to "getting supper," and everything was all right again.

I regret to say that if you should see me now on my way to the swimming pool I would be skipping gaily down the path with my suit swung over one shoulder, while the poor embroidered bag is hanging in the dark storeroom at home, wishing it had never been made.

The part I liked best was diving. There were three diving boards at one side. Two were medium height and one was high. They were all over deep water and my highest ambition was to dive off all three.

One evening I swam over toward the diving boards. I was too scared to dive straight off the end at first, but little by little I kept working around to the end, and finally made the dive. It seemed easier next time, and I said to the director half joking, "Guess I'll go off the high one next." He looked at me for an instant and then said, "Sure. Go up and see how it feels."

Now, for no other reason whatever, I wanted to go off that diving board to show Jack I wasn't afraid. Jack, my only brother—Jack, who learned to swim at the same time I did—Jack who was only eleven months older than I. I couldn't let myself be beaten so badly.

Cold and shivering I crept up the stairs and out on the board. I felt dizzy and would have fallen had I not clutched the board and silently crawled back. And what made matters worse, Jack was standing by the stairs with an expression on his face that seemed to say, "Why didn't you go off?" As if I didn't know why I didn't go off. If he had felt like I had he wouldn't have gone off, either. But Jack's expression made me feel that I would go off that diving board if I dived to the bottom and never came up. I screwed up my courage, went again to the end of the board, threw up my hands, closed my eyes and went off. Oh! I was happy, happy, happy, and lost no time in calmly asking Jack how he liked my last dive, as if I had been doing it all the evening.

That night as I went to bed I felt that at last I was up with Jack, for had I not dived off the same board as he, the highest at the pool? But I was secretly hoping that no higher board would be put up, for Jack would be the first to try that and I just know that I wouldn't have any courage left by the time I reached the top of the stairs.

Chemainus

(By Dick Yerburgh, Royal Oak, 11 years, home taught).

One day at Duncan some friends called to take us to Chemainus in their car. It was a beautiful day, a beautiful car and a beautiful drive. We went along the bottom of Mount Provost, over flat ground, through bush, across bridges and over hills.

When we arrived the tide was out, so we had dinner. There was lemonade, eggs, egg sandwiches, cake, cocoanut buns and lovely cold water. Then we paddled; it was a fine sandy shore and warm, shallow water. We tried to catch fish and hunted for curious shells. I found one big one.

When the tide came up we built sand castles and watched the sea wash them away. At about four o'clock we went home. It had been a lovely day.

After having been a prisoner on the Island of St. Helena for six years, Napoleon died on May 5, 1821.

Edward VII., the British King who loved peace, left this world on May 6, 1910. His Majesty George V. succeeded him on the same day.

The steam hammer, which many boys have seen at work in engineering shops, was invented by James Nasmyth in 1839. The inventor lived till 1890. In the interval great things had been done by the help of this fine and powerful instrument.

One of the most wonderful railways in the world runs from Miami in Florida to the city of Key West. The road if 165 miles long and was completed in 1911. It joins a long chain of islands made by the coral insect to each other and to the mainland. The largest of these islands is Key West, on which the city of the same name is built.

Queen Elizabeth ascended the throne of England on January 13, 1559, more than 360 years ago. We know many things that the people of those days never dreamed of, but in all the world no book has been written since as great as the poems and plays of William Shakespeare, who lived during her reign.

Between 1856 and 1858 Sir Henry Bessemer invented the process of hardening steel which bears his name. He was an Englishman who was born in 1813 and lived to be eighty-five.

General Gordon was killed in Khartoum in the Soudan on January 26, 1885.

WORK FOR BOYS

There is work in this and in most cities that boys and only boys can do. This is to protect the property of absent people. Whenever a house is empty or a shop is left vacant someone breaks windows and defaces the walls, either by throwing stones at them or in some other way.

The owners of the houses and shops may be poor and unfortunate, and often are.

Of course, if such mischief is done in the business part of the city the policemen see the offenders and someone has to pay for the damage done. But it would take many more policemen than your fathers can afford to pay to watch every corner of our scattered city.

Now, every broken window, every chipped street sign, every defaced wall or fence is a reproach to the whole neighborhood. If the boys of the community were to form an association for the protection of property they could in a very short time make wanton mischief so unpopular that neither boys nor men would care to throw stones or do any other of those foolish acts that injure the appearance and the good name of a city. There is plenty of work that a Boys' Protective Association could do to make Victoria a still more beautiful city.

It is a cruel situation when we cannot make up our minds to hate and despise the man whom we cannot esteem or love.—Joubert.

DRAWING COMPETITION

Many Victoria children are learning to make original designs. The Colonist offers prizes for the three best designs, using seed pods, suitable for the top of a magazine.

The size of the design must be 3 inches by 6¼ inches and it must be painted in black ink. The prizes will be: First, $2.50; second, $1.50; third, $1.00. Any reader under 16 may compete and all drawings must be in by the last day of November.

The Editor hopes the drawings will represent the very best work readers can do. Name, age and school attended must be sent in with each drawing. The prize designs and perhaps others exceptionally good will be reproduced.

In Star Land

The Discovery of Neptune

The boundaries of the solar system had been much extended by the discovery of Uranus, but they were destined to receive still further enlargement by the detection of another vast planet, revolving far outside Uranus, the orbit of which forms, according to our present knowledge, the outline of the planetary system. I do not mean any disrespect to Herschel when I say that the discovery of Uranus was chiefly a stroke of good fortune. Herschel merely looked at one star after another till suddenly he dropped on the planet, having beforehand not the slightest notion that any such planet was likely to exist. But Neptune was shown to exist before it was ever seen, and, in fact, the man that first saw the planet, and knew it to be a planet, was not the discoverer.

You will remember that law of Kepler which tells us that every planet moves around the sun in a ellipse. If the planet be uninterfered with in any way and guided only by the attraction of the sun, it will forever continue to describe precisely the same ellipse without the slightest alteration. It was ascertained that the path which Uranus followed was not always regular. The early observations of the planet, when it was mistaken for a star, have here been of the utmost service. They have indicated the ellipse which Uranus described the last time it went round, and our modern observations have taught us the path which the planet is at present describing. These two ellipses are slightly different, and the consequence is that, supposing we take the observations of Uranus made one hundred years ago, and calculate from them where Uranus ought to be now, we find that the planet is a little astray. Astronomers are not accustomed to be wrong in such calculations, and when discrepancies arise, the first thing to be done is to see what has caused them. It is certain that the position in which Uranus is found this very night, for example, is not what it would have been had the sun alone been guiding the planet.

Perhaps you will think that it is impossible for reliable computations to be made out of such matters, but I assure you they can, and the very fact that the motion of Uranus appeared to be irregular made it interesting to try to find out the cause of the disturbance.

There is an attraction between every two bodies, but in the group of planets to which the earth belongs the sun's attraction is so much stronger than any other force that all the movements are guided mainly by it. Nevertheless it is true that not only does the sun pull our earth and all the other planets as well, but all the planets, including the earth, are pulling one another. In fact, there is an incessant struggle going on in the family party. Fortunately the sun is so much more powerful than another member that he keeps them all pretty well in order, and unless you look very carefully you will not see the effects of the little struggles that are going on between every pair of the system. Our earth itself is pulled and swayed to and fro by the actions of its brothers and sisters. It is dragged perhaps a thousand or two thousand miles this way by Jupiter, or it gets a good tug in the other direction by Venus. Mars and Saturn also do their little best to force the earth away from its strict path. However, our earth does not suffer much from these irregularities. It pursues its route fairly enough, just as a coach from London to Brighton will get to its destination notwithstanding the fact that it has to swerve a little from its path whenever it meets other vehicles on the way, or when the coachman wishes to avoid a piece of the road on which stones have been freshly laid down.

The track followed by Uranus was found to be somewhat irregular, like that of every other planet. Jupiter gave it a pull, and so did Saturn, and at first it was thought that the irregularities which were perceived could be explained by the action of these planets, so big and so well known. Here is a question of calculation; it involves a very long and a very hard piece of work, but it is possible to estimate how far each of the other planets is capable of dragging Uranus from its path. Is it not remarkable that in the working out long calculations we should be able to find what one planet hundreds of millions of miles away was able to do to another planet still further off, and not only for today or yesterday, but for past time extending over more than a century?

When the calculations had been made which showed how much the known planets could disturb Uranus, it was found that there were still some deviations of the planet that remained unexplained. They were not large, they only amounted to showing that the body was just a little astray from the spot where the calculations indicated it should be. The rest of astronomy was so perfect, and the law of attraction prevailed so universally, that it was thought the law of attraction must provide some way of explaining the behavior of Uranus. He could not have left his track of his own accord; therefore there must be some agency at work upon him of which we did not know. What could this unknown source of disturbance be? Every such trouble had hitherto been found to be a consequence of the attraction of gravitation; therefore there must be some unknown body pulling at Uranus which no one has ever seen. Where could it be? How was it to be discovered? Such were the questions which were asked, and they were answered in a most satisfactory manner.

First of all, which sort of body could it be that was pulling Uranus? It is obvious that none of the stars would be competent to produce so great an effect; they are all so far off that they have nothing whatever to say to any of the domestic matters in our little solar system, which is a group by itself. It would be more reasonable to suppose that there must be yet another planet which nobody had ever recognized, but which affected Uranus so as to account for his truant behavior. To begin to search for this planet with telescopes without some guidance would be futile; in fact, astronomers had been scanning the heavens for planets for nearly fifty years, and though several had been discovered, they all belong to the zone of little planets, and none of them were big enough to pull Uranus about appreciably.

Of course, if all the stars could be blotted out of the sky so that nothing but planets were left, then, by sweeping the telescope over the heavens, every planet that exists might be speedily found. The difficulty is that the planets, which are either small or very distant, look so like the stars that it is impossible to recognize them among the millions of glittering points in the sky. It was, however, hoped that the unknown planet would be large enough to be visible in the telescope, if only we knew exactly where to point it.

Two illustrious astronomers, Adams of Cambridge, and Leverrier of Paris, both separately undertook an astonishing piece of calculation They tried to find out the position of the unknown planet from the mere fact that it deranged Uranus in a particular way.

The two great astronomers had thus discovered a planet, but as yet it was only a planet on paper. Those who could judge of the subject had no doubt that the planet was really in the sky, but just as you like to prove that you have found the correct answer to your sum, so people were naturally anxious to prove the truth of the wonderful sum that Adams and Leverrier had worked out. Leverrier calculated that the new planet on a certain night would be in a particular position on the sky. Accordingly he wrote to Dr. Galle, of the observatory at Berlin, requesting him on the evening in question to point his telescope to the very spot indicated, and there he would see a planet which human eye had never before beheld. Of course, Dr. Galle was only too delighted to undertake so marvelous commission. The evening was fine, the telescope was opened; it was directed towards the heavens, and there, in the very spot which the calculations of Leverrier had indicated, shone the beautiful little planet. At Cambridge arrangements had also been made to search for the new member of the solar system in accordance with Professor Adams' calculations.

There also the planet that had given all this trouble to Uranus was brought to light. At first it looked like a star, as all such planets do, but that it was not a star was speedily proved by the two tests which are such indications of a planet. First the body was so moving that its position with respect to the adjacent stars was constantly changing. Then, when a strong magnifying power was placed on the telescope, the little object was seen, not to be a mere starlike point, but to expand into the little disc which shows us we are not looking at a distant sun, but at a world like our own.

Was not this truly a great discovery? Have we not shown you how entitled the calculations of astronomers are to our respect, when we find that they actually discovered the existence of a majestic planet before the telescope had revealed it? See also the greatly increased interest that belongs to Herschel's discovery of Uranus. We can hardly imagine anything that would have given more gratification to this old astronomer than to think that his Uranus should have given rise to a discovery even more splendid than his own. He died, however, more than twenty years before this achievement.

The authorities who decide on such matters christened the new planet Neptune, and this body wanders round on the outskirts of our solar system, requiring for each journey a period of no less than 165 years. The circle thus described has a radius thirty times as great as that of the earth's track.

THE FOXGLOVE BELLS

Hey diddle-diddle! the cat with the fiddle
Could never have play'd the tune
That trembles and swells from the foxglove bells
When the elves dance under the moon!

Folks there are who never have heard
The chime that the flow'r bells ring,
As the haunted breeze their belfry-tow'rs
All happily sets a-swing;
Folks there are who never have seen
The dance of the elfin band;
But whoever denies, a child is wise
When its heart is in Wonderland!

Hey diddle-diddle! the cat with the fiddle
Could never have play'd the tune
That trembles and swells from the foxglove bells
When the elves dance under the moon!

There are far more things in heaven and earth
Than the oldsters comprehend!
Not one of them all has found the place
Where the glimmering rainbows end!
When they get there they'll hear the peal
That thrills from the shaking bells,
And they'll see, perchance, the elves a-dance
In the land where a child's heart dwells.

Hey diddle-diddle! the cat with the fiddle
Could never have play'd the tune
That trembles and swells from the foxglove bells
When the elves dance under the moon!

Now only those who have heard the chime
Of the blossomy steeples tall,
And the tinkling notes from the dainty throats
Of the harebells sweet and small,
Can hope to see the elfin-folk
A-dance in the moonlight clear—
And till those who have found the flow'rbells' sound
You never, no never, can hear!

Hey diddle-diddle! the cat with his fiddle
Could never have play'd the tune
That airily swells from the foxglove bells
When the elves dance under the moon!

The pleasure of love is in loving: we are happier in the passion we feel than in that we inspire.—La Rochefoucauld

David Livingstone; a Hero's Childhood

A hundred years ago Central Africa was unknown to the civilized world. The man who explored a great part of it and who showed to many of the black men who were natives of that vast region how a Christian should live and die was David Livingstone. In "Stories of Famous Men and Women," edited by J. Edward Parrott, M.A., LL.D., we may read how he grew to be a traveler, a missionary, a scholar and a hero. This is the story of his boyhood, no less marvelous than that of the deeds of his manhood.

He was born in 1813 and died in 1873. Livingstone's forefathers were hardworking people, noted through all the countryside for their honesty. Of his parents we read:

"David Livingstone's father was a man of deep piety and a great reader of religious books, and he set a most worthy example to his five sons and two daughters, of whom David was his second son. The mother was delicate, but she had a flow of good spirits, and though her husband's means were scanty, she did her best to make both ends meet.

"Even while David was a child he showed some of the qualities which made him so renowned in later years. Before he was ten years of age he had explored all the district about Blantyre, and had climbed to a higher part of the ruins of Bothwell Castle than any other boy in the neighborhood. He had also begun to collect flowers and shells, an occupation of which he never tired all his life through. Though he was of a wandering and daring disposition, he was a dutiful son and was ever ready to help his mother in her household work.

"He swept the house and scrubbed the floor, and such was his passion for thoroughness that he even cleaned 'under the door mat.'

"At the age of ten he was sent to the cotton factory as a 'piecer,' that is, one who ties together the threads that are broken by the spinning jenny. He worked hard at the factory during the day and spent his evenings in instructing himself. Out of his first week's earnings he bought a Latin grammar and during the long, dark Winter evenings he pored over it diligently. Before he was sixteen he had made such progress that he could read the Latin poets Virgil and Horace with ease.

"Think of it, you boys and girls for whom education is made so easy and pleasant nowadays! David's work began in the morning and it was eight in the evening before his day's task was done. Yet as soon as he had taken tea he was off to an evening school for two hours' diligent study. Nor did that conclude his day's labors, for he usually worked hard at his books until midnight. At precisely twelve his mother would appear, shut up his book and send him off to bed.

"David meant to become a learned man and his love of knowledge was the consuming passion of his life. He took his books to the factory with him, and when all was going well managed to snatch a few minutes for reading.

"'My reading in the factory,' he says, 'was carried on by placing the book on a portion of the spinning jenny, so that I could catch sentence after sentence as I passed at my work.'

You must not suppose that it was 'all work and no play' with David. He was fond of all outdoor sports and played just as hard as he worked whenever he had an opportunity. He was a powerful swimmer and loved nothing better than swimming against his companions in the Clyde. He was also fond of fishing. One day he caught a fine salmon, and managed to smuggle it home, to the great joy of his brothers and sisters."

Punishing a Baby Elephant

In a recent exchange it is stated that elephants are amazingly like human beings in the way they discipline their young. The following amusing incident was seen by a traveller in an extensive lumber yard in Burma.

While the adult elephants were faithfully at work the youngsters played about the yard. The elephant that attracted the traveller's attention was hauling, in her chain harness, a huge tree trunk from the bank of the river.

She had a heavy load, a fact that her offspring did not realize. Bent on playing a prank, he wound his little trunk about one of the chain traces and pulled back with all his strength.

Conscious of the suddenly increased weight, the mother stopped and looked around. She saw the youngster and shook her head solemnly, but, paying no further heed to his teasing, bent again to her work. Meanwhile the little rascal with his mischievous trunk had loosened the ring that fastened the traces to the load.

While the mother was straining to set her burden in motion again, her rascally son pulled with all his might against her, and pulled so sturdily that she was quite unaware that she had been disconnected from her load. Then, suddenly, the youngster let go. Naturally enough, the mother was thrown to her knees and her driver hurled in a wide circle from her back.

The culprit sought a huge woodpile that seemed to offer him at least a temporary protection. His mother, however, was soon in pursuit, and he had to flee. Round and round the woodpile he dodged, but his mother, with her iron harness clanking noisily behind her, kept close at his heels.

Although the little one's greater ability gained some space for him at the corners, his mother eventually overtook him. The first blow of her trunk drew from him a bawl of pain. At the second he sank, quite humbled to his knees, and then he endured without a murmur, although with many tears, a sound thrashing. Finally the mother let him up. With tears still streaming and with drooping trunk he took his disconsolate way out of the yard.

The little fellow had won the complete sympathy of the observer. Consequently he was overjoyed to witness during the noon hour a touching reconciliation. The mother did all she could to comfort the penitent little culprit; she caressed him with her trunk, cuddled him up against her, and [illegible] loves you."—Family Herald and Weekly Star.

Doing Up Dance Shoes Work for Leisure Hours

The girl with clever fingers is making herself the most fascinating shoe buckles just now from odds and ends from the bargain counter, or perchance from the family piece drawer.

Scraps of brocaded ribbon, tulle, odd pairs of paste shoe buckles too small for the present fashion, can be combined to make the most alluring of jazz slipper decorations.

Long narrow fringed "brogue" tongues embroidered in cut steel beads with a looped fringe to match are the very latest notion, and are most easily made.

Take a strip of velvet or satin ribbon—a good firm quality—seven inches long and two and a half inches wide, double it and embroider it with a light tracery of cut steel beads. Add a looped fringe of steel beads just under an inch deep to the doubled edge, tack the fringed tongue thus made into a pair of plain black satin shoes, and they are ready to wear.

Gold beads or ivory tinted beads are also charming for embroidery and fringe.

A couple of small paste buckles, a scrap of turquoise blue and gold or jade green and gold (or silver) ribbon, or brocade—the merest atom is required—and a yard of inch-and-a-half wide gold or silver tinsel ribbon make a pair of lovely ornaments for dancing shoes.

Pass the scrap of colored tinsel brocade through each buckle and add a pleating of narrow tinsel ribbon to make a ruche to surround the top and sides of the buckle attached invisibly to the central scrap of brocade; leave the lower edge of the buckle bare and it is ready to attach to the shoe, with a couple of firm stitches placed at either side.

Fragile tulle ornaments are amazingly pretty, though their lives are short. To make them take a pair of small paste buckles and pass a scrap of velvet, silk or tinsel brocade through the centre, turning in the edges at the back, and over-sewing them to make a firm foundation to which the tulle can be attached.

Now add a ruching, or "fluff," of black or colored tulle, with a cut edge, to make it light looking; though if it is desired to make the ornament a trifle less ephemeral, run a gold or silver tinsel thread along the cut edge of the tulle a quarter of an inch in, before making it up.

Shoe ornaments of a slightly less fragile type, which look extremely smart in wear, may consist of a small paste buckle or ornament threaded with gold tissue ribbon, with two or three upstanding loops and ends of black velvet ribbon intermingled with a gold tinsel loop or two.

A similar ornament made entirely of loops and ends of oxidised tinsel ribbon, caught with a steel ornament, is effective, and one of the simplest and prettiest of all consists of a 9-inch long strip of black velvet ribbon—rather a stiff make—1½ inches wide, folded in half with sharply dog-eared ends, to make an upstanding "tongue" to an afternoon or evening shoe, caught with a small paste buckle. Half a yard of ribbon makes "tongues" for a pair of shoes.

An afternoon walking shoe which has seen its best days looks much refreshed by the addition of a double fringed "tongue" arranged brogue fashion to fall over (and hide) the greater part of the front of the shoe. To make it, take a quarter of a yard of 3-inch wide stout silk Petersham ribbon, in the required shade. For each "tongue" fringe out the ends to the depth of about an inch and double the ribbon so that one end falls an inch below the other. Attach the "tongue" to the inside of the front of the shoe by the doubled edge, and it is ready to wear.

Helpful Hints for the Young Mother

The child is sensitive to its environment. Just as in the case of grown-ups, cheerful surroundings with plenty of fun and laughter make for his health.

When baby's teething begins and he is feverish and restless, instead of rocking and lullabying and walking the floor with him, just give him a warm bath and a bit of cool boiled water to drink with a spoon. This treatment really acts like a charm.

When a young child's skin is much chafed, do not wash it with soap and water. Use thick barley water instead. Do not powder the skin and expect the chafing to heal. That will do never a particle of good. Instead, smear the skin with a little boracic ointment. Vaseline will do just as well.

Just because mashed potatoes are soft do not think that baby can eat them at about six months of age. Potatoes should not be fed to him until he is at least twenty months old, for they are hard to digest, even by many grown folks. When you do give them to him, be sure that they are well cooked. Undercooked vegetables will acquaint the youngster with stomach trouble, much to the whole family's sorrow.

As soon as baby gets old enough to eat solids, do be sure to teach him to eat slowly with the mouth closed and to chew well. If you count aloud the number of times he chews his food, he will think it a good game and thus acquire the valuable habit of thorough mastication.

The Charm of Black Embroidery

After the riot of color which has been displayed in dazzle and Futurist designs it is somewhat of a relief here and there to find the simplicity of black. Unadorned by any color, black embroideries strike a note of individuality and throw up the outlines of a design in an unrivalled manner.

The needlewoman who is working in black, however, must guard against choosing too heavy effects. Also black should never be worked on a white background. Biscuit color, jade, grey or china blue may be chosen with beautiful results, but except in special circumstances, it is better to avoid stronger shades.

It should be remembered that ornament worked without variety of color or shading will depend more for its effect on change in stitchery than does other embroidery. Thus it is always well to work in some little fancy background stitches in any open spaces which may occur in the design.

A big pattern of pine branches makes a splendid border or heading for a portiere curtain, while the black effect might be used in some simple stitcheries for casement curtains in the same room. The best way of working the pine needles is with a loosely drawn loop stitch, showing quite a visible space between each thread. This stitch will provide a firm outline for each motif, which is very desirable when the pattern is big and bold. On a smaller piece of work the spines could be worked in straight outline, but this gives a more feathery effect. The cones and branches may be worked in solid stitch to bring out strongly the characteristics of the design.

The placing of a border on a curtain should always be a matter for careful consideration. It should either be well clear of the bottom hem or about a quarter of the length away from the top, so that it may show free from the folds of the fulness below the pole. A deep hem, stitched with a drawn-thread border in black wool makes an effective border for such a design. Crewel wool should be used for the work.

If a great thing can be done at all, it can be done easily; but it is in that kind of ease with which a tree blossoms after long years of gathered strength.—Ruskin.

Among novelty blouses long fringe trimmed ones are holding their own.

Fans, New and Old

In an ancient household book of a great family kept in the sixteenth century there is a record made of "a fanne of feathers" valued at $6. Until the middle of the seventeenth century such fans were modish, and some, set in gem-encrusted handles, cost $200, which reminds us that we of this day are not unique in extravagant payments for such bibelots.

We are again this Autumn rejoicing in fans made of feathers, as we have been doing for many months past, and the fans we wield at present are in some cases facsimiles of those in fashion five and twenty years ago.

A Subtle Influence

But though all this proves that there is nothing even in fashion positively new, there is usually a subtle difference between past and present vogues.

There is something specially attractive in the single ostrich plume now wielded as a fan. It is so graceful, and if cleverly chosen, makes so effective a splash of color in a toilette scheme. A black frock of diaphanous tulle picked out here and there with pearl embroideries gains further distinction by the contrasting bright green of a long plume curled over at the summit, and set in mother-of-pearl stick from which a bunch of ribbons depends.

Or the novelty of dual colors may be expressed by one plume; dawn pink and a delicate blue, for example, or amber and white, and these single feathers, set in tortoiseshell, carved ivory or chased metal holders, or simply tied with tissue ribbon are infinitely charming.

As Draught Screens

Most of the young brides of this year have found feather fans among their wedding presents, some large enough to imitate the "sunshade" fans carried over a century ago by belles who valued their complexions, but had no parasols, and now very useful as draught screens when worn with an ultra-decollete dress.

Another delightfully artistic fan for which to look for now is one made of lace stretched over fragile sticks, a fan to open and close and with which to make great play of coquetry. Lace is becoming so fashionable again that it would be strange were this rarely beautiful type of fan to languish in retirement. It may be embellished with dainty paintings, and thus restore an industry which for years past has perforce been in abeyance.

A Feminine Bauble

The spangled mousseline or net fan is another pretty and most effective object, particularly in black, garnished with steel, jet or pearl, and mounted upon dull black sticks decorated with dainty traceries. To the debuntantes of today such fans will be absolute novelties.

With the revival of the fan a truly feminine bauble comes into its own again. Yet there were times when men carried them, for it is recorded that the long-handled fans of the early part of the seventeenth century, affected by women and sometimes used by them to rap the knuckles of recalcitrant children, were actually carried also by men of high dignity in the law and noted also for other distinctions. In these cases fans were regarded probably as safety valves, for ventilation was a poorly understood affair in old days.

THE CHINA EXCHANGE—AN IDEA

About eighteen months ago I bought a sweet breakfast service and a most fascinating tea service, each for six people. Of the latter there remain today four cups, three saucers, two plates, sugar basin—but no jug nor slop bowl. The breakfast service is reduced to just enough for three people and some oddments. A certain firm made a speciality of these designs, which are now out of stock. Other customers must be in much the same plight. Is it not a pity some firm does not suggest that the needs of their customers should be made known to each other? My four odd saucers might mate once more with odd cups belonging to someone else. Another, changing the color scheme of her room, may no longer need what remains of her sets, which would complete those of someone else.

Naturally the tradesman who kept the mart would charge a commission on every sale, and the china exchange could be the "side show" of the usual glass and china shop.

Training Course Pays Girls Training for Business Careers

Comparatively few of the women who have attained conspicuous success started their careers without special business or artistic training.

If a girl is thinking of supporting herself by her own efforts and possesses some natural talent, it behooves her to cultivate that talent so that it may be turned to commercial advantage. If she is without artistic tendencies, a course in one or more of the commercial lines open to women is suggested.

The girl without training or especial qualifications is handicapped at the very beginning of her career, as she is rarely trusted with any but the simplest of routine work, for which she is meagerly paid.

This is the day of business as well as professional specialists, and one must be trained in one line of work in order to specialize.

Training Course Counts

The progressive girl realizes the advantages which come with a few months' training in a particular branch of office work, fits herself accordingly and is able to start on her career with the knowledge that she can step into any office prepared to carry out the work given her and that she is able to command a respectable salary.

Any large commercial house is evidence of the fact that it pays to spend a few months training for work in an office. The girls who start fresh from grammar school or high school are usually put to work opening or sorting mail, running errands from one department to another, filing, acting as information clerk, etc., for which they are paid a nominal weekly salary, while the girls in the same house who do stenography, bookkeeping, billing, etc., are paid on a much higher scale of wages. It is usually from the latter class of workers that a girl is chosen occasionally to fill one of the few executive positions which the house has to offer its women employees.

When young women are ready to start to work they are inclined to feel that the extra time spent in learning a special branch of office work is that much time wasted, and they haven't sufficient patience to give to the task, hence they start working for a pittance and keep on working for years on little more than that.

Preparedness

A young woman worked as stenographer and secretary for four years before her marriage, and when, after the death of her husband, she found herself forced to earn a living for herself and two children, a few weeks only were necessary for her to again prepare herself to take dictation, and she was able to start working for a considerably larger salary than she would if she had had no previous business training.

The time and money spent in fitting herself properly for work in an office are more than repaid to the business girl in the desirability of the jobs opened to her by the training. Also a sense of independence is given the trained worker, for she is not dependent on one business house for a job, as is often the case with the untrained.

To every young girl who is considering going to work when vacation time is over, it is suggested that she prepare herself properly for the business world by spending some little time learning to do stenography, bookkeeping, or to manipulate one of the many efficiency devices with which the modern office is equipped.

Prince Chose Daughter Of C. P. R. Fireman As Dance Partner

If further proof of the real democratic spirit and the keen eye for a pretty girl, possessed by His Royal Highness, is necessary, it is forthcoming in the latest anecdote of his trip through the West. The incident, which is one of the prettiest of the many graceful little acts of the Prince during his trip, happened at Lethbridge. It is characteristic of the many actions which have endeared him to the people of this country.

At the informal dance which was given in his honor in the southern city, in lieu of the formal affair which had to be postponed, the Prince made the usual good fellow of himself. During the evening he espied Miss Bessie Little, daughter of one of the C.P.R. locomotive firemen, sitting in the onlookers' part of the hall.

Miss Little was not taking part in the festivities and had her coat and hat on at the time. The Prince requested one of his equerries to have her introduced to him. She hurriedly threw off her wraps and stepped forward to meet His Royal Highness. He asked her for a dance and later in the evening again asked her to be his partner.

This is now the outstanding feature of the royal visit to Lethbridge, and has endeared the royal visitor to the hearts of all. The incident is only one of many of its kind which have happened during the tour.

TO CLEAN A MIRROR

Few people really know the delight of an absolutely clean mirror. Any attempts to clean the glass with soap and water usually result in a smeared effect that is very unsatisfactory. Here is a plan by means of which the mirror may be brought up to the highest state of brilliancy. Secure a very soft sponge and see that this is perfectly clean. Then dip it in a little methylated spirits and rub gently over the glass. Now dust the surface with some very fine whitening, or, better still, precipitated chalk. Leave for a moment and then wipe the glass with a dry cloth. Next take another cloth—the softer this is the better—and it is important that it should be clean. Rub the glass briskly and quite soon a fine polish will result. A still more effective way is to do the final polishing with a silk handkerchief. In the case of a very large mirror, it is a good plan to do the work in sections, as it is important to dust over the whitening or chalk while the glass is still moistened with the spirit.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

To remove a scorch from linen, cut an onion in half and rub the scorched part with it, and then soak it in cold water. The mark will then disappear.

A delicious salad is made of bananas cut in slices, dipped in mayonnaise, rolled in minced nuts and served on white lettuce heart leaves.

To clean a copper boiler effectively, it must be cleaned while it is hot. Moisten a cloth with kerosene and rub it carefully over the outside of the boiler. All stains and smoke will disappear and a clean surface is then before you—to be polished if you wish.

Nail an old skate upside down outside the back or the front door, or on the veranda, and you have a good shoe scraper, which will save lots of dirt from being carried int othe house.

Set the rolls of the wringer tight for cotton materials, loose for linen, or squeeze linen in the hands; hard wringing creases it badly. Fold buttons flat on the inside to prevent tearing out.

Soap, washing powders, dish-washing, grease, won't hurt hands if you keep a lemon on the sink and use it. When the dishes are finished simply rub the lemon over the hands. The lemon juice removes the grease stains, cuts the alkali in the soap, and leaves the skin soft, smooth and white.

To prevent buttons from being broken or pulled off by the wringer, button up the garments and turn them wrong side out before putting them through the wringer.

The perfect cup of tea—that is, one which contains the maximum amount of caffeine and aroma with a minimum amount of tannin—is brewed as follows: Bring freshly drawn water to a boil; pour it on one even teaspoonful of tea for each cup, in an earthenware or china pot which has been previously scalded, and let it remain covered for not more than three minutes; then decant or strain into another receptacle. The spent leaves should not be used again, because practically all the stimulating and aromatic constituents have been removed and that which is left might be injurious to health. (This recipe was furnished by a supervising tea examiner).

To save gas, turn it down after the water begins to boil. Food will cook just as quickly when simmering gently as when boiling fast.

There is no reason why the modern kitchen should not be comfortable. See that your floor is covered with linoleum. You will be surprised how much less tired your feet will be at the end of the day. Have a table in the centre of the room, rather than at the side. This saves steps, as your distance to each part of the room is reduced.

Educational Secretary Explains I.O.D.E. War Memorial Scheme

"These children are left, a very sacred trust to us, and we must not forget that trust and the sacrifice that was made for us." So said Mrs. George H. Smith, national educational secretary of the I.O.D.E., at a meeting of that organization held recently in Toronto, in explaining to the Municipal Chapter the war memorial scheme launched by the order for the sons and daughters of soldiers, sailors and men of the air force who fell in the world struggle, or who were totally disabled.

The I.O.D.E. will co-operate with the pensions board and with the women's institutes, and will step in financially where the Government educational scheme ends.

Each of the nine Provinces will also be entitled to an I.O.D.E. provincial travelling scholarship in history, which will give the winner an opportunity to take a post-graduate course in Britain for a year. At the end of the year the nine scholars will compete for an I.O.D.E. travelling fellowship, providing for another year abroad. The I.O.D.E scheme also provides for a lecture foundation for the study of current Imperial history. This will bring to Canada a qualified lecturer, not necessary from the British Isles, but from some part of the Empire, to discuss questions of Empire interest.

So much for the war memorial scheme. A Dominion-wide scheme of educational propaganda has also been arranged. Canada has a population of 8,000,000, and eighty-five different languages and dialects are spoken within her borders. To weld these divers races into a harmonious whole, the I.O.D.E. has arranged for free illustrated lectures for the school children throughout Canada on the history and geography of the Empire, within the next five years. Also an historical library where foreign children are taught. Collections of historical pictures in our schools will also play their part in teaching the children of the Dominion what Canada stands for.

Mrs. Smith is now en route West on an extended tour of cities in which chapters of the Imperial Order of Daughters of the Empire are organized. She will be in Victoria early in November.

WOMAN'S LOVE

"As deep as Woman's Love," quoth lightly Maid with heart yet free.
"Speak not, my child, of sacred things in jest"—
from One who had fulfilled Her Destiny.
"'Tis Woman's Love upholds, controls, encompasses the earth,
Enduring all, embracing all—all Death, all Life, and, what is more than these, all Birth!"

Every wise politician is both Radical and Conservative. He has two eyes to see with and two hands to work with, and to condemn him to be one or the other is to put one eye out and to tie one hand behind his back.—J. A. Froude.

Keep Mother Young as Long as You Can

Girls, keep your mother young. I give you this advice because I have just been reading a diatribe by a famous dressmaker on the question of the present-day tendency for older women to dress in the same style as younger ones. She said that the sight of women doing this had given her several "serious shocks"—and she proceeded to wield her pen in castigation of the older women who had the audacity to wear short frocks and becoming hats!

I think her philosophy is a particularly foolish one, very depressing and bad—especially bad—for the younger women. There are, of course, frocks and hats which emphatically are not suitable for any woman no longer in her first youth, and far be it from me to recommend that "mutton should be dressed as lamb," but nevertheless there is no greater asset for a girl than a youthfully-minded and youthfully-looking mother, and it is a good policy for every girl to encourage her mother to keep young as long as she can. Girls can do much in this matter. Some women when their daughters grow up let themselves drift into the slough of premature old age without a struggle—almost with alacrity. A self-denying daughter pays the penalty, for ultimately she becomes a nurse-companion—not to an invalid mother, a different matter altogether, but to a mother who has settled down voluntarily into a lazy elderliness which robs her of interest in life and makes her a burden to herself and everyone else. The first symptom of this is dowdy dressing.

"I'm elderly—what does it matter how I dress?" so the mother argues to herself.

A young girl can look nice in almost any clothes, but the older woman cannot, and therefore it matters very much what she wears, and it matters to her daughter, too.

George Eliot spoke of the mother standing "like a malignant prophecy" behind her daughter. "Such as I am, she will shortly be." It is quite true. A well-dressed mother sets off her daughter. A young-looking mother makes her daughter look young. Besides which, the daughter of a mother who wears a flower-decked hat is likely to have a more cheerful time than one whose mamma wraps herself in woolen shawls and complains of draughts.

Sometimes, however, it is not the mother's fault that she drifts into elderliness before her time. This happens because she is unselfish, grudging every penny spent on herself, preferring to spend it on her children. But as the children grow up they should in their turn make sacrifices and help their mother to be the good-looking and attractive woman which nature intended her to be.—F. S., in The London Daily Mail.

RECIPES

Pear Marmalade

Weigh, peel, cut in halves and core as many ripe mellow pears as you desire to use. Put them into a preserving pan, barely cover with cold water, bring to the boil and simmer gently until the fruit is tender. Lift them out of the water and put the skins and cores of the pears into the water and boil gently for an hour. Strain and make a syrup of the water by boiling one and a half pounds sugar and a quart of the liquid to every three pounds of fruit. Boil this syrup fast until it sets, when a little is put on a plate. Stir the pears into this syrup and boil all together for a few minutes. Then turn into jars, cover in the usual way and store in a dry, cool place.

Small Cucumber Pickles

One hundred small cucumbers, one bunch celery, one pound small pickle onions, half gallon cider vinegar, whole mustard seed. Scrub cucumbers with vegetable brush and soak three hours in ice water. To each quart of vinegar add one cup sugar and half cup salt and set on stove to heat. Have celery washed carefully and cut into small pieces lengthwise and then across, and onions peeled. While vinegar is heating pack cucumbers (whole) and pieces of celery and onions into jars tight and add one teaspoon whole mustard seed to each jar. Fill jars with boiling vinegar and seal. If vinegar is quite strong add little water. The better the vinegar the better the pickles.

Coffee Charlotte Russes

Beat the white of one egg to a white foam, add a dash of salt and half pint of heavy cream and beat until stiff, then fold in four tablespoons of powdered sugar and two tablespoons of very strong black coffee. Line individual moulds with sponge cake, fill with the cream and chill near the ice before serving.

Banana Salad

Peel a ripe banana, remove the strings, cut in halves lengthwise, spread with a mixture of chopped nut meats, chopped raisins, chopped dates and chopped preserved ginger; place the two halves together, then cut in two pieces, dispose in nests of lettuce leaves and sprinkle with French dressing. This is sufficient for two persons.

Codfish With Potatoes

One cupful codfish cut in small pieces, two cupfuls potatoes cut in cubes, one garlic clove, chopped; one tablespoonful chopped parsley, three tablespoonfuls olive oil, one and one-half cupfuls water, in one teaspoonful paprika. Cook the garlic and parsley in the olive oil for two minutes. Add the fish, potatoes, paprika and water. Cover the pan and cook the fish and potatoes until the potatoes are soft. Add the milk. Serve the fish on a platter garnished with parsley or tomatoes.

Apple Roll

Mix and sift two cups of flour with two teaspoons of baking powder, rub in two tablespoons of butter or lard. Make a stiff dough by adding milk. Roll thin, about twice as long as the dough is wide. Brush over with melted butter, spread evenly with chopped apple and add sugar and cinnamon to taste. Roll like jelly roll, cut in slices an inch thick and lay cut side up on a greased baking pan. Bake in a moderate oven about half an hour and serve hot with sugar and cream.

DISPLAY WHICH WON CUP FOR THE SOLDIERS

The display entered by the Vocational Branch of the Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment at the recent Home Products Fair, Hudson Bay Building, afforded a splendid demonstration of the useful occupational and bedside work which is being done by the returned men who are still under treatment for injuries or disablement they sustained during the war. Weaving, basket-making, wood-carving, embroidery, metal-work, high-class carpentry and cabinet-making, etc., made up a highly interesting and attractive display.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

No letter to the editor will be inserted except over the proper signature and address of the writer. This rule admits of no exception.

He believed that his inspirations came direct from the Lord. He is said to have conversed with angels and by divine privilege had seen the heavens and hells.

His greatest work, "Divine Love and Divine Providence" clearly and briefly set forth his theosophic system. He wrote many other works: "Heaven and Hell" is amongst the best known.

Swedenborg was the founder of the Swedenborgian Church, or as it is also called, the Church of New Jerusalem.

There are a comparatively large number of Swedenborgian churches, well attended, in most every large city in the United States; also in all the Scandinavian countries, and quite a large number of this denomination in England.

Swedenborg's doctrines regarding the state and occupations of those whom he believed to have passed to heaven and hell are interesting, to say the least, and his ideas are the sanctity and perpetuity of the marriage tie, and the "Eternal Memory of the Soul," may be read and pondered with profit by many today; especially by those sufficiently developed spiritually to fully appreciate their wonderful and beautiful teachings.

However one may regard the genuineness of Swedenborg's claims to special divine revelation and marvelous visions, no one can read his works and fail to be deeply impressed with the purity and loftiness of his conceptions in spite of their at times seemingly extravagant suppositions.

A very wonderful and interesting work by a Swedenborgian writer (Fernald by name), which I believe is now out of print, is entitled "God in His Providence." I may add that all Swedenborg's doctrines are based on an earnest belief in the Holy Trinity, and therefore distinctly compatible with Christianity in the main.

Blue Jays

Sir,—The curious invasion of the city and surrounding districts by the Blue Jay is attracting the attention of everyone, especially those interested in bird life. They are to be seen everywhere, in gardens, and in the parks, and even invading the streets of the suburbs in some instances. In all my experiences, and that of other observers with whom I have spoken, a similar instance of this singular invasion cannot be recalled. Naturally the prophets are busily employed predicting a hard Winter, and other disasters.

The Blue Jay is amongst the handsomest of our native birds, and his cheerful note, although not musical, is most pleasant, and I sincerely hope that his peccadillos in the shape of picking holes in apples and carrying away small potatoes will be overlooked, and he will be left unmolested.

Community Shipbuilding

Sir,—Re the Board of Trade meeting this afternoon. I, as one of the returned soldiers who attended that meeting went away feeling pleased with the progress of our discussion on the community shipbuilding scheme.

Mr. J. O. Cameron made the hit of the meeting when he made the proposition for building 20 brigs or schooners for carrying our raw material, lumber and other imperishable products, such as canned salmon, whale products and copper matte, and other necessities of the human race that are not urgently wanted.

Now, sir, why do I pen these few lines? After leaving the Board of Trade chambers with a lot of my comrades I was struck by their disheartened tone of voice; but I assured them it was a very promising meeting in my estimation, and would bear fruit.

The only thing that struck me as bad business form on such a vital question was that the committee did not have a report to hand to the chairman. I would like to say to that committee; they must forget that apathetic attitude in such a vital question as confronts us in this Province at this present time. We must do all in our power to avoid what is looming up on the horizon not far distant from us all.

I have my teeth in, and you cannot shake me off; any more than I could be in my athletic career.

FRANK P. SLAVIN, M.E.

Ogden Point, Victoria, B.C., October 24, 1919.

P.S.—Sir, there is another side to this scheme we must not lose sight of. We are a maritime Province and this sailing ship business will be a chance for our young men to take to seafaring for their livelihood, and help teach naval men of our own for our own protection.

A Dominion Matter

Sir,—Re ex-soldier's funeral: At a meeting held last Fall with Dean Quainton in the chair at the C.E.M.S. Hall for the purpose of discussing soldiers' problems, one of the resolutions of the evening referred to soldiers dying in hospitals, but was worded to read that all soldiers who had served in the Canadian Army or Navy should be given a suitable funeral at the expense of the Dominion, unless the relatives wished otherwise. Mr. Frank Giolma, M.PP., thought at the time this was a good idea and made a promise that he would interest himself in this matter. Might I ask through the columns of your paper whether it was brought to the notice of the Provincial House, and what answer he obtained?

WM. C. CLARKE.

R.M.D. 1, Sidney, B. C., Oct. 21, 1919.

Soldiers' Club

Sir,—I wish to bring to your attention the existence of a club for discharged British Army men in San Francisco. All men who served under the Union Jack are eligible for membership.

The club, or rather association, started through the common desire felt by returned C. E. F. men down here to stick together. The American clubs showed us that we were none too welcome, so it was left to us to organize.

This we have done quite successfully, having a membership of 100 in San Francisco and of 96 in Oakland.

This is the only officially recognized British Army Club on the Pacific Coast.

We find it very hard to get publicity so that returning Canadians might know of our association. Could you spare us a few lines in your paper? The mention of our association would help us considerably, as Victoria is a big demobilization centre, and men are constantly coming down here.

Over 90 per cent of us served with the Canadians and are Canadians. Mr. Lloyd, our president, is a prominent English resident, Major Dawson, our secretary, was one of the original 10th Battalion; our vice-president, one of the original 2nd Division.

D. RALPH CANNING.

Assistant Secretary, late 35th Battery, C. F. A., Eagles' Hall Building, San Francisco, U. S. A.

Hon. Dr. S. F. Tolmie

Sir,—Monday the voters of Victoria will be called upon to decide who is to represent them at Ottawa—the choice lying between Dr. S. F. Tolmie and a Mr. Barnard. The former is a native of Victoria, being born and bred amongst you, and his interest being altogether centred in Victoria. Of his abilities, as a man eminently fitted for the position he holds as Minister of Agriculture, I feel that I am well fitted to speak, inasmuch as during my incumbency of office under the administration of the Hon. J. H. Turner, he was selected as the man best fitted as Inspector of Animal Industry, so much so that the Hon. Sidney Fisher, Minister of Agriculture in the Liberal administration, appointed him as Dominion Inspector, and eventually raised his salary on condition that he relinquish the Provincial appointment and devote his time entirely to the Dominion.

In addition to his qualities alluded to he is a thorough agriculturist. This much for his qualifications as a Minister of the Crown.

As a Victorian, with all his interests centred here, I need scarcely speak, and his position in the Cabinet is such that he will be enabled to do a great deal in securing public works for Victoria and the Island generally.

Of his opponent, I can say but little as I have not the honor of his acquaintance, but this I can confidently state that he is a stranger in Victoria, and comes from a section bitterly opposed to Victoria and, therefore, what can you expect if he is elected to represent you at Ottawa.

Fellow electors, be not deceived by the specious and utterly untenable so-called facts which are presented to you by this stranger, but vote for Dr. Tolmie, a Victorian of Victoria and a Minister of the Crown. Do not throw away the substance for the shadow.

J. R. ANDERSON.

Government Street, Victoria, B.C., October 25, 1919.

Tomorrow's Vote

Sir,—May I be permitted the use of your valuable colums to express a few thoughts re the election on Monday next? Looking at the issue from every viewpoint it is of the utmost importance to us all that Dr. S. F. Tolmie, Minister of Agriculture, be returned at the head of the poll by a handsome majority. This stand is further evidenced by the fact that the labor men themselves—or their representatives—the Metal Trades Council a few months ago—(shortly after the resignation of the Hon. Mr. Crerar, Minister of Agriculture) passed a resolution requesting that Dr. S. F. Tolmie be appointed to that responsible position. This was a very wise move, indeed, and one which no doubt carried a great deal of weight both in this city and at Ottawa, and is one which ought and will be supported by all workingmen who have their own and the best interests of the city at heart. That they will back Dr. Tolmie up with their votes is unquestioned. They realize as no others can the vital necessity of having a man at Ottawa who will be in a position to secure additional work for them. They realize that it is business and not sentiment that fills the dinner pail, that provides the comforts to fix the loved ones at home, and realising this they will fulfil the pledge assumed when they requested his (Dr. Tolmie's) appointment.

Now, Mr. Editor, from the business or workingman's, from the returned soldier's, his wife or dependents' best interest, for the best interest of our own fair city, that is the one and only stand to take—a vote for Dr. Tolmie means added prosperity.

It is rather amusing, Mr. Editor, to note the fact that Alberni, New Westminster and Vancouver have all combined together to show us Victorians what we ought and must do in the circumstances—we must defeat the Hon. Dr. Tolmie—why? Because it is the will of these chosen few—otherwise it will tend to the degeneration of the white race, the well-merited disapproval of Vancouver and New Westminster and the very direst penalties from the "Big Noise" of Alberni. Not one of the speakers can or dare say one word against the Hon. Dr. Tolmie. On the contrary, they admit he is eminently qualified for the position—more so than any previous occupant of that position—that he is clean, reliable and an indefatigable worker for his constituents and for the Dominion—and yet, it is hard to believe, they would like to see him defeated.

Why, Mr. Editor, do these rank outsiders—every one of them—view the drydock with such suspicion? Why do they think an expenditure of $5,000,000 on a drydock here would not be good for us all—and as a result of which it would mean that hundreds of thousands of dollars every month would be spent here repairing ships and the work attendant thereupon? Is it not because they would like the money spent in their own home town? It is very plain to be seen what their motives are—think it over—a vote for Dr. Tolmie means an era of prosperity such as Victoria has never seen before—and it is your duty and my duty to record our votes with that view before us.

Again, Mr. Editor, some 18 months ago Dr. Tolmie was the absolutely unanimous choice of the whole city, he has been in harness ever since and has more than made good in every pledge he made and in everything requested of him—be it by the humblest citizen or by the returned soldiers' organizations—and after such a test and after such a pledge given by us all that we would stand behind him if he proved worthy, do you or would any sane person think we are even going to hesitate as to our course? Never! Dr. Tolmie has made good, has proved his trustworthiness and is now honored—and through him Victoria and the whole Dominion is honored by his appointment to the position of Minister of Agriculture—his qualifications for which are voiced from one ocean to the other—a position which he will undoubtedly fill with honor to himself and us all. We, I say, pledged our words to support him if he made good, and now he (Dr. Tolmie) is before us again, and it is our duty and our privilege—any province in the Dominion would esteem it a very great honor to have him as their member—to support him as a clean, upright and honorable man and one who will be true to himself and to us all in the great work that lies before him.

We Victorians have never had such a grand opportunity as now—we have never failed in our duty and trust, and I know we never will. Let us one and all show our appreciation of the work Dr. Tolmie has already done and what he can and will do for us when he takes his seat in the Cabinet at Ottawa. Let us go to work Monday and work for his return as we never worked before—let us place him at the head of the poll by such a majority as will prove to him how we value him as a citizen and as a member—and then and then only will we have performed our "bit," and ushered in an era of prosperity unknown to us before.

"MORE FACTS(?) ABOUT BEARS"

By Richard L. Pocock

Harry and his young friend from the Old Country up at the old shack again the other day. Since his last visit he had been out after his first Vancouver Island deer, and, with tenderfoot's luck, had shot a very nice four-prong buck, or eight-point stag, as he preferred to call it. He was a very delighted young sportsmen and the three old tillicums listened with polite patience as he gave them a full and detailed account of how he had bagged his first deer.

"By the way," he said, as he finished the narrative, "they told me up there at the lake that there were lots of bear around on the hills just now after the blueberries and salal, I think they called it, and we did see some sign, but didn't come across any bear. You know, although I'm pleased as Punch to have got that fine stag, still I would have been even more pleased to have got a bear. I don't think they can be quite so easy to get a shot at in spite of what those fellows said, and it must surely be very exciting at times, even if they are, some of them, as easily scared as your yarn of the other evening would make one believe. Those other fellows told me some stories about bear hunting, too, and they certainly must have had some narrow shaves on some of their hunts, that is, if their accounts were strictly true."

Some Good Advice

"Young fellow," said old Dick, "when I first came to this country I was given a piece of advice by an old-timer which I found by experience quite worth having. It was this: In this country believe nothing you hear and only half what you see. The last half of that may be a little unnecessary in these days of prohibition, but, as to the first half, well, it showed he was wise. Now a bear story is a bear story. If it's a good one, you get a little fun out of it, but you don't need to believe it if you don't want to. There's true bear stories and true fish stories, of course, but it's sometimes mighty hard to pick 'em out. Maybe those fellows up the lake were pulling your leg a bit. Now Tom and Harry here could probably spin you a yarn or two about bears, if that's a subject which is interesting you just now, and it seems to be. What do you say, Tom? You must have had an encounter or two with Bruin in the course of your nefarious career. Why not let our young friend here in on a true bear story for a change?"

"True bear story, huh!" ejaculated Tom, as he struck a match on his pants and lit his third cigarette since supper. "Well, I don't suppose you want to hear about how many bears I've shot, or where and when I shot them. What you're looking for, I take it, is a yarn with some blood and thunder in it. I'm afraid you've come to the wrong shop, if you want to hear of a desperate fight for life or anything of that kind, but I can tell you a yarn about bear hunting with a fight in it, if you like, and, of course, it's true or I wouldn't be telling it, would I?

"This little episode I'm telling you of occurred not so very far from this very spot. You know that piece down there by the creek where the second growth on the sidehills is so thick; well, some time back, a year or so after the fire had been through there, that was just a tangle of fallen timber with nothing left standing and the berries had come to be thicker there than any piece I know of round these parts. It was a mighty likely place for a bear in the Fall, when they were filling up on berries, and I've reckoned his last account with more than one of them on that sidehill before now.

He Knew Where to Go

"One Fall there was a chap I knew who was dead keen to get a bear, and he asked me to take him out for a hunt. That place was as good a little piece of country to try as I knew of in those days and early one October morning saw us making for it, each packing a rifle. We worked up one side of the draw without seeing a thing, and were coming down at a slant across the other sidehill when we came to that bit of a rock bluff which sticks right up in the middle. Just as we got near the edge of the rock we heard the dickens' own rumpus down below; growls and grunts and crashing of bush, just as though there was a regular bear garden down below. We hurried to the edge of the bluff and looked over, and there, so help me, right down below us, not thirty yards away, were two big black bears just going at it as hard as they were worth.

"There was a very fine patch of ripe berries just there, and I take it the beasts were fighting over the grub; at any rate, whatever the cause of the scrap, they were sure going to it—uppercuts, swings, foul blows, clinches, bites and scratches—everything went in that scrap. They were so busily engaged in mauling each other they didn't see or hear us at all, and it was some time before we could recover from our surprise and remember that we had guns. The two bears were locked in a regular clinch, from which it would have needed a grizzly as referee to make them break, when I nudged my friend and whispered, 'You take the one to the right and I'll take the other fellow with that brown patch on him. When you get a good bead on him say, fire, and we'll both let fly together.' He waited a second or two while the bears were still clinched and up on their hind legs. 'Fire,' he yells. Wow! you ought to have seen what happened.

"My fellow dropped with a bullet in his neck and went over kicking on his back. The other chap was only slightly wounded, somewhere in the back apparently. He turned round once and made a sort of swipe at his own shoulder and then gee-hoss-o-fat, how he did just go for that other poor brute who was down with the k. o. landed. I guess he thought it was the other bear had stung him. Anyhow, he just landed on him and was tearing him to pieces when we both let drive again. We couldn't very well miss at that range, and both shots went home, and he collapsed right on top of the other fellow, and, when we got down to them there they were locked in each other's arms in a final clinch and blood and corruption all over the place. Oh! boys, that was some battle, believe me.

"Come to think of it, it was a dirty mean trick not to let them fight it out after getting complimentary ringside seats, so to speak."

"Some yarn, Tom, old boy, some yarn. But that's old stuff about bears fighting over the best grub," Harry chipped in. "Why, that was how I got my very first bear. We'd just started on a trip and were making our first camp on a little flat near a creek. There was a very steep bank going up from the flat to a bench about fifty feet above. We'd packed in on our backs, and, just as we slipped the packs off at the edge of the flat, I looked up and saw a bear scooping in berries at the top of this slope. Almost as I spotted him, another bear came over the edge, saw the fine berries the other boy was guzzling, just made one dive for him, caught him a swipe on the side of the head and sent him off his pins rolling down the slope. He rolled clean down to the bottom, and, as he got to his feet and started with a growl to make up the slope again after the bully, I got the old gun working. I hit him first time and knocked him over, but he started up again. He never made the grade, though. My second shot broke his back and a third in the neck finished the job, and there he was, my meat, right in camp without having to pack him."

Dick Has His Doubts

"Boys, oh! boys. I thought better of you, I really did." This from old Dick, who had been listening with a dry smile on his face to the yarns of his chums and blowing clouds of blue smoke from the old corn-cob. "Mighty good advice I gave you just now, young fellow, and I hope you'll bear it in mind, but, as it's a true bear story we're after, I see I'll have to give it you myself, after all.

"This happened up at Cowichan Lake near the Riverside Inn. There was a young fellow up there out for a hunt and a fish and he was getting some sport, as anyone might. It was even better then up there for hunting and fishing than it is now, and that's saying a lot.

"Well, one day his friends were horrified to hear that he had been in an accident. They fixed him up wtih first aid at the lake, and he got some more patching and plastering done at Duncan on the way down, but he arrived in town looking as if he sure had been in the wars. He had some nasty cuts and scratches on his face and one arm was in a sling. The newspaper boys got wind of his arrival and he was duly interviewed by the sport editors of the local papers.

"He had a great story to tell of a bear fight, in which he was one of the principals, instead of just an onlooker like Tom here in that other scrap. It was a she bear with cubs, and the marvel of it was how he had escaped with his life. And it certainly would have been a marvel if he had come up against that she bear in the way he gave out the story. Nothing but a knife against a she bear with cubs in a rage in the woods. My word, but he had that old fellow Hercules of the old school books faded to a frazzle! Everybody believed the yarn and sympathised with the hero, but I happened to be up at the Riverside some time afterwards and met up with the chap who had packed him up after the scrap and helped to attend to his hurts and that was how I got to be able to tell you the real true story.

A Different Version

"He'd been having some mighty good fishing, but wasn't satisfied. There was a pool a mile or so down the river where he thought there ought to be some big ones lying, but right across the best part of it there was a big snag jutting out from the bank over the river which spoilt his casting. He borrowed a cross-cut saw, climbs out on that log and proceeds to saw it through, making the cut between him and the bank. Maybe he was not used to cutting logs; maybe the log was a bit rotten on the lower side. However, whatever made him go wrong in his judgment, I don't know, but he stayed on the wrong side of that cut just a little too long, and, when the log broke, over he goes into the drink. The current's pretty swift there, and he got mixed up a bit in the limbs of the old tree and caught his head a nasty crack as he went down, and they had quite a job getting him out and bringing him round. I guess he thought he'd never hear the end of it if he told the true yarn of how he got his hurts, and so he called in the old she bear to his aid.

"Next time you hear a story like that, just remember that old-timer's advice, my lad, and, when you've been here long enough to have done a bit more hunting, you'll probably be able to spin some bear yarns of your own, which you'll know are true, but don't get sore if nobody believes 'em."

THE VALLEY OF ACHOR

I gave myself to the stones,
Saying, 'it is just."
Each shock of splintering bones,
Each sharp and jagged thrust
At the quivering flesh, I bore,
And answered back no more.
Conquered by none but Thee,
Suppliant yet proud I lay,
Crying despite of me:
"Spirit of God, have Thy way!"

I gave myself to the flames,
Willing at last
To be rid of the lusts and shames
And sins of the past.
I watched the loathsome mass
Lose shape and fall away,
In shrivelling atoms, pass,
To smoke and ashes grey.

Then—across the unclean floor,
Trampled by death and doom,
Free, through an open door.
At the end of the valley's gloom,
Suddenly flashed a soul,
Forth to the azure divine—
White, purified, whole.
My God! It was mine!

WHOSO CAN ENTER

Whoso can enter in a grand old wood,
And work therein, and thence come forth unfed,
As with the rarest wine and sweetest bread,
He is a soul whose unresponsive mood
In such a place can interchange no good.
Unworthy is he, 'mid such glories spread
Above him, and around him, even to tread
The threshold of so sweet a solitude.
There's not a tree but would come close to him;
No flower but would be pleased to catch his eye;
No bird, whose mellow song, or ringing call,
Is heard within the woodland chambers dim,
Would scorn his praise, yet these all pass him by,

Turkish Ladies at the Dance

By the Constantinople Correspondent of The London Times.

You reach Yalova by steamer from Galata Quay in five hours nowadays, instead of the three which were taken by the journey before the war, for you must travel in a tiny steamer which can do seven knots when it is very calm and when the engineer is not quarreling with the skipper. If the south wind blows, either you do not start or, if you start, you arrive soaking and probably seasick as well.

There are paths through the thick woods above and below the hotel, but I do not advise any reader to use them in August between 11 a.m. and 4 p.m. No!—no brigands haunt them in those hours, no bears or other carnivorous animals lie in wait for school treats to pass; but there are flies, quiet and sluggish, but venomous beyond belief. Let them bite you between ear and eye and you will shout, for their bite burns, and next day your eyes will be slits and your face a dumpling offa magis quam facies. In that case, pray that your injuries be symetrical, for, while a face equally distended on both sides explains itself, an immense right eyelid or a left ear thrice its normal thickness provokes such comments as: "Look at that misshapen Giaur," or "That Frank must have been fighting in a bar," from candid Turks or Greeks who forget that you may understand their language.

But as few Orientals walk in the heat of the day if they can avoid it, not many visitors to the hotel know of the flies that swarm in August. From midday to an hour before sunset they bathe, enjoy a siesta or gossip in armchairs. The social atmosphere seems Turkish, almost Old Turk. But at dinner "Yalova les Bains" grows Young Turk, or shall I write Balkan? Levantine is an unkind word. Five years ago the veil had grown transparently thin, but a Turkish lady would never have doffed veil and "charchaf" in the public rooms of any hotel, if, indeed, she had entered them. Now the "Harem" come in to dine in evening frocks, which only differ from those worn by their non-Moslem sisters in being less decolletees.

Varieties of Types

They have a pretty headdress, the silk handkerchief, generally embroidered, tied behind in bows and falling over the nape and shoulders, which the Hanum wears indoors. Their taste is generally good. The type varies amazingly, for if some are simply Mediterraneans and some are indistinguishable from Greeks, others show a strongly Asiatic profile, and one often notices a "piquante" face which one might best describe as Mongol eye and cheekbone, Jewish nose and mouth, Arab slimness and carriage of the head—a throwback, perhaps, to some early cross between Tartar and Armenian or Arab. Some are on their honeymoon and wear the plain gold ring on the third finger of the left hand as do Europeans, a new custom this among Turkish folk.

After dinner an orchestra strikes up, and the Hanums crowd into the drawing room, where some Russian and Roumanian girls are dancing. A brown-faced ultra smart little Turk, a sort of master of ceremonies, darts in and begins to one-step with a Roumanian. Next a Russian couple dance some Russian peasant dance, and the Turkish ladies clap their hands and discuss every point in the dancing with much animation. So far no Hanum has danced. But the door from the veranda opens and three women enter, tall, excessively well dressed, bejeweled and followed by a male nondescript. The tallest and most expensively dressed and one of her companions are Turks—the third may be a Greek; all have that faint suggestion of coarseness and foxiness on otherwise handsome faces that betray their calling.

A young Turkish bride and her girl friend sitting near me are intensely amused and just a little scandalized—"My lamb, if mother knew that people like that came here!"

"But Feride, look at her jewels; that necklace must be worth——!"

"But, my dear, who is she?" Do I know the names of persons of that class?"

Another Hanum supplies the information. "Oh, she is Z ——, a great dancer, so well known in Pera, a dreadful woman, and do you see that low person with her?"

Milady's Secretary

Here the lady points out the tously and vulgar individual who follows in Z. Hanum's train. "Well, Z. cant' read or write, and she was quite uneducated. Comes from Anatolia somewhere, where no one reads a book, and having made money out of the Unionist profiteers, she trots this youth about to answer her billets-doux, write to tradesmen and jewelers, and give her notions about geography and science and music in her spare time. Otherwise the men, even those parvenus, would find her too dull!"

The orchestra strikes up a tango and (strange portent of Turkey's new age) Z.'s Turkish companion dances and presently the master of ceremonies pilots Z. herself, who is obviously unlearned in European dances, through a few steps. Feride and her friends pretend to look shocked at the spectacle, but they are really vastly interested and would not have missed it for worlds.

By the doorway stands an old Turkish general —still straight-backed and sturdy—a man who has fought with good fortune and evil in the Hedjaz, in Yemen, in the Balkans, who has been a Seraskier in his day, one of the old school. He should be looking sternly on this frivolous scene, for has he not always passed as a stern and somewhat austere Old Turk and a reactionary at heart? Should he indeed be looking at all? But though it would be more artistic to introduce him as a grim and protesting figure, a symbol of Islamic Conservatism, truth compels me to state that so far from being shocked he looked like a genial grandpapa watching the nursery romps with benevolent indulgence, though I think he did not quite admire Z. Hanum.

HOW TO GET DOWN PRICES

MORE EFFORT ALL ROUND

By the Right Hon. J. R. Clynes, M.P., in The London Daily Mail

A fact to be observed when considering the question of increased output is that more than one-half of the productive work performed in all manner of trades is carried out on a piece-work basis. Output is therefore governed by an incentive to gain; results determine the pay of the masses of the workers, and results in many occupations can scarcely be increased by any greater energy per individual in a large number of the producing industries. In these trades, however, much can be done to produce greater results by subdivision, reorganization, efficient carriage and transport arrangements, better timekeeping and by the employment of more modern and improved appliances and machinery of all kinds.

Machinery, formerly viewed by many workers as their natural enemy because it appeared to throw them out of a job, can now always be made the servant of the worker, and labor in its present state of organization never again need fear the consequences of producing goods in abundance or creating a glut in the market which will be a cause of unemployment.

In the days when labor was helpless and always at the mercy of organized capital, unemployment through over-production was more than a risk—it often became a reality. That state of things can never recur so long as labor continues to make good use of the state o forganization and the effective partnership in the control of industry which it is beginning to assume.

Suspicions to Be Removed

It is necessary, however, to deal with workmen's suspicious and to seek increased production through the only method that will make it certain, namely, that of giving to the workman a sense of benefit from the better results which he is called upon to show. The workman must be convinced that his increased efforts are put forth not for the benefit of someone else, but in part for his own personal advantage and for the general benefit of the public.

Until something approaching a guarantee in practice is given to the mass of producers the problem of output will not be solved and an increase in the yield of labor effort will not be made. It will be easier to prove to the workman that increased effort will for him mean increased gain than to prove to the workman that a reduction in commodities has become the first cause of dearness and of reduced spending power.

Increased production, however, cannot result from increased individual energy alone, and others besides workmen must be blamed for any continued failure to make the best of labor effort.

Indolence on the part of workmen is not the chief cause of diminished output. We have been doing in the last year or two in regard to hours of work and wages rates what employers should have shown themselves willing to do gradually over the previous period of ten or twenty years.

Workmen who have been content with an eight hours day if it had been arranged on reasonable or mutual terms before the war, and who would probably in the reduced hours have produced results equal to the output of the longer day, are not now content with eight hours — they are asking for seven, or even six. The ill will created before the war, as a result of refusals to concede anything except to pressure or to force, went far to create and to deepen the suspicion of workmen with regard to the designs of employers and capitalists.

It will take some time to live that down, but workmen who now behave selfishly or thoughtlessly in their own sphere of productive work and show no interest in the general problem of output and production, or who diminish production by indifference or by deliberate failure to put in their full time with a reasonable and honorable measure of exertion, are inflicting the greatest damage upon their class and themselves. To the degree that scarcity is caused the price of articles is increased; the higher the price, the lower the purchasing power of the workman's wage.

An increase in the rate of pay to the worker is at the moment of less importance than a decrease in the price of commodities required in every home to raise the standard of living. Hundreds of different forms of service are needed in order that better houses should be built, that boots and clothing and food of all kinds should be supplied in greater abundance.

A Chain of Services

The supply of all these things is in the form of a chain of services, and when any one link in the chain is weakened or snapped a breakdown occurs for which, in the end, labor pays more than capital in being deprived of some of the things which labor requires. If labor at the docks or the ports, or in connection with transport and cartage, fails to maintain the free and steady flow of commodities, an interruption, wherever it may be caused, becomes an element in increasing to the worker the price of commodities when they are delivered to him.

Transport is an important element in output and a serious factor in determining the price of commodities. Labor can be less blamed for any portion of the difficulties in transport than can others, because of failure to organize and improve the distribution of articles.

If in this problem of production we fail, scarcely anything can save us from a still greater state of dearness, confusion and risk. Whatever the war changed, it has not changed the fact that we must remain a great producing and exporting country.

Our standard of life in this land depends upon the maintenance of our power to produce and export to other ends of the earth. We need not try to do all the work for other people, but we must continue to meet our competitors with success and effect in the markets of the world, and meet our own internal needs by providing great quantities of goods for sale, to meet the needs of other people.

This country survived the greatest difficulties and complications presented by the years of the war, and it organized itself in a manner which amazed and finally crushed the country's enemies. This country might have won the war without the support of any class in it except the working class. That class has now the opportunity of further serving itself while at the same time serving the nation; and just as the masses of workmen did their soldiering with every credit to themselves and their commanders, they have now an opportunity to follow the pursuit of peaceful service in a manner to elevate and maintain a higher standard of life for themselves and their families.

To take from some who have too much would not assist greatly the large number who have too little. The standard of life can be raised considerably only by increasing the sum-total of community effort.

In addition to output per unit, a great increase could result from the employment on productive tasks of a large number of people who now work hard in occupations which are not productive and contribute very little to those useful forms of service which are as necessary as any process of production or manufacture.

We solved this problem in relation to the arts of war. It should not be outside our range in relation to the arts of peace.

Enthusiasm; Its Use and Abuse

By a Correspondent in The London Times.

De Quincey in his "Confessions" tells us that one of his guardians, a clergyman, was "sincere but not earnest." It appears that by religion he meant simply a respectable code of ethics.

"He was a good and conscientious man, and he made a high valuation of the pulpit as an organ of civilization for co-operating with books, but it is impossible for any man starting from the low ground of themes so unimpassioned and so desultory as the benefits of industry, the danger from bad companions, the importance of setting a good example, or the value of perseverance to pump up any persistent stream of earnestness either in himself or in his auditors."

The distinction made by de Quincey is important. A religion of self-interest may be held with great tenacity, but it will never evoke true enthusiasm. For to be enthusiastic a man must feel a challenge to self-sacrifice as the expression of his devotion to a high ideal, which is to be followed not merely for his own gain, but because nothing else can match his true vocation. Only a religion which, while it demands the dedication of all a man's powers in its service, purifies and ennobles them can sustain a man's enthusiasm. A religion fails in its appeal if it does not evoke that emotional fervor which incites to ready service together with the strength of conviction in its truth which prepares its adherents to endure to the uttermost for its sake.

Enthusiasm in religion has often been under suspicion. This is because it can be as easily counterfeited as it can be misunderstood. In the eighteenth century it was identified with unrestrained emotion and undisciplined excitement under the influence of fear or rapture. Warburton defined it as "that temper of mind in which the imagination has got the better of judgment," and we need not be surprised if with this conception of its character it was deprecated by thoughtful men. It was not only a bishop of the Church of England who said, "We must put down enthusiasm," but Wesley also, when troubled by extravagant conduct of some of his followers, wrote, "The reproach of Christ I am willing to bear, but not the reproach of enthusiasm, if I can help it." It is clear that a mistaken persuasion of peculiar privileges and powers received from heaven is a hindrance to true religion. Men, under its influence are liable to commit any extravagance, easily mistaking undisciplined emotion for inspiration, and the fictions of a deranged mind for Divine revelation.

It is not difficult to trace the source of enthusiasm of this sort. Given the conditions of a crowd, with the incitements of a public meeting and speeches directly appealing to the emotions of men, who are expecting some sudden rush of feeling, and you produce that reaction of excitement which will lead to the extremes of joy or terror to the temporary reversal of their modes of life. In the full flash of their fervor they will undertake any enterprise. Or this condition may come upon a man in some solemn hour of loneliness, when the mind becomes subject to strange impressions from beyond the boundaries of his ordinary interests, and he feels himself moved by a powerful impulse to self-dedication to some great cause.

The history of Christianity shows that such enthusiasm has not seldom been the source of much mischief. On the other hand, true enthusiasm is the working of the Divine Spirit within a man, who by his own deliberate act gives himself to be the instrument of the Divine purpose, not in the forfeiture of his own powers, but in their more purposeful employment. He knows that he is called to do all in his power to secure the supremacy of righteousness and truth in the world in ways consistent with the Divine Will, and he is zealous for the purity of the means he employs, as well as for the success of the enterprise to which he has dedicated himself.

The acceptance of the Divine law as the standard of eager action marks the difference between enthusiasm and fanaticism. The latter has its origin in that narrowed sympathy which leads a man to become obsessed with one thought to the sacrifice of everything else. The fanatic disregards the higher laws of life in the interests of his immediate purpose, and that purpose by itself is never consistent with the permanent welfare of men. Fanaticism claims to possess extraordinary gifts of the spirit, and then presumes to disregard the laws of social fellowship. Dr. Johnson's exclamation on this claim to peculiar privileges in right of spiritual powers is justified: "A horrid thing, a very horrid thing, sir!"

True enthusiasm knows nothing of the disillusionment that comes to men who have achieved the success they hoped for and found its prizes turn to dust in their hands, or have persuaded themselves that failure is inevitable. It finds a perennial source of life in that conviction of the reality of Divine government which gives men the depth and force of unhasting effort, content to remain faithful though progress seems slow and the difficulties many. Enthusiasm is strongest when it makes least noise, and most effective when it attracts least attention. If it drives men to great enterprises it also keeps them faithful in humdrum duty. It never acquiesces in defeat. Every age of the church's life is to be an age of enthusiasm; every duty its true sphere. Enthusiasm has its triumphs as well in humble tasks as in the most stirring adventures. Probably this is what we most need to recognize at the present time. The Church of God needs no new programme. The Christian needs no new ideal. Both require in undiminished vigor the enthusiasm which will make them rejoice in the drudgery of hard work.

FINE WORK DONE BY BATTERIES IN WAR

Willard Company Supplied 140,000 Storage Batteries for War Service—New Types Invented.

"No one realizes the important part which storage batteries played in the war," said Mr. Rolfe, of Jameson, Rolfe & Willis, yesterday. "The Willard Company takes pride in the fact that its product 'delivered the goods' under the conditions of abuse which war made necessary.

"Willard engineers were called upon to design a battery for the ignition of the Liberty Aircraft motor. Storage batteries for automobiles must be limited as to size and weight, and in an aircraft these limitations are still greater. Reliability was a matter of life and death and in addition to these handicaps, a storage battery for aircraft use must not spill its acid contents when upside down. This was one of the many war problems which it seemed impossible to solve, but within the time limit set, a Willard battery was designed, a model made, tested and accepted, which met every requirement.

"The Willard factory also made batteries for gun firing, for radio work, for the signal corps, for the Aldas Lamp, a hand signalling device invented by the British. A very interesting type was made for the use on tanks and the tank corps. This tank battery was really two separate units, one for starting and the other and smaller one for ignition."

"The Willard factory received orders from the Government for over 140,000 batteries of different types, which were all equipped with threaded rubber insulation, an exclusive Willard feature. The advantage of threaded rubber as an insulation in storage batteries lay in the fact that a battery could be kept in continuous service for a longer period."

THINKS EVERY FARM SHOULD HAVE AUTO

That women on the farm should be taught to drive the automobile is the opinion of Alberta's Minister of Agriculture, Hon. Duncan Marshall. He was one of the chief speakers at the banquet which marked the conclusion of the two days' convention of Overland dealers at Saskatoon, and he was in splendid form in his response to the toast of the Province.

The great improvement in living conditions on the farm, said Hon. Mr. Marshall, had been brought about by the introduction of the motor car and by its addition to the modern farm equipment. He stated that at every meeting of farmers at which he spoke he advised his hearers to buy an automobile as soon as they could afford it and to teach the women on the farm to drive it.

PACKARD ANNOUNCES DOUBLE PRODUCTION

A clear indication of the constantly expanding market for automobiles of the better class in America is seen in the announcement of the Packard Motor Car Company, that their production for the calendar year 1920 will be more than double that for the year 1919.

While there may be some minor changes in seating arrangements, there will be no so-called 1920 models.

The engine of the present Packard Twin Six is practically identical with the first, which was produced in April, 1916.

This twin six motor is the one which people have come to know as the forerunner of the famous Liberty engine, in that it first vindicated the twelve cylinder "V" type of construction.

Parallel with the five years' success of the Packard twin six engine run the extraordinary record-breaking feats of Ralph De Palma, who has broken most of the world's important speed records with a Packard twelve cylinder motor (aviation type).

Watch Teeth Whiten

Look in 10 Days
See how clean the teeth look—how they glisten. Then you will know what film removal means.

This is to urge a ten-day test of a tooth paste which combats the film.

Film Destroys Teeth

That slimy film which you feel on your teeth causes most tooth troubles. Every modern dentist knows that. Dental science, for many years, has sought a way to end it.

That film is what discolors, not the teeth. It is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Millions of germs breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. So the major object in cleaning teeth is to keep them free from film.

Old-time methods fail to do that. Teeth still discolor, still decay, as millions of people know. The reason is that brushing does not end the film.

Now a Way to End It

Science now has found a way to end it. Five years of tests have proved this. The way is now embodied in a dentifrice called Pepsodent. And we urge you to see what it does.

Pepsodent is based on pepsin, the digestant of albumin. The film is albuminous matter. The object of Pepsodent is to dissolve it, then to constantly combat it.

But pepsin must be activated, and the usual method is an acid harmful to the teeth. So pepsin long seemed barred. But science has now found a harmless activating method. It is made use of in Pepsodent.

Send this coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Use like any tooth paste. Note how clean your teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the slimy film. See how the teeth whiten as the fixed film disappears.

Watch the results for a few days. Read in our book how they come about. Then decide for yourself what tooth paste you and yours should use.

NEW WESTMINSTER KEENLY INTERESTED

Returned Soldier Says That Mr. T. A. Barnard Is Member of One Big Union in His Home City.

New Westminster is taking a keen interest in the by-election campaign here, according to Mr. V. E. Andrew, a member of the staff of The Columbian, of the Mainland city, who is at present on a visit to Victoria. Mr. Andrew is an ex-member of the Canadian Expeditionary Force, with which he served for four years. He fought in France with the 29th Battalion and Canadian Engineers, in which he reached the rank of sergeant.

"We are interested in New Westminster," he says, "because Mr. T. A. Barnard of our city is a candidate here. I can say, because I know the principles he advocates, that a vote for Mr. Barnard will be against the best interests of the returned men. For instance here is a typical example of his assertions which do not find favor with those who fought in France. Speaking on November 26 of last year at a supper given to Victory Loan workers, he said that 'if the returned soldiers are given land quietly and constitutionally and properly, well and good. But if not, then they will take it by Direct Action.'

"Mr. Barnard is a member of the One Big Union. He was head of the Strike Committee in June last when the workers of New Westminster were called out in sympathy with the stand of the metal workers in Winnipeg. He resigned that position when a petition was circulated among the members of the Great War Veterans Association demanding his resignation as President because of his One Big Union sentiments. On a previous occasion, when he went on a political platform in Vancouver in opposition to Sergt. Walter Drinnan, his resignation as president of the Great War Veterans Association was called for, and he had to vacate that office. For these reasons the opinion entertained in New Westminster is that it would be nothing short of a tragedy if Mr. Barnard, because of the principles he espouses and because of his association with the One Big Union movement, were elected as a member of Parliament for Victoria."

LIEUT. H. P. CALDWELL HOME FROM OVERSEAS

Saw Much Active Service and Was Promoted From Rank of Private

Lieut. H. P. Caldwell has recently returned from overseas, where he had been in the fighting line for nearly four years.

Lieut. Caldwell enlisted in the 67th Battalion in February, 1916, went to France as a private, and was in that regiment until it was broken up, when he was transferred to the 54th. Mentioned in Sir Douglas Haig's dispatches in the Spring of 1918, he was awarded the military medal, at Arras, and shortly afterwards obtained his commission.

He went through the battles of Ypres, Somme, Vimy Ridge, Lens and Arras, and was wounded twice. After the signing of the Armistice he was stationed at Witley Camp, from there moved to other camps, and was among the last of the soldiers to be returned to Canada.

He was born in Victoria 25 years ago, and is the eldest son of the late Mr. H. J. Caldwell, C.E.

TELLS OF PROGRESS ON SOLDIERS' HOMES

Saanich Council Hears Report From Major K. B. Spurgin—Many Men Wait Turn to Build

Thirteen houses are being built in Saanich under the Soldiers' Housing Scheme, according to the report of Major K. B. Spurgin, made to the Saanich Council last night. Most of them are in a well advanced condition.

Workmen on many of these houses have been annoyed by damage and pilfering exploits by small boys, and Major Spurgin said that steps were being taken to capture some of the lads and "give them a good licking apiece as a salutary example."

Twenty returned soldiers are on a waiting list looking to a chance to build in Saanich under the scheme. This year's appropriation having been exhausted by work now in hand, the men are putting their names in now to secure priority next year, should the scheme continue.

ALBERTA ARRANGES RELIEF MEASURES

CALGARY, Oct. 25. — Premier Stewart yesterday made public the decision of the Government in connection with relief for the drought-stricken areas in southern Alberta, which is as follows:

By agreement with the Dominion Government, relief will take the form of coal and flour. In organized municipalities, the supervision and distribution of this relief will be in the hands of the various municipal councils, they borrowing the necessary money direct for this purpose with the guarantee of the Province. In unorganized districts, the Government will take full responsibility for the supervision and distribution of relief through the Department of Public Works, administered by Hon. A. J. McLean

In addition to the foregoing, and in view of the fact that the Department of Agriculture already has the question of seed grain distribution and the locating of fodder for districts where feed is short under way, it has been thought advisable by the Government to have the whole question of relief co-ordinated in a Cabinet committee, which will consist of Messrs. Marshall, Mitchell and McLean.

LIQUOR OFFENDERS TROUBLE MANITOBA

WINNIPEG, Oct. 25.—That the principal trouble in connection with the enforcement of the Manitoba Temperance Act is due to what might be called medical and veterinary bootleggers, and it is the intention to make an energetic drive in an effort to punish all such offenders, is the unanimous decision of the inspectors as announced in a statement issued this afternoon by Attorney-General ThomaJ Johnson. He intimated that the "shop" prescriptions of liquor would be fought as contrary to the act.

The announcement also states that the Attorney-General has been unable to find any justification for the rumors involving the integrity of any cf the officials in the Temperance Act Department, and that these reports have been traced to bootleggers and other anti-prohibition interests.

It was pointed out today that the probable appointment of J. G. Rattray as head of the law enforcement department to be created does not necessarily mean that J. N. Maclean, present administrator of the act, would resign.

The announcement is made that in future inspectors under the act will prosecute all doctors who issue prescriptions to other than their regular patients.

Motoring on Vancouver Island

FUEL NOW GREATEST PROBLEM OF OWNER

Low-Grade Gasoline Often Causes Motor Knocks, Fouled Spark Plugs and Burned-Out Bearings.

"With the tremendous increase in the consumption of gasoline and the consequent reduction in its quality, the fuel problem is becoming of greater importance every day to the automobile owner," declared Mr. F. G. Wood, of the Begg Motor Co., yesterday.

"The automobile motor is operated by heat, and it is the expansion of the hot gases in the combustion chamber that moves the piston. The problem then is to extract as many heat units as possible out of the fuel that is taken into the cylinder.

"In the early days of motoring this was comparatively easy, as the gasoline supplied then was highly volatile and was easily vaporized into an inflammable gas. As the demand for gasoline increased, however, the supply proved insufficient and had to be supplemented by the addition of the heavier oil products which were not so easily vaporized.

"The result was exactly the same as though you tried to burn heavy lump coal in a furnace designed exclusively for nut. In the automobile engine the heavier fuel refused to vaporize properly. Part of it was burned, part of it formed carbon and fouled the spark plugs while some leaked past the piston rings into the oil in the crank case destroying its lubricating properties.

Many Woes From Poor Gas

"The outcome was burned out bearings, fouled spark plugs, the formation of excessive carbon in the cylinders, hard starting, waste of fuel, low mileage, loss of power, and a knocking motor. To remedy these evils, engineers resorted to various methods of applying heat to assist in the vaporization of the fuel, realizing that the low grade gasoline available would supply more heat units than high grade fuel, and furnish more power if these heat units could be extracted.

"The result may be seen in the Essex, the wonderful performance of which during the past few months has astonished the motor world. Although it is only 23½ inches in length overall, the Essex motor develops more than 56 horsepower. This remarkable achievement is made possible by its construction, which permits the thorough atomization and burning of every drop of fuel supplied.

"The manifold carrying the carburetor is bolted directly to the cylinder block and the inward passages are given a downward slope from the carburetor through the valves. Perfect conditions for starting are assured, since the raw gasoline flowing from a choked carburetor must prime every cylinder in the most effective way. The combination of gravity flow of the mixture and the hot manifold insures perfect distribution and complete combustion of the fuel.

"In addition, the shutters on the radiator, which are controlled from the dash, enable the driver to operate the motor at the most efficient temperature, which is clearly indicated by the motormeter on the radiator cap. In the Winter the louvre openings in the hood are covered on the inside with a plate, doing away with the necessity for the unsightly radiator covers seen in Winter on so many cars.

"The result is an efficiency in operation which has made the Essex one of the most popular cars ever brought out."

RAIN AND SNOW LOSE THEIR TERROR

Novel Invention Assures Motorists Good View Ahead When Rain or Snow is Encountered

No more need the motorist fear the dimming of his windshield in Winter weather, the troubles of snowed up vision have been overcome, and a little stick of greenish waxy material is the simple means to security offered the motorist who must travel through dirty weather, one stick being sufficient for a season.

"Clearsight" is the name given this invention, and over the week-end Demonstrator Walker succeeded, by a simple quick experiment, in selling a stock to practically every garage in town. His modus operandi was well shown at the Revercomb Garage on Yates Street. Meeting Mr. Walter Revercomb in the chill of Thursday's frosty morn, he led him to the steamed up window, whipped a sample of "Clearsight" from his pocket, made a small cross on the plate glass, rubbed it briskly with a bit of cloth, and then turned around and said, "Breathe on that patch; you can't dim it for three days. I'll sell you a gross," and it was so, there and wherever the genial demonstrator called."

MORE DODGES COMING

In company with Mr. F. R. Begg, of Vancouver, Mr. G. H. Phelps of the Dodge Brothers Motor Company paid a visit to Victoria last week. Mr. Phelps is the sales manager for the famous light car, and has promised that the shipments of this popular car to Victoria will be doubled for the next few months.

CARS MORE TRUSTY THAN LOCOMOTIVES

Given Gas and Oil, Modern Automobiles Perform Feats Not Expected of Railway Giants—Troubleproof.

Engineering science, plus modern methods of manufacture have developed the high grade motor car to a point where performance is taken by the owner as a matter of course. Long distance touring by automobile, once regarded as a fact worthy of comment, now is looked upon as a task that the automobile may be expected to accomplish.

On a cross-country tour of 2,000 miles or more the motor car encountering all manner of road conditions will travel day after day without giving trouble. A railroad locomotive, on the other hand, is run into the round house at the end of 250 or 300 miles for cleaning, oiling and general "recuperation;" in fact at each division point it receives, at the hands of experts, general inspection. The inspection of the motor car on a long-distance tour, generally is confined to a glance at the oil gauge and a peep into the gas tank.

It is comparatively only a few years since a tour of a few hundred miles was looked upon by the owner as a real test of his car's endurance. On a trip of that kind the driver was prepared to experience mechanical trouble. Since then there has been a decided improvement in road conditions throughout most sections of the country but the big advancement has been found in the construction of the automobile itself.

ACCURACY BROUGHT TO A HIGH DEGREE

Manufacture of Cadillac Cars Includes More Than 1,000 Operations With One-Thousandth Inch Limits

Fine manufacturing processes, in which hairsbreadth measurements are a large factor, are usually associated with delicate instruments, like watches, chronomoters, and other precision devices. But such processes are not by any means confined to these fields, as evidenced by the methods employed in the production of Cadillac automobiles.

It is said by mechanical authorities that precision, accuracy, close measurements and standardization—all of the practices that make for a high degree of refinement—had their American birth in the Cadillac, at least so far as the motor car is concerned. The history of the automobile industry records that the Cadillac Company was first to produce a standardized car—a car in which all parts of a kind are like all other parts of the same kind, and interchangeable with them.

Such manufacturing requires measurements of the finest; and in the present Cadillac more than 1000 operations are accurate to the one-thousandth part of an inch, while more than three hundred are accurate to half of one-thousandth part of an inch. How close these measurements are is better appreciated when it is known that the average human hair is five to six one-thousandths of an inch in thickness.

This implies constant inspecting and checking up, both of the machine tools which do the work and the finished product itself. Even the gauges employed in this work are themselves frequently checked to insure constant accuracy. For example, the spirit gauges with which the diameter of pistons is tested, register to the ten-thousandth part of an inch, and are checked up every fifteen minutes during the working day.

The most accurate system of measurement in existence is the Johannsen gauge system, introduced into America by the Cadillac Company. These gauges are accurate to the one hundred-thousandth part of an inch, and are used as the master gauges by which the testing and proving gauges are checked up. The Johannsen gauges are polished steel blocks, whose surfacts are so true that, when placed together the air is excluded to such an extent that appreciable effort is required to separate them.

CRANK CASE GASES NOW PUT TO WORK

Unique Gas Saving Invention About to Be Marketed—Unity Auvilerator Also Keeps Engine Carbon Free.

In the course of the next few days the motoring public of Canada will be introduced to a little gas saving invention, the "Unity Auxilerator," which has given remarkable results under tests by such impartial authorities as Messrs. Thos. Plimley and Alex. Peden, and several other well known motorists.

The invention consists of a brass cup with a screw top, which is attached to a hot exhaust manifold. Inside the cup is a valve which operates against a spring pressure in response to the engine suction.

Three small copper pipes are connected with the cup, one leads to the top of the radiator, one to the engine base above the oil level, and the third is connected with the carburetor manifold.

When the motor is in action the suction of the engine actuates the valves, and draws from the radiator a damp vapor as soon as there is any available, at the same time drawing from the engine base warm heavy oil gases, which form as the engine heats up. These are mixed and heated within the little cup and pass to the engine in the form of a highly explosive mixture of great power.

It has been well known for years that the valuable gases accumulate in the crank case and go to waste through the breather pipe, but until the production of the auxilerator there has been no practical means of utilizing this power.

In the same way chemists have for years taught that steam has an affinity for carbon, decomposing into oxygen and hydrogen when brought into contact under heat and pressure, the oxygen combining with the carbon and forming carbon monoxide gas. The trouble from the motorist's point of view has been to get the steam into an operating engine, and the auxilerator achieves this with great success.

The result of tests of the auxilerator last week showed that a great increase in power is attained, and known dirty engines to which the appliance has been attached have within a few days been entirely rid of carbon while performing their ordinary duty.

The "Unity Auxilerator" is the invention of two Victoria brothers who for the present desire to remain in the background, and is being marketed through the Motor Necessities Company of the B.C. Permanent Loan Building.

DEMONSTRATION WORK BRINGS JOKE TO FORE

In Effort to Prove Wonderful Riding of New Overland, Mr. J. G. Paterson Runs Foul of Law.

Automobile Row is laughing over the joke of the season, and Mr. J. G. Paterson, Thomas Plimley's star demonstrator and salesman, is the victim. "Pat" has been pinched, arrested for wild and wooly driving, and was the rueful recipient of a little blue slip which haled him before the stern majesty of the law last Monday.

Full of enthusiasm over the performance of the new Overland demonstrator which he has been putting through its paces, Mr. Paterson has been taking capacity loads of interested people out to Beacon Hill Park.

Scattered around that natural beauty spot are numerous bumpy bits of going, such as rock piles, rutty ditches and steep roadside slopes. Over all these "Pat" has been putting his new mount, and in between the stunts would look back at the filled tonneau with a broad grin and remark "now just watch this bit."

Scores of visitors to the Park saw the shiny new car cutting curlicues on the grass and weaving around from side to side in search of spring-testing places, and several of them were so convinced that the driver has a secret cache of firewater somewhere that they communicated with the police, the general tenor of the advices being "There's a drunk running amock at Beacon Hill; he's trying to climb the trees with a new car; it's a shame; come and get him."

Caught in the Act

So it was that the motorcycle police patrol lay in wait for the wonderful new car, and when cheerful Paterson and his cargo of experimenters appeared on the scene for the 'steenth time they were shocked to have the man in blue solemnly take a hand in the game. With an utter lack of recognition of an old acquaintance the officer stopped the proceedings, stated that the car was on the wrong side of the road, asked who owned it, took the number, and then looked up and said, "Er, and what's your name and address?" the riders nearly choking with delight over poor Pat's misadventure, which closed on Monday with the payment of $5 to the court officer after a solemn warning from the bench.

At that, the new car is really a wonder for easy riding. Those who have taken the test trips all agree that none but extremely heavy joltings are felt by the passengers, while the manner in which the car spins around and negotiates quick turns is surprising. The performance of the engine is also commented upon with admiration, as owing to the light weight of the car the 27-horsepower has a far higher percentage of working energy than is usually available.

BORN IN THE DARK AT VALENCIENNES

New Auto Workshop and Repair Station of Webster and Balcom Took Shape in Wake of Hun.

In the days of the real estate boom, years before the war was even thought of in Victoria, motorists in trouble found relief almost as soon as they set eyes on a young mechanic, popularly known as "Jimmy," whose unused patronym of Webster was to be found on the books of the Pauline Company, then agents for the Studebaker car.

In the dark days following the war's outbreak many a motorist demanded "Jimmy,'s" services, only to be told that he has heard the bugle's call and gone to France, in company with his chum Bobbie Balcom, a native son, who also boasted no little skill with refractory automobiles.

Now the twain are back again, once more they are peering into the "innards" of balky cars, bringing delight to exasperated owners, and behind their garage venture on Douglas St., north of the Hudson's Bay building, lies a tale.

In Northern France

At this time last year the Canadians had just wrested Valenciennes from the Germans. As the first flood of troops, tanks and transports passed through the city in pursuit of the enemy they brought with them a repair car, a marvel workshop on wheels, prepared to handle every conceivable motor ill, and in charge of it was Jimmy Webster.

As night fell there drew up beside Webster's chariot a mighty British transport lorry, piled high with shells for the advancing Canadian guns. Out from the hood peered a lean and youthful face, and at the pitch of his voice he shouted "If there's such a thing as a real mechanic around this asleep deepo of the dead, let him trot forth before I come and talk with something besides my mouth; these birds of mine need to fly this night."

Even while he shouted came stocky rumbling voiced Jimmy Webster, instant recognition of the voice from the dark told him the urgent one was no other than his chum Balcom, unseen for years past, and it was a real shock to the vociferous chaperon of three tons of shells when that husky voice came out of the darkness and bid him "Quit braying before the M.P.'s get here. This is the end of the war, me lad, what are you going to do when you get back to Victoria?"

There in Valenciennes the pair of them agreed to work together when they got back home again, and so it is that the new garage of Webster and Balcom opened its doors last week, with a fine, new, clean workshop, and a pledge that nothing but the sort of work done in France would pass their doors.

UNUSUAL COMFORT MARKS COLE CARS

Closed Models of Famous Aero-Eight Fitted With Many Conveniences--Smoking Sets and Vanity Cases.

Radiating the personality of cars of custom make, the Cole all-season models reveal a completeness of accessories and fittings. No detail contributing to complete luxury and comfort has been overlooked.

An autophone makes it possible for those riding in the tonneau to communicate with the driver. The touch of a button places it in operation, and one talks in a conversational tone.

In the tonneau are found a gentleman's smoking set and a ladies' vanity case. A heater is installed in the floor, which can be regulated to furnish the proper warmth to keep the interior of the car comfortable. Two corner lights, controlled by a switch in convenient reach of th eoccupants of the rear seat, and a dome light, which is illuminated automatically with the opening of the rear doors, furnish lighting suited to the varied demands of all seasons.

Automatic window regulators are installed throughout. A new type of counterbalanced. window regulator operates the rear quarter glasses, so that these may be adjusted without arising from the seat. They have proven a vast improvement over the old strap type used customarily at the rear quarter windows of inclosed cars. The regulators at the doors are arranged so that the glass is locked in place, either when completely lowered or raised, thus preventing rattles.

In the models designed as chauffeur driven cars, a glass partition dividing the front and rear compartments is operated by an automatic regulator. This partition may be lowered completely into the back of the front seat, permitting the use of the cars as family sedans, or raised, to insure privacy in the tonneau.

A FRIENDLY LIGHT AIDS RURAL TRIPS

Mr. S. J. Drake was recently telling of a trip up the Island to Qualicum and Horne Lake, and incidentally brought to the fore the great value of a spot light in emergencies.

"Although I have had a car for years, it was only recently that I put one of those spotlights on, but I'm here to say that I'll never be without it in future," he said. "I was taking a couple of friends up to Horne Lake for a bit of fishing, and as we went up the road we were constantly experimenting with the new light.

"A few miles the other side of Duncan we met another car, the roadside being marked by a deep ditch. The other fellow was polite enough to dim his head lights, so we could do no less, and believe me, the instant before that spotlight lit on the roadside was plenty ticklish to satisfy me for a long time.

"Most people think of a spotlight as something to pick out house numbers with or read road directions, but I'm sure that any driver who has once experienced the comfort which a clear light on a rural deep ditched roadside gives will never drive at night without a spotlight."

HANDSOME HUPMOBILE CARS HAVE ARRIVED

The 1920 model Hupmobile is now in Victoria, a carload of them now being housed at the spacious McMorran Garage on Johnson Street, the examples displayed on the show floor attracting much attention.

The new models are but little changed mechanically from the wonderfully successful car marketed last year, most of the slight changes being embodied in the body, which has been improved in such points as higher seat backs and similar details.

The Hupmobile has for some years past been honored among motorists as the finest of the light four-cylindered cars, and the makers' claim to the title of the "Comfort Car" has been undisputed. It is to clinch this name for easy riding that the minor improvements embodied have been made, while a remarkably handsome appearance has been achieved at the same time.

TO PERPETUATE STUDENTS' MEMORY

University of Toronto, on Great War Record of 5,600 Alumni, Makes Appeal to the People of Canada

Not in many years has any institutional organization stirred the country as has the University of Toronto War Memorial Committee which has sent out the clarion call to Canada to perpetuate the record made in the great war by the 5,600 graduates and former students, six hundred of whom gave their lives cheerfully on the fields of battle. From the Atlantic to the Pacific are to be found men and women who at some time or other pursued their studies at U. of T. and it is to these that the Committee is appealing. The idea of the big campaign now well under way being to erect a Memorial Tower and Gateway on the historic campaign and to establish scholarships for the benefit of those whose studies were interrupted by the call to service and who on their return were not in a position to carry on their ambition "on their own." Dependents on the University men who fell or who returned maimed and disabled will also benefit from these scholarships.

The greatest of enthusiasm has been occasioned by the announcement that the war record of the University men was to be perpetuated and, although the campaign is now just beginning, scores of offers of assistance have poured in from Alumni residents in all parts of the continent. Former students of the old school have written or wired in from leading Canadian points such as Montreal, Ottawa, Winnipeg, Calgary, Edmonton, as far west as Vancouver and Victoria and as far east as Halifax and St. John, and New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Boston, Pittsburg and Los Angeles are only a few of the American cities which have been heard from. In all these places a vigorous canvass for funds will be conducted and not only will the fund be materially helped but ties to Alma Mater will be cemented and strengthened—ties which it was not known hitherto existed.

Scholarships of Communities

Every locality desiring to do so can found its own scholarship and toward this end special committees being formed in the place named, also London, England, where scores of graduates are known to reside at the present time. The entire British Isles, as well as the whole continent of North America, are to be covered and, judging from present indications, the campaign will be one of the biggest things ever attempted by a University anywhere.

When the call to arms sounded in 1914 there was feverish activity on the grounds of the old U. of T. and each week saw the attendance dribbling steadily. The Canadian officers training corps made its headquarters at the imposing institution in Queen's Park, Toronto, but not all the students waited to train themselves for the wearing of the Sam Brown belt. In hundreds the best of the University men enlisted for service in the ranks and when the armistice was signed, no less than 5600 graduates and former students had served under the banners of civilization. Numerous decorations were won and at least six hundred U. of T. men were listed in the casualty rolls as having "fallen in action."

Galant Fellows Who "Went West"

It is to honor these men that the campaign is being conducted and when in the years to come those who wander through Queen's Park see the magnificent Memorial and Gateway, they will know that Varsity's service did not end with the war but that those who remained "carried on" and did all in their power to perpetuate the memory of the gallant fellows who "Went west."

Sir Robert Falconer, president of the U. of T. Alumni Association, have taken a foremost place in the campaign for funds and at different places throughout the country, these "savants" have spoken in the interests of the movement. Everywhere they have been met with a cordial reception and on every hand they have found a whole hearted willingness to help. Hundreds who have been out of touch with varsity since they last packed their books and set forth to battle with the world have seized this opportunity to renew old friendships and there is no doubt that from now on the big school will have always behind it a band of men and women as loyal as that which bared its breast to the Hun and offered all for the honor of the historic institution and the rights and liberties of civilization.

Harvard and Yale have such organizations at their back and it is hoped that, as a result of the campaign, graduates from near and far, from one end of the world to the other, will line up permanently under the banners of the U. of T. and do everything in their power to be worthy of the gallant collegians who so freely gave their lives for democracy and the Right.

MONTREAL SURGEON GETS HIGH HONOR

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—Dr. George E. Armstrong, of Montreal, was yesterday elected president of the American College of Surgeons, which is in session at the Waldorf-Astoria, to succeed Dr. William J. Mayo, of Rochester, Minn. Dr. Armstrong will take office at the next meeting of the clinical congress in the Autumn of 1920. The election to this office is considered by surgeons the highest honor in the profession.

Dr. Armstrong is at present professor of surgery in McGill University, Montreal; chief surgeon of the Royal Victoria Hospital, and consulting surgeon to other leading Montreal hospitals. He is a graduate of McGill University of the class of 1877.

Native Son of Delta Dies

NEW WESTMINSTER, Oct. 24.—Rudolph [illegible], a native son of Delta, and one of that district's most successful farmers, died in the Royal Columbian Hospital here last night after a brief attack. He suffered from excessive blood pressure and kidney trouble, and, with his wife, who was Miss Frances [illegible], of Ladner, was preparing to spend the Winter in Honolulu.

Income Tax Charges

WINNIPEG, Oct. 24.—Eight local business men appeared in Police Court, charged with violating the Income Tax Act, and were remanded until Monday. The men are: W. N. Bell, F. L. Argue, W. Frank, A. [illegible], A. D. Chisholm, A. Huffman, M. Rabenovitch and L. [illegible].

Death of Provost Daniel

The death of Dr. C. H. O. Daniel, Provost of Worcester College at the age of 82, removes one of Oxford's best known and most respected citizens. He had been Provost for some 15 years, after having been Bursar and Tutor for many years before. Perhaps his name is best known in connection with the Daniel Press—which he worked single-handed with the help of his wife and daughter. He printed privately in the most beautiful and artistic style, many very charming books, including first editions of some of Dr. Robert Bridges' poems, as well as both prose and poetry of many other authors. The late Provost was an active member of the city council, and specially devoted himself to the city library. For a long period Dr. Daniel was the efficient and brilliant Oxford correspondent of The London Times.

STINGING REBUKE FOR AMERICAN JINGOES

Portland Oregonian Prints a Timely Admonition for Benefit of Petty Politicians of the United States

The Portland Oregonian of October 15 contains the following editorial comment on the campaign being conducted against the policies of President Wilson:

"If such things as the anti-leaguers are saying about Europe were said by Europeans about America, we can hardly imagine the outburst of wrath which would follow. Yet the remarkable thing about European comment on the treaty debate is the absence of recrimination in face of great provocation, and the tone of reproachful friendship which is adopted.

"Britain has been the particular target of such eruptive senators as Johnson, Borah and Reed, but the worst that The London Observer says is that 'the proceedings have been painful reading to Britons;' that the leaders 'have not sought to spare our feelings;' that 'their aim has been to play upon the prejudice that has survived from the dead and gone antagonisms of a century and a half ago.' Recognizing that Ireland had been the chief cause of opposition to the league, that paper says:

"'The more universal issues at stake demand a comprehensive scheme of settlement which shall at once commend itself to moderate and enlightened minds in Britain and the United States. Among the first and not the least of its consequences such a scheme would reveal the earnestness with which Britain desires the establishment of a tranquil, prosperous and united Ireland. America has as yet no inkling of the depth of this feeling, because it has so far lacked the opportunity of expression.'

"If speeches were to be made and resolutions passed in the British parliament denouncing the culpable neglect of the United States to give good government to Alaska, what would the Johnsons and Reeds say? Would the comments of American newspapers be as restrained as those of The Observer? Would there be any disposition to reply that we knew Alaskan affairs were in a bad shape, but that we had been busy with war and would now attend to them?

"'The discussion of the treaty has been tinged by a tone galling to European pride. An intense but misguided patriotism has induced some Americans to place the great powers of Europe on the level of petty Central American republics. Such an attitude can only breed misunderstanding and bad blood. Not only have we peoples of the old world done and suffered great things in the war, but we have made great concessions to American sentiment.'

"Recognition of the Monroe Doctrine is cited as 'a specific instance scarcely congenial to European thought' which, 'applied to European conditions, offers dangerous scope to a secretive and cantankerous diplomacy.' But it 'represents the price which Europe will willingly pay for American co-operation in the common welfare.' Europe thought that America had 'definitely broken with the policy of aloofness,' but 'a policy of spasmodic intervention followed by retirement is incompatible with' Europe's 'ideas of a world order.' The article ends thus:

"'History can never know a greater tragedy than that America, a nation whose unity is based on the fusion of the peoples, should be the power whose reluctance impeded the fusion and unity of the nations.'

"The contrast between the spirit of the article and that which fills the fulminations of anti-league senators cannot fail to impress fair-minded Americans. The nations beside which we fought invite our help in establishing in the old world a new world order imbued with the spirit of the new world. They fought steadfastly for two and a half years without our aid in a cause which we finally were compelled to recognize as our own. But we are now warned not to trust them, to keep aloof from the league lest they use it to entrap us, and there is joy in Germany. After victory is won there is a prospect that Germany will accomplish that which is attempted often but in vain, while the war was on. Europe sees that danger, but those Americans who would emasculate the covenant and wreck the treaty are blind to it or reckless of the consequences."

VICTORY LOAN

SAYS AUTOMOBILE INDUSTRY THRIVING

H. A. Davie Gives Opinions of Car Situation in Old Country—Great Britain Wants Canadian Products

Mr. H. A. Davie, of the McLaughlin Motor Car Company, who has a record of twenty years in the automobile industry, has recently returned from an extensive motor tour of England and Scotland. For some years in the automobile business in England, Mr. Davie said that he was more than a little surprised by conditions prevailing in the Old Country now. Whereas in former days the American car was looked upon with misgivings in England, and American designers were following European methods in construction, Mr. Davie says the Old Country is now copying American cars and looking this way for facts about production methods.

Mr. Davie was high in praise of the individual workmanship and finish of the Old Country cars, but claims that the manufacturers cater to individual tastes and have little or no facilities for quantity production. The manufacturers themselves were now alive to the value of quantity production, to meet the ever increasing demands.

The English capitalist, however, does not feel justified in risking large sums of money on increasing plants until the labor situation is more settled, and the extraordinary high salaries paid during the war period has led the worker to expect more than the manufacturer can afford to pay.

The strong loyalty of the returned soldiers in their hundreds of thousands, and the majority of the real workers who think for themselves, will form a power for maintenance of order that will defeat the aims of the paid agitators who are endeavoring to engineer strikes, said Mr. Davie.

Confidence in Outcome

The just returned autoist said that he had every confidence in the final outcome of affairs in the Old Country, and that the greatest mistake the agitators made was to suppose that the working man would swallow anything without thinking it out for himself. At the moment, however, the entire population seemed to be pleasure mad, and busily engaged on every form of amusement, as a reaction from the strenuous cares of the war.

Under these conditions, said Mr. Davie, the Old Country motor car manufacturers cannot supply the increased demand, and the country is turning to outside sources for importations. Canada, he continued, ever largely in the minds of the people, is receiving more and more attention, and it is confidently expected that a large and constant demand for Canadian and American cars will occur in English markets.

Canada is in for an era of prosperity, said Mr. Davie, if the people only get down to honest work and production. Many business men of the middle and wealthier classes in the Old Country are planning to come out to the Dominion, solely on account of the more settled conditions which make enterprise less of a speculation.

The McLaughlin Car

In reference to the progress of the McLaughlin Car Company, Mr. Davie stated that the General Motors Company is putting up two large plants, one at Oshawa and the other at Walkerville. In twelve months it is thought the new plants will be able to turn out completely Canadian McLaughlins, in a quantity that will be twice as high as the 1919 production. The manufacturing of the car entirely in Canada, said Mr. Davie, will cut out the forty-two and a half per cent duty, and the ten per cent war tax, besides which the increased production will help in no small manner to lower the retail price of the popular McLaughlin car.

It is expected that the Canadian car manufacturers will get busy and build up a very extensive export trade to supply the Old Country markets, which are even now crying for Canadian and American cars. The application of modern methods of construction to cars will permit of the Canadian product being sold at a favorable rate in competition with the more highly finished but higher priced English motor car.

Mr. Davie spent some months in touring England and Scotland in automobiles, and got in touch with the premier people in the business. He stated that he was warmly received and testified to the high opinion held of Canadians in Old Country circles. He was accompanied by Mrs. Davie and his son and daughter. The party, after arriving back in Victoria, was conscious of a distinct sense of relief to be back on settled ground, and Mr. Davie stated that in his opinion "Victoria is the nearest place to heaven that anyone will ever get on this earth," as on his arrival home he was able to pick ripe strawberries in his garden.

NO MORE HARD TIMES

People are very fond of talking of hard times, yet if they only gave the time they take talking over the slackness of things to cultivation of the land, there would be much less heard of poverty and hardship.

If when you had a little money in hand, instead of spending it you bought a small property in the country so that when things were slack you could put your time on that cultivating it, how much more contented you would be; how much more secure you would feel—a very poor worker under the worst of circumstances would be a failure indeed if he couldn't provide for his immediate household needs from an acre or so of ground, and think what it would be if at dull times your immediate necessities were provided for! and no rent to pay—no fuel to buy!

Also instead of wasting time and energy wishing things would look up, you would be thankful for having something to take your mind off worrying about the future, and would bend with a will to increase the production of your own land, which would bring you nearer to the time when that land will take care of you entirely in greater comfort than you have ever been—you will not need to worry about working for someone else for their profit; you'll be your own boss and you will have an enjoyable, healthy and far more paying occupation in your own home.

Call in on the Vancouver Island Fruit Lands Co. at the Belmont Block and let them explain to you how under exceptionally easy payments and terms—far less even than the rent of a single room here in the City—you can enter into possession of ten to twenty acres of fine land, and lay the foundation of your independence.

This company has established a community where, for a cash payment of $80 you can obtain 10 acres of these lands and no further payment for 12 months, then another instalment of $80, and each year $80 until the purchase price is paid—$400—no interest being charged.

These lands are not away in the wilds; they are near railway transportation with daily train service. Church, schools, stores, mills, etc., already established, and are close to good markets.

CLOCKS TURN BACK HOUR THIS MORNING

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—With the turning back of the clocks of the land one hour at 2 o'clock tomorrow morning, the American people again will live normal time.

For two years the clocks were moved forward one hour in the Spring and moved back one hour in the Fall, but from now on the timepieces will remain on the old basis, as the daylight saving law was repealed by the present Congress after a bitter fight, in which President Wilson took a hand.

Railroad officers and employers have been instructed to turn their watches back one hour at 2 o'clock Sunday morning. Trains caught in terminals will be required to remain there until scheduled time of departure under the new rule.

Bandits in Winnipeg

WINNIPEG, Oct. 25.—Chinese business men of Winnipeg complain bitterly of the activities of an organized gang of bandits which is making a specialty of robbing laundries and other places of business conducted by Orientals and lone Chinese on the city streets. No arrests have been made.

LUNCHEON TICKETS ARE NOW ON SALE

Dr. Robertson, Agricultural Expert of Government, Speaks Before Canadian Club Tuesday—Ladies Invited

Tickets for the Canadian Club luncheon to be held on Tuesday next at the Empress Hotel are now on sale. They may be purchased at Cochrane's Drug Store, Hibben's, O'Connell's, and the Great West Permanent Loan Co. Advice postals notifying members of the event are now in the mail.

The speaker of the day will be Dr. James W. Robertson, LL.D., C.M.G., special agent of the Federal Department of Agriculture, who has just returned from Europe after making an investigation of trade conditions there and ascertaining the outlook in those parts for the products of the Canadian farmer.

Dr. Robertson has held positions at Guelph, the Central Experimental Farm, and at Macdonald College, and he has written extensively and conducted numerous government inquiries. During the war he acted as chairman of the executive committee of the Agricultural Relief of the Allies Fund. Dr. Robertson addressed the Canadian Club in June, 1917, on his experiences behind the lines in France. He is one of the best known authorities on agriculture in Canada today, and his work with the Canada Food Board made him widely known throughout the Dominion.

Tuesday's luncheon commences at noon, and the members of the Women's Canadian Club are invited to attend at 12:30 to hear the addresses.

YOUR BALLOT

A Great Right—A Grave Responsibility

On Monday Next We Have the Right to Exercise That Responsibility

Here are some of the questions which enter into the decision, and correct answers thereto ought to help solve the questions:—

Did Candidate Barnard leave the G. W. V. A. to join the One Big Union? Yes.

Did Barnard, only after Labor had stamped its disapproval on the O.B.U., return to the G. W. V. A. fold? Yes.

Did Barnard on his entrance into the campaign advocate radical, not to say revolutionary methods? Yes.

Did the moderate ones of his party, conscious of his blunder and realizing that the people would not stand for such, counsel moderation? Ask Barnard's Committee.

Did his revolutionary friend from Vancouver receive counsel from the moderate ones that he either get right back to the Mainland, or has Barnard repudiated him? Ask Barnard's Committee.

Do you believe that a Soviet of 29 should be the contract of a representative of Victoria, regardless of the wishes of the other 15,000 voters of Victoria? Ask Yourself.

Do you believe that a Mainland man, as a private member, with untrained tongue, can do for you and the community what a member of the Cabinet who is an influential worker can? Ask Yourself.

Don't you think that the man who has so faithfully served us all so patiently and conscientiously for two years, a period of such grave unrest and responsibility, deserves the privilege to help us further along our troubled road? Ask Yourself.

Do the women voters of Victoria desire to see Victoria become a Petrograd, Canada a Russia? Ask Yourself.

In which do safety, self-interest and sound government lie? Ask Yourself.

THE ISSUE IS:

Noise versus Influence Victoria versus the Mainland
Barnard, the Agitator versus Tolmie, the Worker

RESIDENCE HOLDS MANY ART TREASURES

Chatsworth House—Home of the Duke of Devonshire

By Ethel M. Wood

Strange and violent have been the changes of the past five years. Swift changes from beauty to ugliness, from light to darkness, from happiness to despair.

We rejoiced in the glory of an English Spring, full of new life and hope, our men in comparative safety—suddenly hope died, color and light faded, leaving nothing but blank loneliness, because a life had been blotted out on the battle-field.

We enjoyed the peaceful contemplation of one of England's stately homes, set in the midst of its lovely park. An appeal is made for more beds for the wounded, and it was turned into a military hospital filled with cruelly mutilated men. From the enjoyment of a radiant moonlight night to the crashing of death-dealing missiles from the starry sky. Surely, strange and violent changes.

Not until many days are passed will we be able to look with calm appraising eyes on the history of these fateful years, which changed England into a vast military camp. No man can have lived through these times and be quite the same; he is either more or less a man spiritually than he was before.

This coming home to Canada seems to have turned yet another page in the history of the war written so indelibly on men's minds. The chapter is headed "The Relatives of the Fallen," and is glorious, though infinitely sad reading.

Now it is over, but the world still writhes, and the sea of life is troubled, casting up the wreckage of selfishness, discontent, avarice and such like, and must go on doing so for a time.

For those who went from overseas in their thousands to the land of their forefathers to fight for the world's good there were many beautiful things to see. Some vivid first impressions, such as the first moments of benediction under a magnificent cathedral roof, with the sound of the choristers' voices soaring to its apex; the first sight of a world-famous picture; a primrose or bluebell-wood in all its glory. Alas! there was always in the background the thunder of war just "over there," always the sighing of broken hearts around us, and the dread of what might be. But there was a silver lining even to this cloud, and we can look back with interest and pleasure on the lovely places and things seen in the Old Land.

Last Winter I had the privilege of seeing Chatsworth House, the magnificent home of the Duke of Devonshire. Many Canadians who were in camps and hospitals in its neighborhood very much appreciated our Governor - General's kindness in throwing open this treasure-house of art to the public on certain days of the week; indeed, too much cannot be said of such public-spirited generosity.

We have, of course, nothing in Canada like these historic houses, which reckon their age, not in years, but centuries. This, then, is what breeds pride of place and race; these homes where one's fathers have lived and died for hundreds of years; if their lives were noble, so much the more cause for pride in their memory.

Built in 18th Century

Chatsworth, as seen today, was built in the eighteenth century, giving place to the house of the sixteenth century, where Mary Queen of Scots was kept a prisoner for so long. During the Civil War it was used as a fortress by both parties in turn, the King and the Parliament.

Driving through the park, which covers twelve hundred acres, we saw large flocks of black and white sheep, deer and game birds. The Derwent River runs through it and is spanned near the house by a handsome bridge supposed to have been designed by Michael Angelo, and ornamented with figures by a celebrated sculptor. The house stands upon an eminence and looks imposing rather than picturesque. Wooded hills rise at the back of it, giving the natural surroundings a delightfully wild aspect.

Chatsworth's splendid hall is sixty by twenty feet; its walls are wonderfully painted, representing scenes in the life of Julius Caesar. Viewed from below the stairway, the stabbing scene is terribly real. The ceiling is painted to represent his deification.

In the picture galleries are masterpieces by Lodovico Carracci, Berghem, Teniers, Nicolas Poussin, Murillo, Holbein and Landseer, to mention only a few of the artists. The sketch gallery is a place in which to spend days, not moments. Here are over a thousand original studies by the old masters, said to be the largest private collection in existence.

In different parts of the house are wonderful portraits by Reynolds, Vandyke, Holbein, Watts and others. In one of the picture galleries was a grim reminder of the war; crates of valuable pictures sent from Devonshire House, London, for protection from air raids.

The chapel is most exquisitely decorated. The ceiling is painted to represent the Ascension, the altar-piece is the Incredulity of St. Thomas, by Verrio. On the walls are many beautiful pictures illustrative of our Saviour's life. The floor is of marble mosaic, the lower part of the walls wainscoted in fragrant cedar. The wood carving in the chapel, as in other parts of the house, is truly marvelous—flours, fruits and vines in bold relief. Grinling Gibbons' name is always mentioned when speaking of these carvings, but solely for the purpose of stating that there are no grounds for supposing that he did them. It is certain that most of the work was done by Samuel Watson, a Derbyshire man, who was surely one of the great artists in wood carving.

Priceless Pictures

In all the apartments shown to visitors are beautiful and priceless pictures and furniture. All the chimney-pieces are works of art, the ceilings beautifully painted, and the woodwork beautifully carved. Passing through these rooms with a party gave one a feeling of balked pleasure, to linger lest us explanations by our courteous guide. In the libraries, too, one longed for more time; there was a home-like atmosphere, and most inviting corners in which to sit and enjoy this wonderful feast for the mind. There are twenty-five thousand volumes ,including many rare MSS, with such dates as 970, and the Mazarine Bible, the first book printed in England by Caxton; the oldest edition of Homer, etc.

Each of the windows frames a lovely picture of the park, with its stately trees and lawns. In a smaller room adjoining, called the cabinet library, the doors are painted to resemble filled book shelves; the humorous titles were suggested by Thomas Hood, and are very amusing. "Lamb on the Death of Wolfe," "Cursory Remarks on Swearing," "Cooks' Specimens of the Sandwich Tongue," "John Knox at Death's Door," etc.

The ceilings in the state dressing-room and bedroom are very beautiful, the former representing "The Flight of Mercury on His Mission to Paris," the latter "Aurora Chasing Away Night." The walls of the state drawing-room are hung with Gobelin tapestry from Raffaelle's cartoons. In the state dining-room the wood caving is again exquisite. All these rooms are full of the loveliest works of art, and are said to be the finest state apartments in the kingdom.

The sculpture gallery contains probably the finest private collection of statuary, comprising masterpieces of the greatest sculptors. Here are Canova's Sleeping Endymion with his Watching Dog, Bartolini's Bacchante, Canova's Mother of Napoleon, also his bust of Napoleon, Albicini's Achilles Wounded. Here, too, is an immense Mecklenburg vase, twenty feet in circumference, of granite, sculptured by Bartolini. The walls are hung with tapestries; magnificent tree palms were placed down the centre of the gallery brought from the palm house for protection from frost owing to coal rationing.

In Summer the gardens, fountains and cascades must be a dream of beauty. One was painfully reminded of the long years of war and the shortage of coal on entering the huge conservatory (designed by Paxton, of Crystal Palace fame). Here are palm trees of every description, and other beautiful tropical plants, all, or nearly all, dead for want of coal. One felt a sad sort of pride that British justice had not allowed poorer folk to want that these things might be kept alive, though some of them had taken sixty years to grow. The orchid houses also were empty and the lawns uncut, for the men who follow these peaceful avocations were not yet home from the war.

When in beautiful country places one felt always profound gratitude to the Army, and above all to the Navy, that no invader was permitted to set foot on British territory.

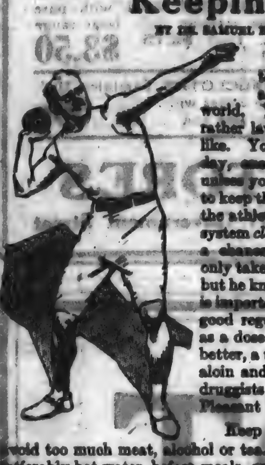
Keeping Fit

BY DR. SAMUEL HAMILTON.



It is because of the war that the perfect physical man has all at once become the idol of the world. You can make of yourself, even rather late in life, almost anything you like. You are not going to get fit in one day, one month, or, perhaps, a year, unless you take enough outdoor exercise to keep the circulation going and practice the athlete's first principle—to keep the system clean. He does not give his body a chance to absorb poisons. He not only takes his cold shower, after exercise, but he knows a cleansing of the intestines is important, and he takes occasionally a good regulator and liver cleanser, such as a dose of castor oil, or, what is much better, a tiny pill made up of May-apple, aloin and jalap, and sold by almost all druggists in the land as Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

Keep the kidneys in good order also. Avoid too much meat, alcohol or tea. Drink plenty of pure water, preferably hot water, before meals, and drive the uric acid out of the system by taking "Anuric" (anti-uric-acid). This can be obtained at almost any drug store.

Send a bottle of water to the chemist at Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., and you will receive free medical advice as to whether the kidneys are affected. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog, you suffer from backache, sick-headaches, dizzy spells, or twinges and pains of lumbago, rheumatism or gout; or sleep is disturbed two or three times a night. Take heed, before too late! Get Anuric (anti-uric-acid), for it will put new life into your kidneys and your entire system. Ask your nearest druggist for it or send Dr. Pierce ten cents for trial package of "Anuric"

Doctor Tells How To Strengthen Eyesight 50 per cent In One Week's Time In Many Instances

A Free Prescription You Can Have Filled and Use at Home

Philadelphia, Pa.—Do you wear glasses? Are you a victim of eye-strain or other eye weaknesses? If so, you will be glad to know that according to Dr. Lewis there is real hope for you. Many whose eyes were failing say they have had their eyes restored through the principle of this wonderful free prescription. One man says, after trying it: "I was almost blind; could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without any glasses and my eyes do not water any more. At night they would pain dreadfully; now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for fifteen days everything seems clear. I can even read fine print without glasses." It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time and multitudes more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and expense of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by following the simple rules. Here is the prescription: Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Drop one Bon-Opto tablet in a fourth of a glass of water and allow to dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eyes two to four times daily. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start and inflammation will quickly disappear. If your eyes are bothering you, even a little, take steps to save them before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have been saved if they had cared for their eyes in time.

Note: Another prominent Physician to whom the above article was submitted, said: "Bon-Opto is a very remarkable remedy. Its constituent ingredients are well known to eminent eye specialists and widely prescribed by them. The manufacturers guarantee it to strengthen the eyesight 50 per cent in one week's time in many instances or refund the money. It can be obtained from any good druggist and is one of the very few preparations I feel should be kept on hand for regular use in almost every family." It is sold in this city by the leading druggists.

CONDITION OF HARBOR ENGAGES ATTENTION

Chemainus Branch of Duncan Board of Trade Discusses Municipal Needs, Including Fire Protection

CHEMAINUS, Oct. 25.—The regular monthly meeting of the Chemainus Branch, Duncan Board of Trade, was held in the Court House on Tuesday evening last, and was largely attended, some fifteen members being present.

The first matter under discussion related to local improvements in the form of sidewalks and widening of the Island Highway within the town limits. Work on the latter has already been commenced and is progressing favorably while evidence produced by Councillor P. Stevenson points to the fact that some at least of the much needed sidewalks will be supplied in the near future.

The application of Mr. Frank Halhed for the now vacant position of harbor master was heartily endorsed by the board, and a motion passed that the Department of Marine be communicated with urging his appointment.

Rev. R. D. Porter brought forward for discussion the lamentable condition of the cemetery, which is in much need of a general cleaning up. It is possible that Mr. J. R. Smith, to whom this work has devolved in the past, will this year be assisted by a number of local volunteers.

Bird Reef, at the entrance to Chemainus harbor, was the next matter to receive attention, and in this connection a resolution that the secretary draft a letter to the chief engineer, Department of Marine, urging that a buoy be placed on this menace to small craft navigation, was passed unanimously. Another resolution requested the secretary to write the Municipal Council asking that the local medical practitioner be at once appointed to the position of health officer for this district.

Discussion then opened afresh on the old, well worn subject of the foreshore nuisance. Little has as yet been accomplished along that line, although a few of the Indians have been going and coming just as their own idea of safety dictated. In view of the fact that the Provincial Board of Health delivered some three months ago an ultimatum that this beach must be swept clean of all shacks, and that prosecution would follow negligence of their orders, it was decided that some member of the board should write a letter to The Daily Colonist editor openly denouncing the forementioned body for its laxity.

The meeting closed after a heated discussion on the matter of local fire protection, and a committee of three was appointed to wait on Mr. E. J. Palmer, manager of the Victoria Lumber Company, and ascertain his views of the matter. As the lumber company owns the water system and the major portion of the real property, it was felt that no action could be taken without Mr. Palmer's approval.

WELCOME HOME BALL WAS GREAT SUCCESS

Ladies of Chemainus Excelled Themselves in Excellence of Provision Made for Dancers

CHEMAINUS, Oct. 25.—The "Welcome Home" ball held on Wednesday evening last under the auspices of the Agnes Keyser Chapter, I.O.D.E., was a decidedly unqualified success in every way. If the opinions of hosts of non-residents can be relied upon, the Chemainus ladies have to their credit by far the most successful function of its kind held at any up-Island point for years. Four hundred is a conservative estimate of the attendance, and not for many seasons have so many visiting cars been congregated at one point on the Island Highway. The music provided by Lewis' Nanaimo orchestra was absolutely top-notch, while the gorgeous mural decorations and excellent dancing floor could not have been improved upon. As is usual when the local ladies bestir themselves, the most liberal and appetising supper provided was in a class of excellence by itself. Notwithstanding the fact that all local people and returned men with escorts from anywhere were admitted free, over one hundred tickets were sold. No better tribute to the success of the event could be imagined than the question which came from scores of visitors: "When are you going to have another dance in Chemainus?" The programme ended at 3 a.m.

Rebekahs' Whist Drive

LADYSMITH, Oct. 25.—A successful whist drive was held in the Odd Fellows' Hall last Thursday evening by the Rebekahs. The drive was supplemented by a musical programme, and was thoroughly enjoyed. The prizes in the whist drive were won by Miss J. Joyce and Mr. Hartley, while Mrs. Bailey and Mr. J. Sharp were given second prize.

Semi-Ready Tailoring:

"We can laud some goods to the skies and the makers fail to uphold their reputation—

"Some folks can't stand prosperity and prestige; it just intoxicates them and they lose their balance—

"But of Semi-Ready Tailored Clothes we can say that each year shows progress and improvement—

"Since the first Semi-Ready garment was made in 1898—well, it would be interesting to place it side by side with the present Semi-ready tailored suit."

Your skin is a living organ of your body

It is far more than a mere covering for your body—it is a living organ with vital work to perform.

The beauty of your skin depends on how it works

Is your skin soft, supple, fine in texture, brilliant in color—a delight to everyone whose eyes rest upon it? If so, it is simply in its healthy, normal condition—the condition in which everyone's skin should be. Its delicate pores are working actively, freely; bringing to it the oil and moisture that keep it soft and flexible—carrying away the waste products and allowing it to breathe.

But if for some reason, your skin looks tired, dull—if it lacks the color and freshness you would like it to have—then you can be sure that it is not functioning properly. The pores are not doing their work—the little muscular fibres have become relaxed.

This condition can be relieved—your complexion can be made as fresh, clear, and colorful as you would like to have it. For every day your skin changes—the old skin dies and new skin takes its place. By the proper treatment you can stimulate this new skin which is constantly forming into healthy normal activity—you can give it freshness and color.

To correct a skin that has become dull and sluggish, use every night this special treatment with Woodbury's Facial Soap.

Before retiring wash your face and neck with plenty of Woodbury's Facial Soap and warm water. If your skin has been badly neglected, rub a generous lather thoroughly into the pores, using an upward and outward motion. Do this until the skin feels somewhat sensitive. Rinse well in warm water, then in cold. Whenever possible, rub your skin for thirty seconds with a piece of ice and dry carefully.

This treatment with Woodbury's cleanses the pores gently and thoroughly and stimulates the fine muscular fibres of your skin, giving it tone and life.

You can make your skin finer in texture

Very often a skin lacks beauty from no other fault than a gradual coarsening of its texture. This condition, too, means that your skin is not functioning properly. The pores do not contract and expand as they should—and as a result they have become enlarged. Your skin has lost the smooth, fine look it should have.

Don't feel hopeless about correcting this condition. A smooth, fine-textured skin can be yours if you will give it regularly the kind of treatment that its particular need requires.

Try using this special treatment for a skin that is losing its fineness of texture. Every night before retiring dip your wash cloth in very warm water and hold it to your face. Now, take the cake of Woodbury's Facial Soap, dip it in the water and rub the cake itself over your skin. Leave the slight coating of soap on for a few minutes until your face feels drawn and dry. Then dampen the skin and rub the soap in gently with an upward and outward motion. Rinse the face thoroughly, first in tepid water, then in cold. Whenever possible, finish by rubbing the face with a piece of ice.

Use this treatment regularly, and before long you will notice a marked improvement in the texture of your skin.

Special treatments to meet the needs of each individual type of skin are given in the little booklet which is wrapped around every cake of Woodbury's Facial Soap. Find the treatment that is adapted to your skin—then use it every night, regularly and persistently.

You will find that the very first treatment leaves your skin with a slightly drawn, tight feeling. This only means that your skin is responding to a more thorough and stimulating kind of cleansing than it has been accustomed to. After a few nights the drawn feeling will disappear, and your skin will emerge from its nightly treatment with such a soft, clean, healthful feeling that you will never again want to use any other method of cleansing your face.

Woodbury's Facial Soap is on sale at any drug store or toilet goods counter in the United States or Canada. Get a cake to-day—begin using it tonight. A 25 cent cake lasts a month or six weeks.

We shall be glad to send you a trial size cake

For 6 cents we will send you a trial size cake of Woodbury's Facial Soap (enough for a week or ten days of any Woodbury facial treatment), together with the booklet of treatments, "A Skin You Love to Touch." Or for 25 cents we will send you the treatment booklet and samples of Woodbury's Facial Soap, Facial Powder, Facial Cream and Cold Cream. Address The Andrew Jergens Co., Limited, 9950 Sherbrooke Street, Perth, Ontario.

HUNTING SEA LIONS AROUND QUEEN CHARLOTTE SOUND

Mr. James Cessford, of Victoria, Describes Habits of the Monarch of the Sea—Says They Destroy Thousands of Good Fish and That Hides Make Fine Leather

In view of the recent references by Premier John Oliver to the sea lion as a source of leather, it is interesting to learn that one resident of Victoria has already had practical experience in the hunting of sea lions, the tanning of their hides and the manufacturing of the leather into finished products.

The story, as told to The Colonist by Mr. James Cessford himself, is intensely interesting. Mr. Cessford resides at 736 Mary Street, Victoria West. Early in life he learned the trade of tanning, but in 1898 went up to Alaska and followed mining. He lived in Alaska for 18 years, "coming out" in 1916.

Mr. Cessford sailed from Alaska to Victoria in his own boat, which, by the way, he is now putting into shape preparatory to going into the fishing business.

Thousands of Lions

"On our way down here," stated Mr. Cessford, "we noticed thousands of sea lions, especially around Queen Charlotte Sound, about 300 miles from Victoria, and the idea occurred to me that there was a chance to make a little money, especially as there was such a shortage of leather, and what could be obtained was very high priced. So my brothers, George and John, and my brother-in-law went into partnership with me, and shortly afterwards we returned to Queen Charlotte Sound o na sea lion hunting trip. We got 700 lions in 30 days.

"The method of hunting the lions is very interesting. You have to get them when they come out of the water upon the rocks, and hit them from an advantage point higher up. The reason for this is that they never look up for danger. They always look straight out to sea, even if a shot were fired from above. We therefore always lodged on a rock higher up to do our shooting.

The Jugular Vein

"One has to be a very good shot to be a successful hunter of sea lions. There is only one place where the shot will do its work. If the hunter hits the animal in any other part of its body, the only result will be that your prize will jump or roll into the water and immediately sink. As they never get far from the water's edge, it takes very little effort to get back into the water in case of danger. The one vital spot is behind the ears, and as the lions have very small ears, usually not more than an inch in size, it requires a very accurate aim to plunk your shot through the jugular vein.

Strange Rocks

"The lions have a habit of pulling out to the most dangerous rocks to be found. This seems to be an instinctive effort towards self-preservation. They will lodge on rocks that are cauldrons when the storm-tossed seas sweep over them, and as usually there are only about three hours between the tides, when it is safe to venture to the rocks, the time in which the hunter can do his shooting is limited.

"The rocks on which the sea lions land are worth special mention. They are of a peculiar nature, and I would judge are of volcanic origin. The surface is like pulverized glass and it is impossible to slip on them. A pair of boots made of ordinary leather would be cut to pieces on these rocks in a very few hours. This fact is sufficient to demonstrate the quality of leather to be made from the hide of the lion. If land cattle were to infest the rocks their hides would be torn into shreds in an incredibly short time. But with the sea lion the hides remain intact—the grain is not scratched—and that is the important thing when it comes to tanning.

Like Taking Candy

"When the cow lion is breeding the most dangerous of the rocks are chosen for the young litter, and at such times the hunting of pups is like taking cand from a baby.

"But after you have fired your first shot don't the rest of the lions jump into the water for safety?

"No. That is the strange part of it. They seem to have no thought of danger from any other source than from the sea. When a shot is fired from higher up the rock, the lions look straight ahead on the water for danger, and crouch further on to the rock for safety. All you have to do is sit there and pick them off if you are a good enough shot. But if you do not hit the jugular vein they roll into the water and sink like a piece of lead. If you hit them in the right place they drop right where they are hit, and emit long streams of blood from their wound.

"One lion will weigh anywhere from 2,000 to 2,500 pounds. The hides are about an inch thick, and very tough. It makes the very finest of rough leather, such as is used for workmen's mitts, saddles and such like. The chief trouble seems to be that it wears so well that manufacturers buck it, because it reduces sales.

Destroy the Fish

"There is, however, almost an inexhaustible supply, and they should be hunted down, not only for the hides, but because they eat up thousands of tons of fish each season. I have seen statistics somewhere which claimed that it takes 50 pounds of fish a day to feed one full grown lion. I can quite believe it. I have seen them with a whole big salmon in their mouths, and they will eat cod, halibut,a nd practically every kind of fish in the sea.

"The sea lions are savage and strong animals. They will fight desperately. I have told you of the thickness and toughness of the hide, yet I have seen lions with big patches of the hide torn off by the teeth of other lions during a fight."

Mr. Cessford had some of the hides he got tanned and made into gloves. He was proprietor of the Sea Lion and Tanning and Glove Manufacturing Company, which had offices at 567 Bay Street, but through circumstances over which Mr. Cessford had no control the business was forced to close down.

BRIDGE BUILDER ASSERTS TROUBLE IS AT AN END, NOW

Could Hardly Bend Over to Tie His Shoes—Is Feeling Fine Again.

"For fully three years before I began taking Tanlac my stomach was in such an awful fix I was not able to eat breakfast a single morning," said J. S. Holles, a well-known bridge builder who lives at 1346 Parker Street, Vancouver, B.C., while talking to the Tanlac representative recently.

"There was hardly a minute during the day that I could say I was feeling good," continued Mr. Holles. "My stomach was in an awful fix and no matter how little I ate, I was sure to suffer from gas and indigestion of the worst sort right after eating. I had a chronic case of constipation and never a day passed that I didn't take a laxative of some kind, and I was so nervous I didn't know what it meant to get a good night's sleep and rest. My back ached and pained me just about all the time, in the mornings I could hardly bend over to tie my shoes and during the day I had to be very careful in not moving too quickly for the pain would simply take the breath right out of me, and at times I was hardly able to stoop over at all.

"Well, sir, when I started taking Tanlac things began to change almost at once, and now I have just finished my fourth bottle, and I can just feel that my whole system has been built up. My stomach is in fine condition and I am not troubled any more with gas or indigestion and my appetite is so good that I eat three square meals every day and don't suffer any bad effects. I am not constipated now and the pain in my back has left me altogether, and I can bend over and straighten up without any trouble, and I can do as good a day's work as any man. My nerves are steady now and I am sleeping sound every night that comes, and of mornings I am feeling fine. I feel just like I used to before my troubles came on, and I am more than pleased to recommend the medicine that put me in such fine shape."

Ceremony Yesterday Afternoon Emptied Yard—Mrs. Carl Sunde, of Seattle, Christened Ship Vancouver—Mr. and Mrs. Chris Cholberg Entertain at Home in Honor of Occasion

And now the Cholberg yard, too, is empty. Its three ways await, with the eight in the Foundation Yards, a decision to do something with a community shipbuilding scheme. The last of the three schooners, work on which began over a year ago, travelled down the ways early yesterday afternoon in a perfect launching, and ere she started Mrs. Carl Sunde of Seattle had named her "Vancouver" and left champagne dripping from the prow of the vessel. Gliding into the harbor, the fine-lined hull was brought up easily with the checking lines, and picked up by waiting tugs.

The Norwegian and British flags floated from the Vancouver, while the flag bearing her name flew from a staff amidships. The invitations for the launching were beautifully got up with the British and Norwegian flags crossed at the top.

Although working with feverish haste the Cholberg workmen were unable to get the hull ready for launching at 12.30, the hour appointed for the ceremony. Shortly after noon spectators began to arrive and in spite of the cold air took a great deal of interest in the preparations and stayed on the spot until the schooner went down shortly before two o'clock.

Mr. J. C. Cameron was an interested guest at the launching of the schooner, numbers of which he advocates building here. He claims that he could keep ten of these vessels busy all the time, while another Island mill would be able to do the same thing.

Veterans on Hand

Two old time shipbuilders of Victoria, Capt. Stevens and Mr. William Turpel, were among the spectators. Both have been in evidence at practically all of the launchings that have taken place in Victoria.

The French crew of one of the Foundation steamers tied up at the old chemical works wharf across the harbor were seen on deck watching the Vancouver slide down the ways and back across the intervening water towards them.

The guests invited to yesterday's launching were:

Capt. and Mrs. Chr. Hansen, Mr. and Mrs. C. Cholberg, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Sunde, Miss Viola Sunde, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. d'Evers, Mr. and Mrs. Toralf Ostbye, Capt. and Mrs. Erling Olsen, Mr. and Mrs. A. Matthew, Capt. and Mrs. C. T. Larsen, Capt. Gram, Mr. and Mrs. Mack, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wilton, Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Kjos, Mr. and Mrs. Reider Gjolme, Mr. and Mrs. Thos. H. Kolderup Mr. T. B. Lafferty, Mr. and Mrs. Meed, John Whitehead, Esq., Capt. J. W. Troup, Capt. J. S. Knarston, Capt. and Mrs. W. J. Stephens, C. J. V. Spratt, Esq., B. L. Robertson, Esq., Major L. Bullock Webster, C. E. Green, Esq., A. J. Betchel, Esq., Wm. Houston, Esq., Capt. Sprott Balcom, Capt. R. Balcom, W. J. Cullum, Esq., W. G. Winterburn, Esq., J. O. Cameron, Esq., Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Corning, Mrs. J. Todsen.

The Cholberg boats are remarkably well built under the guidance of Mr. Chris. Cholberg, who has been shipbuilding since he was big enough to lift a broadaxe. They carry all the canvas that the classifying societies will permit, and their fine lines make them fast. Various features of construction are peculiar to the Cholberg schooners alone and have caused experts to speak of them as exceptional craft.

Gift to Sponsor

The sponsor at yesterday's launching was presented by the Cholberg Company with a complete set of ivory toilet articles monogrammed with her initials.

Last evening in honor of the occasion Mr. and Mrs. Chris Cholberg gave a dinner and dance at their residence on the corner of Patrick Street and Beach Drive. The guests attending the function were Capt. and Mrs. H. C. Hansen, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Sude Miss Viola Sunde, Mr. and Mrs. Toralf Ostbye, Mr. and Mrs. W. Meed, Mr. and Mrs. John Whitehead, Mr. and Mrs. Leif Torp, Mr and Mrs. R. Torp, Mr. L. S. Kingman, Mr. H. C. Hansen, Jr., Mr. Paul Hansen, Mr. Jens Hansen, and Dr. and Mrs. Loe.

The time used is Pacific Standard, for the 120th Meridian west. It is counted from 0 to 24 hours from midnight to midnight. The figures for height serve to distinguish high water from low water. Where blanks occur in the table, the tide rises or falls continuously during two successive tidal periods without turning.

SATISFIED WITH PROGRESS AT YARD

Department of Marine Writes Harbor Marine Yard, Where the Double-Bottom Work Is Nearly Finished

The Department of Marine has written the Harbor Marine Yard that the progress there is satisfactory. The letter was received last week.

The work at the new steel shipbuilding plant is not being rushed. At the present time the double bottom work on the two ships is nearing completion and would have been finished now had it not been for a delay in the procuring of rivets and templates. The tank margins and bottom shell plates are being rivetted and caulked and the bilge brackets are going up. The side frames will be up soon. The plate shop is looking toward a weekly output in the future of from two hundred to two hundred and fifty tons.

BIG STEEL CONTRACT PLACED BY JAPANESE

Shipbuilding Firm Orders 30,000 Tons of Steel From the United States Steel Corporation—Claims Record

SEATTLE, Oct. 25.—Contract for 30,000 tons of steel, valued at $2,700,000, has been placed with the United States Steel Corporation by the Kawasaki Dockyards Company of Kobe, Japan, according to Ichiro Yamada, representative of the company here. This company, which has delivered seven 9,000-ton steel vessels to the United States Shipping Board, will deliver the last five of its ships-for-steel contract by the end of this year, Yamada said. Next year, he added, the company plans to turn out two 9,000-ton steamers monthly for private account.

The Kawasaki Company, Yamada asserted, claims the record of building a steel vessel from keel-laying in 23 days. On October 1 the yards' 20,000 employees went on the 8-hour day basis, the first industrial plant in Japan to adopt the 8-hour day, Yamada said.

The men were riding in some empty cars on the eastbound way freight, the cars being ahead of the engine. ANNIVERSARY OF SOPHIA TRAGEDY

Year Ago Last Night Final Word Went Out From Wreck and Next Morning Mast Tips Visible

It was a year ago that the greatest marine disaster in the history of the Pacific Coast took place. The Princess Sophia, bound south from Skagway with 343 persons on board, hit Vanderbilt Reef, Lynn Canal, early on the morning of the 24th October, 1918, and, after sticking there for nearly two days, slid across the reef and sent to death in icy waters everyone on board.

A Seattle dispatch said after the steamer had struck, "As the waters of Lynn Canal are well protected, no loss of life or boat is feared, steamship men said."

About five o'clock on the night of the 25th, a year ago last night, the U.S. steamer Cedar picked up the message from the Sophia, "Just time to say goodbye. We are foundering." And just a year ago this morning the Cedar went to the spot, for she could not make it the night before, and she found only the mast tips to mark the position of the wreck and the burial place of every soul on board.

After making a search of the surrounding coasts, the Cedar sent to a waiting world this message: "No sign of life; no hope for any survivors." None were ever found. The Princess Alice, the death ship, came into this port with many bodies, and as she emerged from the fog at the harbor entrance Victorians on the Causeway paused to watch her slow approach to the dock.

A Seattle salvage concern has been busy at the scene of the wreck for some months endeavoring to raise the hull. As far as is known here they are still operating, but it is the common opinion among marine men here that the season is too late for success this year.

EXPECT SETTLEMENT

Head of Todd Shipyard at Tacoma Expected to Bring Results Back From East

TACOMA, Oct. 25.—Some settlement of the shipyard controversy, it was announced here today, is expected with the return here Wednesday of Mr. C. W. Wiley, president of the local Todd Drydock and Construction Company. Mr. Wiley has been in conference with Mr. W. H. Todd in New York and the Navy Department at Washington, D.C.

The Todd yard here, employing 6,000 men, has been closed since October 1, when, on orders from the shipping board that the increase in wages of eight cents an hour to all workmen must be paid by the shipbuilding company, the yard was closed.

VALUE OF SALMON

SEATTLE, Oct. 25.—Canned salmon worth $13,000,000 will be brought from Alaska to Seattle by steamers of the Pacific Steamship Company this year, according to estimates made today by the company. In all, a total of approximately 1,350,000 cases will be moved. The company expects to clean up the salmon pack by December 1.

Clean dishes in a jiffy

A tablespoon of Gold Dust—and no more—in a dish-pan of water. Presto! That makes short work of dishwashing. For Gold Dust cuts the grease and leaves dishes with a fine clear sparkle.

PRICES GO DOWNWARD ON HEAVY SELLING

Prospect of Serious Industrial Troubles Has Depressing Effect on Market—Some Net Losses for Week Shown

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—Heaviest liquidation of the week took place during today's brief trading period on the stock exchange, the ticker being over 20 minutes behind in recording final transactions.

The selling was predicted on overnight news, which drew attention to the more acute labor situation, and was accelerated by the tenuous bull account in various speculative issues.

Not only were most of the week's gains entirely cancelled, but in a number of instances losses of 3 to 10 points for that period were recorded. Reactions from maximums in some recent favorites ranged from 10 to 20 points.

Steels bore the brunt of the movement, the premier issue, United States Steel, losing 3¾, while Bethlehem, Crucible, Lackawanna and Republic were 4 to 10 points lower. Rails were carried down by the reaction, with numerous specialties, including tobaccos, leathers and a long list of miscellaneous issues.

The bank statement threw little light on the week's stock market activity, actual loans and discounts showing a further decrease of about $40,000,000 of a total $100,000,000 for the past fortnight.

Bonds eased on the unsettlement shown by stocks, trading in that market, however, being without special features. Total sales (par value), aggregated $7,275,000. Old U. S. bonds were unchanged on call during the week.

AERIAL JOTTINGS

American Aero Race eRsults.—W. B. Maynard won the honors in the American Trans-continental Derby by covering the 5400 odd miles in a flying time of some 50 hours. Some of the last stages of the race were covered at a speed of 120 miles an hour. Maynard used a De Haviland machine fitted with a Liberty engine, the machine remaining intact all through, but the motor gave up with a broken crank shaft when nearly home. Ten deaths and a score of accidents resulted from the experiment, but ill-luck and poor weather may have accounted for many otherwise preventable mishaps. The American Press is enthusiastic over the race, and points out that American isolation from Europe will soon be a thing of the past. As a result of the event landing grounds are to be established on a permanent basis throughout the American continent.

Air Ministry Report.—In a White Paper issued by the Imperial Air Ministry under date of January, 1919, some facts as to the amount of flying done on various fronts are appended. The following record will be a surprise to many who perhaps may not have realized the enormous work done in the air by the British air services. "Western Front—From July, 1916, to 11th November, 1918, the Royal Air Force on the Western Front, destroyed 7,054 enemy machines, dropped 6942 tons of bombs, fired ten and a half million rounds of ammunition at ground targets alone, and flew over 900,000 hours." The figure 900,000 hours of flying time for the Western theatre of war alone, should serve to convince even the most sceptical that aviation has passed a purely experimental stage and got down to business. 900,000 hours of flying is equivalent to nearly 103 years in the air, and this was conducted under all conditions of weather, in the face of the most strenuous opposition from the enemy.

The Lighter Side.—During the last Zeppelin raid on London, in the late war, a crowd of spectators had been shepherded under the protective columns of Marble Arch. A policeman on the north side of the arch, finding himself being gradually pushed out into the open, and hating the idea of tempting Providence, in the shape of falling shrapnel, vigorously pushed the crowd back into the arch. Unfortunately a second "Bobbie" had taken post on the south side of the column, and finding himself in a similar position to the first officer, immediately retaliated by shoving the crowd back again. The resulting disturbance reached such alarming proportions that additional help was called, and the backward and forward struggle was renewed with vigor. The game continued until the crowd, now rightly incensed, discovered the source of the disturbance and managed to get all the policemen on to the same side of the arch. It was after this that the shrapnel helmets were issued to the unfortunate "Bobbies" who had to work on "raid nights."

BAD LEADERSHIP PERIL TO UNIONS

Former President of United States Says Unbalanced Agitators Are Stirring Up Public Opinion Against Them

In a statement recently given to the press Ex-President Taft says:

"One of the phases of the reaction from the war has been the intoxication of power of the extremists of the labor group. These persons in every country have been caught by the Lenine plan of ruling by the soviet of workmen. The war emphasized the special dependence of society on labor as a group, and the Russian debacle gave opportunity to exploit that dependence as a means of subjecting all other groups, however much more numerous, to the dictation of labor. Many workingmen have been carried off their feet and into a vague but exuberent conviction that the millenium of labor is at hand. In the discussion of wages and hours the limit in their minds has been "the sky." No agitator, however extreme, has been unreasonable to them.

"Level headed labor leaders who have sought to moderate these aspirations have found their leadership imperilled and their authority and wise conservatism held for naught. In the reaction from the armistice local labor unions have not hesitated to break their contracts, and this against the lawful orders of their chiefs.

"Such lack of discipline and subordination to wise leadership is the most discouraging circumstance in the situation and threatens the usefulness and existence of labor unions. It can only be cured by some striking instances of successful resistance to this rapidly growing tyranny by those against whom it is immediately directed and who shall be supported by the united public opinion of the whole community. The feverish labor enthusiasts need object lessons to bring them to reason. They do no realise the strength of the conservative forces in this country which will rise to meet persistence in soviet methods.

"When they take home such a lesson as Governor Coolidge and Superintendent Curtis have taught the deserting policemen of Boston their ardor will cool. The failure of the British railway unions to overawe that nation, which has successfully defied their attempts to strangle and starve the people of England into compliance with their demands, is another good lesson. The necessity for still other lessons of the kind makes the public as a whole wish the steel company to succeed in its present fight. The contest is not yet decided, but the company's resistance has already awakened a supporting public opinion to which in the end the unions are likely to be compelled to yield."

Lessons From Aerial Warfare

(Conclusion)

There has been a lot of discussion in regard to the right age for flying. The British War Office only a short time ago raised the age limit from twenty-five to thirty and this was done no doubt to keep pace with the fast growing Air Force. The various governments made an exhaustive study of both pilots and cadets in an effort to trace the physical and the mental characteristics of some of the "star" fliers.

Various scientific instruments for determining the effect of conditions analogous to those encountered during flight were brought to a high state of perfection. Applicants for admission to the air service were required to pass through these tests successfully before commencing their training.

When it is taken into consideration that the average pilot during the hurried training smashes one and a half machines (this is an average), and represents, by the time he is ready for active service, an investment by the Government of approximately ten thousand dollars it can ready be seen that in order to keep up the supply of trained pilots it is necessary to select the applicants with great care.

Confidence Essential

In numerous instances an airman after passing through all the preliminary schools, which occupies several months' time, finally reaches the flying stage and comes to the conclusion that he will never make a pilot—or else the instructor will reach that conclusion and considers it hopeless to attempt any more instruction. In a number of instances this is not through fear on the part of the man himself. It simply means that he lacks that something that goes to make a succesful pilot.

He may have lots of grit and determination, but if he lacks—say good judgment, an essential make-up in a good flier—he had better give it up and make room for someone else. Trained pilots are a necessity, and valuable time could not be wasted on men who were unfitted for the work.

It has been proved beyond doubt that the "young" man makes the best pilot for war work. Most of the fast scouts (single seated machines) are piloted by youngsters. It is the work of these combat machines to fight enemy machines. When a pilot finally goes over the lines in one of these scouts either singly or in formation he has reached the pinnacle of flying. He may be successful and quickly become an "ace" or he may be shot down during his first flight.

War Flying Young Man's Game

The star pilots are almost without exception young men—from nineteen to twenty-two. The older pilots, unless they become exceptional fighters, do most of the bombing, photography and "spotting" for artillery.

Flying itself is not necessarily a young man's game; but flying on active service is vastly different from peace time flying. The late S. F. Cody, an American who went to England some years before the outbreak of war, designed, built and successfully flew his own machine. He was fifty-six years of age when he first became interested in flying.

In 1915 a British General took his Aero Club certificate at Hendon (London) Aerodrome at the age of sixty-two. These two instances alone certainly contradict the generally accepted theory that flying is distinctly a young man's game.

That the airplane has come to stay none can doubt. The airplane has proved itself a practical means of transportation since the outbreak of war. It is not uncommon to hear of a Cabinet Minister flying from London to Paris to attend a meeting. Both the King and the Queen of the Belgians flew from Belgium to England just recently.

It is typical of a man like the late Colonel Roosevelt, when his son Quentin made known to him that he was desirous of joining the American Air Force that the Colonel should wish to make a flight in order to satisfy himself that his son was making the right choice. The seal of approval was finally given by the Colonel. His youngest son Quentin unfortunately made the supreme sacrifice. He was shot down in France and his body was laid to rest alongside other heroes who willingly paid the price.

Great progress has been made since the cessation of hostilities in the establishing of air routes to Great Britain's far flung Empire. A preliminary survey by air has been made just recently between Cairo and Damascus and on to Bagdad and India. The flight from Cairo to Bagdad with one stop at Damascus was made in a little over twelve hours of actual flying time. The ordinary time occupied to make this trip is from two to three weeks.

Another Handley-Page equipped with Rolls-Royce motors and carrying a crew of six, started from England to Delhi, India, via Karachi—a distance of five thousand seven hundred miles. This machine which was originally built to bomb Berlin has a span of one hundred and twenty-seven feet and weight with fuel and passengers twenty-seven thousand pounds (over thirteen tons).

Its speed is estimated at eighty miles per hour, and it carries twelve hundred gallons of gasoline, which is sufficient to keep the craft going for sixteen hours. Mr. Handley-Page, the builder of these giant craft, has now completed a huge machine which contains a comfortable stateroom for use at night or in bad weather. Provision has also been made for exercise and a stroll can be had on the deck, situated in the body of the machine.

Mr. Handley-Page calls this his air yacht, and we can look forward very soon to seeing these huge airplanes not only crossing the Atlantic Ocean, but crossing from Eastern to Western Canada in a few years, and what was considered by many an impossibility fifteen years ago has proved itself to be the fastest known means of transportation, and is only now in its infancy.

Who can prophesy the future of this modern method of travel and exploration?

It is very regrettable to read of the recent purchase of Canada's aircraft by a private concern. The Dominion Government has done very little to encourage the use of aircraft in Canada. While it is true that a half hearted attempt was made to establish a flying corps both at the start and the finish of the war, both of these attempts were more or less of a failure. Canada could and would have had its own air force if it had received the consideration that it was deserving of.

It is to be hoped, for the future of aviation in Canada, that the policy of the Government will be swept aside by this new undertaking.
